House Votes To Extend Trade Pacts for Three Years

Administration Wins Its First Great Victory of Session; Vote Is 216-168

ll Goes to Senate Where Hull Will Face Finance Committee Monday as First Witness

By RICHARD L. TURNER

Washington, Feb. 23. (AP) — The se gave the administration its t great victory of the session ight with a vote extending the procal trade agreements pro- m for a period of three years. The continuation resolution, pass- 216 to 168, goes next to the Sen- where the Finance Committee ns to begin hearings on Monday, n Secretary Hull as its first ness.

The Republican leadership fought legislation to the end, assisted a scattering of Democratic mem- s from farm and cattle sections rticularly. These members have n in Rebellion against the pro- m on the ground that tariff re- tions effected under it have in- ed the producers of their dis- cts.

In addition to being a victory the administration, the vote s in the nature of a personal mph for Secretary Hull, and one ich some thought might increase prestige as a potential Demo- tic presidential nominee.

Hull Long for Program

Hull had fought for such a pro- m for years before he became retary of state in the Roosevelt binet. Arguing that a revival of ld trade depended principally on elimination of such trade bar- rs as high tariffs, he obtained ngressional approval for a three r trial of his policy in 1934. The e was extended another three rs in 1937.

Under the legislation, Hull has otiated agreements with more an a score of nations, which have uced their tariffs in return for uctions in the rates of the Smoot- wley law, enacted in 1930.

Republicans came to the present sion of Congress resolved to end policy, which without the leg- ation approval in the House to- , would expire next June. In dition to the members from par- ular areas which felt that their stituents had been hurt by the uctions, there was a large group ich has contended as a matter policy for high tariffs.

South Backs Bill

But, the anti-New Deal majority ich held sway in the House at close of the last session failed materialize. For one thing, the able bloc of southern Democrats ich on a number of past issues d voted against the New Deal, od with the administration on tariff question. They were more an enough to offset the usually -New Deal western Democrats o deserted the administration in s instance.

Realizing some days ago that the tle was lost, the opposition con- trated today on a series of endments intended to place re- rictions upon the program. The ministration held clear command roughout a day of voting, how- r, and, one after another, the posals were rejected.

Of particular interest was an endment offered by Rep. Crow- r (R-NY), which would have anged the program into the tariff tem advocated by the Republican tform Committee, in the report mitted by its chairman, Glenn nk, early this week. He pro- ed a reciprocity system, but one

Dickinson Seeks To Oust McCrea As Prosecutor

Latter Says He Will Run for United States Senate Next Fall

Detroit, Feb. 23 (AP)—Ouster proceedings against Duncan C. McCrea, Wayne county (Detroit) prosecuting attorney, were ordered by governor Luren D. Dickinson today on charges by Circuit Judge Homer Ferguson that the prosecutor had exacted thousands of dollars monthly from operators of vice dens, racing handbooks and slot machines.

The removal petition was presented to the governor shortly after McCrea and others of a group charged with protecting the operation of a baseball lottery here, had stood mute upon arraignment in Circuit Court.

As McCrea, missing since Wednesday, appeared for arraignment, he smiled and announced he would be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States senator in next September's primary election. He referred to his indictment by a grand jury that has been investigating gambling in Wayne county as "dirty, rotten politics," and added:

Says Publicity Will Help

"The publicity will help my campaign for senator."

Pleas of innocent were entered for McCrea; Fred W. Frahm, recently ousted as superintendent of Detroit police; Harry Colburn, chief investigator for McCrea and Detective James Bennett, when they appeared in court before Judge Ferguson. They were released on $1,000 bonds each with hearings set for March 2.

The four, with eleven others were named in indictments handed down Wednesday night by Judge Ferguson, acting as a one-man grand jury, charging the protection of a baseball lottery that did a business of more than $1,000,000 a year in Detroit. In addition four other men were named in the indictment as

Lou Ambers Wins An Easy Decision Over Bum Davis In 10-Round Bout

Tough Brooklyn Boy Is No Match for Fast Lightweight Champion in Garden Battle

New York, Feb. 23 (AP)—Lightweight Champion Lou Ambers played "little man who wasn't there" tonight as he bewildered, befuddled and thoroughly beat Brooklyn's Bummy Davis in 10-round non-title scrap before a standing-room-only crowd at Madison Square garden. Ambers weighed 129, Davis 146 1-2.

Before a capacity house of 20,586 that paid in a gross gate of $66,749, Ambers put on a brilliant demonstration of how a skilled, experienced boxer can tame a tough but crude puncher. The Herkimer (NY) hurricane got the unanimous verdict of the two judges and referee Bill Kavanaugh as he made Davis look like a non-plussed beginner through the last half of the fight.

Bummy, the product of Brooklyn's hard-bitten Brownsville section who had come through thirty-seven bouts without defeat, never was in it after the first four rounds.

He lost the first round for a low punch. In the next three heats he drove home enough of his explosive lefts to get the nod in each on the association score card. But in the fifth the champion started to take control of the situation, and from there on you could have counted Davis' effective punches on the fingers of one hand.

Freighters Carry Heavy Cargoes To Europe for Allies

Mysterious Loads Taken Aboard at Hoboken Piers Daily

Weehawken, N. J., Feb. 23 (AP)—Grim-looking freighters, painted in dull, flat grey and streaked with rust, glide silently alongside Hudson river piers, take on mysterious cargos and steal just as silently away.

Mounting guns and flying the British or French flags, the ships head for the Atlantic and home to replenish wartime supplies.

Day and night winches roar and cranes swing. When a ship, there at dusk, has gone at dawn, more freight is moved to the never-idle pier from seemingly endless rows of cars in the New York Central and West Shore Railroad freight yards.

For almost a mile, from Weehawken northward to west New York, these cars stretch out—box, flat and gondola, loaded with crates, food, machinery and scrap iron. One can only surmise the contents of many crates but harder-to-hide objects like motor trucks and tractors are easily discernilee.

Scrap iron is swiftly conveyed from Gondola cars to holds of vessels by powerful electro-magnetic cranes.

Long lines of cars are hauled into the yards by twin locomotives. Day and night switch engines puff and push.

On the New York side of the river loading scenes are duplicated as French and British steamers come and go there as secretly as here. At Jersey City and other waterfront cities is similar activity.

Floodlights from pier and ship speed the loading at night.

3,000 Russians Killed In Intensified Drive Through Finnish Lines

Reds Penetrate to within 12 Miles of Viipuri in Major Drive against the Mannerheim Line

By THOMAS F. HAWKINS

Helsinki, Feb. 23 (AP)—The Russian army thrust forward at several points along a jagged thirty-mile front in an intensified drive through the western half of the Mannerheim Line today, but at tremendous cost, losing 3,000 killed in a single day's bitter combat.

The Russian penetration at one point reached to within ten to twelve miles of Viipuri—to the vicinity of Naykki Lake, roughly four miles northwest of the Kamara railway station, where fighting began Thursday, according to today's communique.

If this meant that the Soviet advance was part of a major offensive to celebrate today's 22nd anniversary of the forming of the Red army, it was a costly one, and one which failed to win Viipuri, as the Reds had suggested they might do to celebrate the occasion.

The widened front and the indication of the slight Soviet advance toward Viipuri, together with the fact this was acknowledged by the Finns, might seem to present a highly serious picture for the dedenders, but there were several additional factors weighing strongly in their favor.

These are:

Factors Favor Defendants

1. The Finnish arm is making the most of its man-made fortifications, aided by deep gullies between forested plateaus and along ice-crusted lakes through which a large army can penetrate only slowly. The Finnish retreat from frontal positions was calculated to save men; it was done slowly and, according to Finnish military sources, with loss of thousands of men to the Russians.

2. The Russians have advanced only a few miles against the Mannerheim Line, although their concentrated drive already is twenty-three days old. According to foreign military observers, there is no reason to believe the advance will be speeded up in the near future.

3. Should the Russians penetrate the Finnish line and capture Viipuri, the Russian army would gain a considerable advantage, but to reach Helsinki it would still have to drive through natural barriers of lakes by the hundreds and through a series of well-laid military fortifications.

4. Finnish military strategy appears to be to hold every position as long as possible without causing heavy Finnish losses, then to withdraw slightly, exacting from the enemy heavy tolls in dead and taking from them artillery and vast quantities of war materials.

5. The Finns are receiving some foreign help, and although it is not now bringing the

Starving Chinese Besiege Peiping Shops for Food

Cost of Living Boosted 400 Per Cent Because of Summer Floods

Peiping, North China, Feb. 23 (AP) —Hungry crowds besieged grain shops today as a growing food shortage, resulting from disastrous floods which last summer destroyed north China's wheat crop and war conditions, threatened millions in the Peiping-Tientsin area with starvation.

Soaring prices put even bare necessities out of reach of wage earners.

A foreign survey showed that living costs for the low income groups had risen nearly 400 per cent above pre-war prices, while wages have increased less than fifty per cent over the same period.

Nye Says Britain Can Be Brought to Terms for Seizure Of American Mail

Senator Wants To Pass Up Bermuda as Airmail Stop in Reprisal against "Arrogant British"

Washington, Feb. 23 (AP)—Senator Nye (R-ND) declared tonight that "arrogant Britain" would come quickly to terms regarding the seizure of mail if the United States would pass up Bermuda as an airmail stop.

In an address prepared for the annual banquet of Grand Master Masons, he said:

"If German or Russian or Japanese authorities were to rifle our mail as the British are doing in Bermuda, how easy it might be to enrage the people to anger that was boundless.

"Why not pass up Bermuda in our transportation? It would not be a week before arrogant Britain would come to terms."

After a half-hour conference with Secretary of State Hull today, the British ambassador, Lord Lothian, declared that the problems existing between the United States and England were "comparatively of small importance" when it was considered that "150 neutral ships have thus far been sunk by the Germans."

Justies British Course

He said Britain was "completely within her rights" in censoring mails, and added that he believed the matter would be worked out to American satisfaction.

Meanwhile, Senator Pepper (D-Fla) said he had received information which he considered accurate, indicating that British censors had removed between $14,000,000 and $17,000,000 in United States currency and negotiable securities from mail destined to Germany and intercepted at Bermuda.

He said he had been informed that much of the money was in envelopes which bore no return ad-

Many Big Trucks Barred from Two Roads to Phila.

Commission Acts because of Weakened Road Conditions

Baltimore, Feb. 23. (AP) — Maryland's two main highways to Philadelphia—route 1 and route 40—were virtually closed to heavy truck traffic today because of severe winter weather which weakened road foundations and brought a Roads Commission order slashing the weight allowed on highways where damage was threatened.

Hundreds of trucks, which flow over the route to Philadelphia and New York, were affected.

Commission officials conferred with truck operators and announced late this afternoon that beginning tonight trucks of more than the restricted weight would use the York road to York, Pa., or the Westminster Pike, connecting with the Lincoln Highway in Pennsylvania. The distance to Philadelphia will be increased between forty and fifty miles.

The restrictions, cutting the weight limit of two-axle vehicles from 26,000 to 16,000 pounds and three-axle vehicles from 42, to 24,000 pounds, were not placed on route 40 in Maryland.

However, they have been placed on that section of the route which crosses Delaware, thus making the Maryland section useless to the trucks affected.

Seven trucks broke a road between North East and Calvert last night, and tied up other trucks trying to use that artery to get from Maryland into Pennsylvania, by-passing Delaware.

Former Cabinet Member Wants Allies To Attack On Land, Sea and in Air

WOULD ATTACK RUSSIA

Leslie Hore-Belisha

Asks England and France To Save Finland and Thus Shorten Their Own Ordeal by Fire

By ROBERT E. BUNNELLE

London, Feb. 23 (AP)—Great Britain and her French ally, feinting cautiously at Germany in western Europe, were exhorted boldly tonight by Leslie Hore-Belisha, ousted minister, to make real war on Soviet Russia on land, air and sea—to save Finland and to shorten their own ordeal by fire.

This revealing and vigorous speech was delivered by the forthright, unchastened Hore-Belisha to his parliamentary constitutents at Devonport on a proud day for this island at war.

The greatest crowd since the coronation jammed London's old streets from Westminster to the guild hall to acclaim the men who won the Rio Plata victory over the Admiral Graf Spee, while Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, spoke with mingled exultation and sober warning of "this hard and novel war" at sea.

King Presents Decorations

King George himself came to Horseguards' parade to review and decorate the men of the cruisers Ajax and Exeter—and widows of the dead.

Beneath the morale-building blare of bands and beat of drums the war went grimly on at its curious tempo. British warplanes were disclosed to have bombed German warships in Helgoland Bight on Tuesday night and to have flown last night over Austria and Czecho-Slovakia. German planes made their first moonlight raid on British coastal shipping, machine-gunning the 2,429-ton British Gothic and wounding her captain.

The British lost one plane over Helgoland; blamed it on the weather. The R.A.F. fighters believed they had shot down one German plane on the same flight. The Germans lost two planes in daylight attacks on the British coastline Thursday.

Hore-Belisha (whose resignation, by request, from the war cabinet on January 5 was a result of just such aggressive beliefs and expressions as he displayed today) told his Devonport audience:

"The risk of helping Finland may be great, but the risk of not helping her may be greater x x x

"She is holding the pass of civilization."

Fears Russian Attack

If Russia wins the war in the north, he went on, she will not be satisfied with her spoils in Finland —she will force advantages for Germany in Scandinavia, where both Britain and Germany are hungry for food, iron ore, timber and other supplies.

"Well-planned, adequate, decisive action" in Finland, Hore-Belisha argued, would prevent this — give new strength to the Allies' economic arm and "curtail the duration of the war."

Germany's strategy, he declared, is to force the Allies to keep a great force inactive on the western front, "particularly in a position where there can be no fighting unless the enemy chooses to violate neutral territory. Meanwhile they can, in conjunction with Russia, by intimidation if not by domination, obtain from their neighbors sufficient sup-

British Warships In North To Halt Shipments of Ore

May Also Seek To Keep German Ships Out of Murmansk

By ELMER W. PETERSON

Copenhagen, Feb. 23. (AP)—Allied action in thrusting an arm of the blockade against Germany into the Arctic off northern Norway, Finland and Soviet Russia was interpreted here tonight as possibly aimed primarily at halting German transport of highgrade iron ore from Kirkenes, northern Norwegian port.

Scandinavian commercial circles said they believed a secondary motive was the blocking of any effort by German vessels which may be taking refuge in Nurmansk, Russia's ice-free port in that region, to get back to Germany.

Doubt Troops Will Land

Scandinavians shrugged off rumors that the British intended to land troops and equipment in the Petsamo area—occupied early in the Finnish-Russian conflict by Russian forces—as an aid to Finland on the grounds that weather if no other factor would be against such a procedure.

Likewise there was no support for rumors that a clash with the Soviet Arctic navy already had occurred.

Meanwhile, with Baltic Sea transport stopped by ice, Germans were reported busy shipping Swedish highgrade ore from Narvik, on the west coast of Norway. From Narvik German ships have the protection of Norwegian territorial waters, merging into Swedish and Danish waters en route to Germany.

Germany Needs Ore

While German imports from Kirkenes are not extensive, Scaninavians said it was recognized that all high-grade ore shipments were highly important now to Germany.

Los Angeles, Feb. 23 (AP) — Mae Murray, blonde star of the silent screen, sobbingly told a Superior Court judge today she was worth $3,000,000 in 1926, but that ten years later she sat on a bench in New York's Central park for three days, penniless.

She was so tearful the judge called a recess in the trial of her suit against Prince David of the Georgian Mdivanis for $1,000 monthly to establish a home for their son, Koran Davis, 13.

"In September, 1936, I had no funds," she testified, brokenly. "I had no place to live at the moment. I had to leave my hotel.

Conditions against War Boom in U. S. Farm Institute Speakers Point Out

Declare Neutrality and World Markets Are Antidote

Des Moines, Ia., Feb. 23 (AP) — National Farm Institute speakers tonight expressed belief that United States neutrality and the condition of world markets constitute effective antidotes against the possibility of a war boom in this country.

"Certainly there is no present need to plant or breed another pound of grain, fiber or meat because of any war orders in sight," Chester Davis, member of the federal reserve board of governors, said in a prepared address.

"American farmers haven't completed the adjustments made necessary by the last war.

"If they expand their plantings in anticipation that higher prices and enlarged demand will result from this one, they will be headed for more trouble than this generation is going to be able to mop up."

Howard Coonley of New York, chairman of the board of the national association of manufacturers, said industry is vigorously opposed to a war boom and at present could not promote such a boom if it wanted to.

No Trade Expansion

In another prepared address, Coonley found possibilities of trade expansion with Europe and South America to be remote.

Washington, Feb. 23 (AP)—Senator Nye (R-ND) declared tonight that "arrogant Britain" would come quickly to terms regarding the seizure of mail if the United States would pass up Bermuda as an airmail stop.

In an address prepared for the annual banquet of Grand Master Masons, he said:

"If German or Russian or Japanese authorities were to rifle our mail as the British are doing in Bermuda, how easy it might be to enrage the people to anger that was boundless.

"Why not pass up Bermuda in our transportation? It would not be a week before arrogant Britain would come to terms."

After a half-hour conference with Secretary of State Hull today, the British ambassador, Lord Lothian, declared that the problems existing between the United States and England were "comparatively of small importance" when it was considered that "150 neutral ships have thus far been sunk by the Germans."

Justies British Course

He said Britain was "completely within her rights" in censoring mails, and added that he believed the matter would be worked out to American satisfaction.

Meanwhile, Senator Pepper (D-Fla) said he had received information which he considered accurate, indicating that British censors had removed between $14,000,000 and $17,000,000 in United States currency and negotiable securities from mail destined to Germany and intercepted at Bermuda.

He said he had been informed that much of the money was in envelopes which bore no return ad-

Many Big Trucks Barred from Two Roads to Phila.

Commission Acts because of Weakened Road Conditions

Baltimore, Feb. 23. (AP) — Maryland's two main highways to Philadelphia—route 1 and route 40—were virtually closed to heavy truck traffic today because of severe winter weather which weakened road foundations and brought a Roads Commission order slashing the weight allowed on highways where damage was threatened.

Hundreds of trucks, which flow over the route to Philadelphia and New York, were affected.

Commission officials conferred with truck operators and announced late this afternoon that beginning tonight trucks of more than the restricted weight would use the York road to York, Pa., or the Westminster Pike, connecting with the Lincoln Highway in Pennsylvania. The distance to Philadelphia will be increased between forty and fifty miles.

The restrictions, cutting the weight limit of two-axle vehicles from 26,000 to 16,000 pounds and three-axle vehicles from 42, to 24,000 pounds, were not placed on route 40 in Maryland.

However, they have been placed on that section of the route which crosses Delaware, thus making the Maryland section useless to the trucks affected.

Seven trucks broke a road between North East and Calvert last night, and tied up other trucks trying to use that artery to get from Maryland into Pennsylvania, by-passing Delaware.

Asks England and France To Save Finland and Thus Shorten Their Own Ordeal by Fire

By ROBERT E. BUNNELLE

London, Feb. 23 (AP)—Great Britain and her French ally, feinting cautiously at Germany in western Europe, were exhorted boldly tonight by Leslie Hore-Belisha, ousted minister, to make real war on Soviet Russia on land, air and sea—to save Finland and to shorten their own ordeal by fire.

This revealing and vigorous speech was delivered by the forthright, unchastened Hore-Belisha to his parliamentary constitutents at Devonport on a proud day for this island at war.

The greatest crowd since the coronation jammed London's old streets from Westminster to the guild hall to acclaim the men who won the Rio Plata victory over the Admiral Graf Spee, while Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, spoke with mingled exultation and sober warning of "this hard and novel war" at sea.

King Presents Decorations

King George himself came to Horseguards' parade to review and decorate the men of the cruisers Ajax and Exeter—and widows of the dead.

Beneath the morale-building blare of bands and beat of drums the war went grimly on at its curious tempo. British warplanes were disclosed to have bombed German warships in Helgoland Bight on Tuesday night and to have flown last night over Austria and Czecho-Slovakia. German planes made their first moonlight raid on British coastal shipping, machine-gunning the 2,429-ton British Gothic and wounding her captain.

The British lost one plane over Helgoland; blamed it on the weather. The R.A.F. fighters believed they had shot down one German plane on the same flight. The Germans lost two planes in daylight attacks on the British coastline Thursday.

Hore-Belisha (whose resignation, by request, from the war cabinet on January 5 was a result of just such aggressive beliefs and expressions as he displayed today) told his Devonport audience:

"The risk of helping Finland may be great, but the risk of not helping her may be greater x x x

"She is holding the pass of civilization."

Fears Russian Attack

If Russia wins the war in the north, he went on, she will not be satisfied with her spoils in Finland—she will force advantages for Germany in Scandinavia, where both Britain and Germany are hungry for food, iron ore, timber and other supplies.

"Well-planned, adequate, decisive action" in Finland, Hore-Belisha argued, would prevent this — give new strength to the Allies' economic arm and "curtail the duration of the war."

Germany's strategy, he declared, is to force the Allies to keep a great force inactive on the western front, "particularly in a position where there can be no fighting unless the enemy chooses to violate neutral territory. Meanwhile they can, in conjunction with Russia, by intimidation if not by domination, obtain from their neighbors sufficient sup-

British Warships In North To Halt Shipments of Ore

May Also Seek To Keep German Ships Out of Murmansk

By ELMER W. PETERSON

Copenhagen, Feb. 23. (AP)—Allied action in thrusting an arm of the blockade against Germany into the Arctic off northern Norway, Finland and Soviet Russia was interpreted here tonight as possibly aimed primarily at halting German transport of highgrade iron ore from Kirkenes, northern Norwegian port.

Scandinavian commercial circles said they believed a secondary motive was the blocking of any effort by German vessels which may be taking refuge in Nurmansk, Russia's ice-free port in that region, to get back to Germany.

Doubt Troops Will Land

Scandinavians shrugged off rumors that the British intended to land troops and equipment in the Petsamo area—occupied early in the Finnish-Russian conflict by Russian forces—as an aid to Finland on the grounds that weather if no other factor would be against such a procedure.

Likewise there was no support for rumors that a clash with the Soviet Arctic navy already had occurred.

Meanwhile, with Baltic Sea transport stopped by ice, Germans were reported busy shipping Swedish highgrade ore from Narvik, on the west coast of Norway. From Narvik German ships have the protection of Norwegian territorial waters, merging into Swedish and Danish waters en route to Germany.

Germany Needs Ore

While German imports from Kirkenes are not extensive, Scaninavians said it was recognized that all high-grade ore shipments were highly important now to Germany.

Mae Murray Says She Took to Park Bench when She Lost $3,000,000

Star of Silent Films Suing Prince for Support of Son

Los Angeles, Feb. 23 (AP)—Mae Murray, blonde star of the silent screen, sobbingly told a Superior Court judge today she was worth $3,000,000 in 1926, but that ten years later she sat on a bench in New York's Central park for three days, penniless.

She was so tearful the judge called a recess in the trial of her suit against Prince David of the Georgian Mdivanis for $1,000 monthly to establish a home for their son, Koran Davis, 13.

"In September, 1936, I had no funds," she testified, brokenly. "I had no place to live at the moment. I had to leave my hotel.

"I had to leave all my belongings and I was frightened. I just packed a little hat box with the things I needed for cleanliness and spent three days in Central Park."

The seventeenth century mansion hewn out of a hill of stone soars 440 feet into the air. Its full breadth of 900 feet overlooks the vast plains of Lhasa.

The immediate predecessor of the round-faced little boy was the 13th Dalai Lama, installed about 1880.

Yesterday's ceremony began before dawn in the light of a full moon and lasted until the sinking sun enflamed the golden pavilions decorating the roof.

Conditions against War Boom in U. S. Farm Institute Speakers Point Out

Declare Neutrality and World Markets Are Antidote

Des Moines, Ia., Feb. 23 (AP) — National Farm Institute speakers tonight expressed belief that United States neutrality and the condition of world markets constitute effective antidotes against the possibility of a war boom in this country.

"Certainly there is no present need to plant or breed another pound of grain, fiber or meat because of any war orders in sight," Chester Davis, member of the federal reserve board of governors, said in a prepared address.

"American farmers haven't completed the adjustments made necessary by the last war.

"If they expand their plantings in anticipation that higher prices and enlarged demand will result from this one, they will be headed for more trouble than this generation is going to be able to mop up."

Howard Coonley of New York, chairman of the board of the national association of manufacturers, said industry is vigorously opposed to a war boom and at present could not promote such a boom if it wanted to.

No Trade Expansion

In another prepared address, Coonley found possibilities of trade expansion with Europe and South America to be remote.

Loan for Finland Appears Probable

House Banking Committee Approves It by Vote of 18 to 5

Washington, Feb. 23 (AP) — Finland's chances for an additional $20,000,000 loan for non-military purchases advanced a step today when the House Banking Committee recommended a $100,000,000 increase in the export-import bank's lending capital.

Although refusing to eliminate the restrictions on use of the funds for military equipment, the committee adopted an amendment to the senate-approved bill to exempt commercial aircraft from that ban.

It also wrote in a provision which would deny loans to any country, Finland excepted, in default on its war debt payments to the United States. The committee's final vote on the bill was 18 to 5.

The bill did not specify any country to which loans could be made but Jesse Jones, federal loan administrator, had told the committee the intention was to lend Finland $20,000,000 in addition to the $10,000,000 that country previously borrowed. Jones said loans of $10,000,000 each also would be made to Sweden and Norway.

Loans would be made, he said, to Latin American countries but the bill stipulated that no country could get more than $20,000,000 from the new capital.

Mae Murray

Almost hysterical, she was calmed by friends and continued:

"I had walked out of my marriage a bankrupt—that is a matter of record. But I was building up a new fortune. I had a $120,000 contract with an English picture company, but I was forced to give it up because my boy became so desperately ill and before long my money was gone.

"From then on, it became a fight for my health, a fight so that no one would know I hadn't any money and a fight for 'face,' for it seems not to be attractive to be without money."

She testified she once sold a $5,000 chinchilla jacket for $150 to obtain funds for an operation for her son. She said she "begged and pleaded" with Mdivani to assist her and visit the boy, but without success.

She charged that the prince is living in luxury, but that a $5,000 payment when they were divorced in 1933 and $508 since were his only contributions to the boy's support.

Miss Murray told the judge she had no bank account, made not a cent during the past year, had no property—"in fact, nothing at all."

Judge Dockweiler conferred with counsel for the former actress and for Mdivani, then said he would send written interrogatories to a New York judge who would ask the son with which parent he preferred to live.

Miss Murray recently was denied her demand in New York for a writ or habeas corpus to have her son returned to her. The court ruled she was not in a position to provide the boy a satisfactory home.

The boy now is in the custody of Miss Bessie Cunning, sister of Dr. Daniel Cunning, a brain and ear specialist who performed a mastoid operation upon him.

Mdivani was in court at the afternoon session today but did not testify. During a recess Miss Murray complained to Judge Dockweiler that she was annoyed by his "sneers and face-making."

quantity of planes and men they would like there always is the prospect that great quantities of either or both would change the picture quickly.

Today's communique said there was fighting in six regions yesterday on a thirty-mile sector comprising the western half of the Karelian Isthmus, and that all Russian attacks were beaten back.

The areas of combat were along the line from Ylasomme, near the Gulf of Finland, curving slighily northward to Lake Naykki, jagging south to Kamara, almost directly south to Leipasuo, between Lakes Muola and Ayrapaan and on Lake Ayrapaan itself.

A seventh minor effort was at Salmenkaitan. Although the western side of the isthmus saw the most intense fighting, the Finns reported repulsing a Russian attack also at Taipale, on the easternmost end of the line on the shore of Lake Ladoga.

"Between Lake Muola and Lake Ayrapaan the enemy attacked twice," said the communique, "leaving behind him each time as he withdrew a battalion killed.

"An enemy force that attacked across Lake Ayrapaan at Sinkniemi was repulsed and lost about 800 killed and 100 prisoners."

The Finns reported destroying sixteen tanks on the isthmus and six more north of Lake Ladoga, where they also captured "large quantities of war material."

According to the Finns the Russians killed twelve women and children in an air raid yesterday on the town of Issalmi, behind the lines in central Finland.

The Russians dropped "a few parachute patrols" behind the lines again, according to the communique, but they "were either killed or taken prisoner."

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

The Red army's hopes of celebrating its 22nd birthday anniversary yesterday (Friday) with a smashing victory over the Finns fell far short of realization.

Not only were the stout-hearted Finns still holding out on that date along a bent but unbroken Mannerheim line, but there were insistent rumors in Scandinavia that the Franco-British Allies were preparing to take a more direct and aggressive hand in the Russo-Finnish conflict.

That impression grew out of reports that Franco-British warships and air craft had appeared in force in the Barents Sea which washes the northern coasts of Norway, Finland and Russia.

Allied naval activity on the Petsamo-Murmansk coast, is significant ,although it may not actually be incident to the Finnish-Russian conflict.

Nurmansk, Russian ice-free port on that frozen coast, is the refuge of many German ships caught at sea by the outbreak of the war. It is also the most likely destination of many of the 300 or more German ships still scattered in neutral harbors all around the world and priming for attempts to run the Allied blockade when conditions are favorable.

The time when the Russian White Sea will be free of ice is approaching. When winter's grip along the northern Russian coast breaks, chances of German shipping escaping the allied blockade and reaching friendly Russia waters will be greatly improved.

Strengthened Allied naval patrols on the Norwegian-Finnish-Russian north coast may be a routine step of the sea blockade against Germany, but it could have far more serious implications for Berlin and Moscow.

"I have never inspected the Balch home, and have no personal knowledge whatever about it, and the reference in my opinion as to conditions at the home, as well as the history of the controversy between the department and Mr. Balch, were all based on information received by me from the department, and my opinion clearly indicated the source of my information.

"Under the state law governing homes which have the control and custody of children, it seemed clear to me that the Balch home was subject to the jurisdiction of the State Department of Public Welfare and also subject to the requirement that it secure a license from that department. A penalty is provided for failure to secure a license, and in accordance with the performance of my duty as attorney general, I advised the department that in my opinion the Balch home was subject to its jurisdiction, that it could require Mr. and Mrs. Balch to take out a license, and that it could request that they be prosecuted if they continued to operate the home without a license."

Many Ask Roosevelt To Settle Altmark Seizure by British

Oslo, Feb. 23 (AP) — Authoritative sources said tonight that the Norwegian government would propose to Britain that the Altmark incident be settled by arbitration if the two countries fail to reach an agreement shortly.

No details of the arbitration plan were disclosed pending further negotiations, but it was recalled that the Oslo newspaper "Shipping Times" had suggested that the matter be submitted to a tribunal headed by President Roosevelt.

The negotiations began immediately after the incident of Feb. 16, when a British destroyer entered Norwegian territorial waters, cornered the Altmark in Gjossing Fjord and removed 299 British seamen which the Nazi vessel was transporting back to Germany as prisoners.

Six German sailors were killed in the clash, another died later in a hospital and an eighth has been reported missing.

The principal stumbling block to closing the incident has been Norway's demand that Britain return the prisoners for internment in Norway and that she pay suitable compensation.

Asked about the resignation Captain Balch sent to Patterson on Feb. 17, Judge Menefee last night commented, "Naturally, this court works very closely with the State's attorney's office, the county commissioners and other county and city officials. We have had an opportunity to examine any resignation."

In other words, Mr. Menefee and county officials aren't taking Captain Balch's resignation any too seriously at the moment.

Mr. Patterson's Move Again

So, since it's up to Mrs. Menefee to say whether the children can be moved, and since she shows no desire for having them moved, it now appears that Mr. Patterson will either have to back down, make a compromise settlement, or take the matter to court.

So, apparently, since Mrs. Menefee isn't going to act, the next move is up to Mr. Patterson.

Idle Money in Banks Hits All-Time High

Washington, Feb. 23 (AP) — Idle money in the nation's banks reached a record high of $5,630,000,000 this week.

The Federal Reserve Board said the unprecedented total was attained in the seven days ended February 21, due to an increase of $50,000,000 during the week arising from treasury gold purchases and spending.

addresses and roundtable discussions of the subject "the American farmer and the European War," closes tomorrow night. Mayor F. H. LaGuardia of New York and Assistant Secretary of State Adolf A. Berle, Jr., are on the program tomorrow noon.

Davis listed these "unpleasant medicines for boom control:"

1. Refusal to extend war credit to belligerents.
2. "Stiff and courageous taxation x x x if the patient's fever begins to rise with symptoms resembling those of the business fever that accompanied the old war."
3. Sterilization of gold purchases, a practice that "lacks sex appeal because it involves adding $35 to the national debt for each ounce that is bought."
4. Allow the federal reserve board to fix bank reserve requirements at whatever point necessary to forestall a "dangerous credit expansion."

"None of these antidotes would be popular when the time came to apply them," he said.

Illustrate His Point

Coonley attacked the illusion of war prosperity by declaring that everybody could have a job "if we employed 5,000,000 persons to make fireworks and 5,000,000 others to shoot them off — a less destructive occupation than war."

"For a time money would circulate, trade would be brisker. But the support of these workers would be a burden on the rest, and the outcome would be a lower standards of living for all."

Pleading for a continuation of neutrality, he said the United States is "not competent to dispense justice everywhere or to abolish man's inhumanity to man. Moreover, we have here at home the difficult problem of making democracy work."

Phillip Murray of Pittsburg, chairman of the steel workers organizing committee, declared in a third prepared address that the fortunes of the farmer and the laboring man are literally as intertwined as those of Jack and Jill. Cash incomes of the two groups rise and fall together, he added.

"Both farmers and labor have one basic objective in common —the maintenance of a stable level of maximum industrial production and a constant lowering of the cost of living," he said. "Like the farmer, the industrial worker suffers from the same monopoly restrictions of industrial production."

Murray termed "greatly exaggerated" the purported conflict of agriculture and the unions over wages paid to agricultural workers and over the factor of wages in industrial prices. Only one farmer out of seven hires any help at all, he said, "and wages increases sought by labor represent only a small part of the cost of goods which farmers purchase."

Roosevelt Fishes Off Cocos Island

Cocos Island, Feb. 23. (AP)—President Roosevelt fished today in the waters off this remote Pacific island famed for centuries as a Pirate hideaway and the reputed burial place of millions in treasure.

The cruiser Tuscaloosa and her attendant destroyers, the Lang and Jouett, anchored in picturesque Chatham Bay from which rise tropically verdured mounatins in which may be hidden loot which Mr. Roosevelt said was estimated at from $20,000,000 to $40,000,000.

Also anchored in the bay was the fifty-foot schooner Fiddlers Green, which brought three adventurers—Dr. Edmund Kelly, his brother, F. H. Kelly, and their nephew, Howard A. Kelly, from Baltimore on a 6,800-mile trip which started last July.

Invited aboard the Tuscaloosa, the Kellys talked to the president and told of meeting another treasure-hunting party headed by a Californian named Davenport, who reported finding treasure signs and sailed for Panama for digging equipment. The island is uninhabited.

The Tuscaloosa had orders to up anchor at noon, taking Mr. Roosevelt for a view of additional unrevealable places which might eventually prove valuable in Panama canal defense plans.

Break Police Lines

The 760 veterans of the Graf Spee battle marched in the Royal review. Londoners who had waited five hours for a glimpse of the seamen broke police lines as the king, with prime minister Chamberlain, reviewed the officers and men and bestowed decorations.

To Mrs. W. Russell, widow of a marine who refused first aid during the battle and waved on his comrades with shattered arms, the king gave the medal for conspicuous gallantry.

Queen Elizabeth watched the scene from an admiralty window, then joined the king while the bands played "Hearts of Oak."

Trafalgar Square and its environs became a mass of cheering humanity beneath the tall, smoke-stained column topped by the figure of Nelson, Britain's greatest sea hero. Confetti and streamers fluttered down.

Churchill (no Hore-Belisha enthusiast himself) spoke at a great banquet-luncheon at the Guild hall after the officers and men of the Exetert and Ajax had marched there.

Churchill Taunts Norway

He coupled praise for their Montevidio victory with a tale of its "epilogue"—the rescue by the destroyer Cossack last week of 299 British prisoners from the Spee's auxiliary ship Altmark "under the noses of the enemy and amidst tangles of one-sided neutrality." That last was a taunt at Norway's attempt to keep the British destroyer out of her territorial waters, where the Altmark was grounded and boarded.

Churchill said soberly that Britain had lost nearly 3,000 men in the war at sea but declared naval auxiliary vessels of the fleet now totalled 1,700 and that the number was increasing rapidly.

In the air-sea war, three German planes were sighted near British coasts today—off Essex, Norfolk and over Sunderland ond the Durham shore. The first may have been destroyed by anti-aircraft fire, unconfirmed reports said.

The sinking of an unidentified Norwegian ship by a German bomber was reported, and a search was under way for the crew. The British steamer Leo Dawson, 4,330 tons, was given up for lost with all hands, now that she is three weeks overdue. The Dutch Alja, 385 tons, also was listed as sunk, but there were no details.

(The "Federal Reserve" dollar has an open market value of about ten cents in U. S. currency.)

Even at these prices little flour was available, and many shop-keepers closed their doors. The public temper was rising and a few cases of looting were reported.

The impending famine was forecast last September when floods covered all valleys and most of the plains of Hopeh province. The floods took thousands of lives, and foreign relief workers predicted 25,000,000 would face starvation this Winter unless drastic measures were taken. There are 1,500,000 people in Peiping.

The affected area is under Japanese military occupation.

A. G. Hart Amazes National Farm Institute Forum Group

Des Moines, Ia., Feb. 23 (AP)—An amazed National Farm Institute forum group today heard A. G. Hart, Iowa State College economist, cast doubt on the idea that the farmer's well-being is the entire foundation of national prosperity.

"I want to urge you strongly to reconsider the idea that the farmer's prosperity is the clue to the city man's prosperity," he said. "The market for industry is largely industry itself."

Forum Leader Earl Smith of Chicago, vice president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, previously had declared that full parity payments of $607,000,000 to the farmers in 1941 would raise agricultural income $2,800,000,000.

The turnover of that amount, he continued, would add $18,200,000,000 to the national income and the federal government's added receipts and savings would reach $3,348,000,000 a year, enough to balance the budget.

Institute visitors all day had been hearing speeches on the need for raising farm income if the national economy was to get anywhere.

Hart, however, declared that probably only ten percent of the urban family's living expenses could be traced back to the farmer's pocketbook. Even though as much as twenty-five percent of a family's income may be spent for food, he said, the greater part of that cost goes for processing, transportation and the like.

"Buying power of city residents is much more important to the city than is the buying power of the country," he declared.

To the left on raised cushions sat the Dalai Lama's father, 41, in a robe of gold embroidered in green, with a skirt of rainbow striped silk. Next to him was the mother, 40, in a stiff brocaded purple robe and rainbow skirt. Next to her sat the Dalai Lama's 12-year-old brother and the brother's girl-wife. (The Dalai Lama himself is supposed to be six years old.)

After an interval the Dalai Lama entered, his chubby hands held by attendant abbots. Behind them came a regent dressed in yellow and the prime minister and incarnate Lama of Takta.

The little Dalai Lama, dressed in golden robes and a yellow conical hat, climbed briskly and confidently up the lower steps to the throne, then was lifted to his plane by the lord chamberlain and carefully wrapped with red and golden robes.

With intervals of shrill debate between two doctors of divinity and of stiff jointed dancing by boys armed with jade battle axes, the Dalai Lama conferred blessings with both hands on cabinet ministers, his parents, his brother and his brother's wife, and with one hand on other officials and monks.

From time to time tea, rice and meat were served to the Dalai Lama after the usual precautions to ensure against poison.

Later great piles of sweetmeats, bread and entire dried carcasses of yaks, bulls and sheep, with horns and tails complete, were set out on low tables in the center of the hall.

Servants of the Potala and other poor made a wild rush and despite the whips of attendants each secured what he could.

The five-hour ceremony was conducted with further debate and dance after which the Dalai Lama sent silk scarves to the principal persons present, was lifted down from the throne and withdrew.

The ninth, tenth, eleventh and twelfth Dalai Lamas died under mysterious circumstances before reaching the exercise of their power at 18. The new Dalai Lama is the supposed reincarnation of the thirteenth, who died in exile Dec. 17, 1933.

The Divine child, Ling--Erh, is said to have been born in the pasture lands of the Chinese province of Kokonor at the exact moment the 13th Dalai Lama died.

Skeptics insist, however, he is only four and a half years old.

dresses and for that reason the money was being held.

With reference to reports from an eye-witness that on Jan. 18, the British removed mails from an American clipper plane by bayonet point, the state department issued a statement saying that it had received no advices indicating that the British used force.

Says Force Used

However, a second eye-witness corroborated the story of force today. This spectator, who declined to permit the use of his name, gave an account that differed only in minor details from the one first published.

He said that when Capt. Charles A. Lorber of the Transatlantic clipper displayed unwillingness to surrender the mail, the chief British censor said:

"If you are going to be unpleasant about this, we shall have to resort to taking the mail by force."

"Then I am afraid you will have to do that," Lorber was quoted as replying.

Then "marines and soldiers" were called to enforce the censor's demands. The second eye-witness asserted that he was unable to say what kind of arms the "marines or soldiers" carried.

At Bermuda, the chief censor declared "the story of mail removal at bayonet point is utter nonsense. Lord Lothian said that reports of force were "eyewash."

Show of Force Made For Benefit of Captain

Hamilton, Bermuda, Feb. 23 (AP)—An official statement issued here tonight said British censorship officials produced "a show of force" during the removal of the first Pan-American Clipper mail to be censored here on January 18 in order to enable the Clipper's captain "to yield the mail without x x x failing in his duty as a United States mail carrier."

The report insisted that this "show of force" was produced by unarmed special constables, "without even a truncheon between them." (Persons who were present described the force as armed, either soldiers or marines. One account said they had bayonets affixed).

In the language of the report, the special constables supervised the unloading of the air mail from the Clipper after bringing a boat alongside the airport upon arrival of the plane.

After Pan-American officials made a formal protest, the report continued, "Captain (Charles A.) Lorber rightly decided that while he and the crew could take no part in the actual unloading, they should show censorship officials where the mails were stowed and unlock all compartments."

The report disclosed that the decision to examine Transatlantic mails was taken before Christmas, but was not put into practice during three weeks of bad weather which delayed the arrival of "experts" from England.

Pan-American was not warned of the impending censorship, the report added, because of the necessity for secrecy and the fact that the airline, in that event, would have required instructions from the United States government.

Janice Logan Best Undressed Woman

New York, Feb. 23. (AP)—Introducing—"the best undressed woman of the year"—Miss Janice Logan!

This "very serious" kudos was bestowed tonight by the Art Students League upon the youthful newcomer to the screen, a Chicago Junior Leaguer.

The selection was announced at the league's annual ball after the entire student body had examined photographs of actresses, burlesquers, chorines and debutantes.

The league, weary of annual selections of the country's ten best dressed women, selected there ten best undressed women—all screen actresses—in the order named:

Miss Logan, Marlene Dietrich, Dorothy Lamour, Ruth Terry, Zorina, Miriam Hopkins, Carole Landis, Shirley Ross, Ann Sheridan, Vivian Leigh.

Loan for Finland Appears Probable

House Banking Committee Approves It by Vote of 18 to 5

Washington, Feb. 23 (AP) — Finland's chances for an additional $20,000,000 loan for non-military purchases advanced a step today when the House Banking Committee recommended a $100,000,000 increase in the export-import bank's lending capital.

Although refusing to eliminate the restrictions on use of the funds for military equipment, the committee adopted an amendment to the senate-approved bill to exempt commercial aircraft from that ban.

It also wrote in a provision which would deny loans to any country, Finland excepted, in default on its war debt payments to the United States. The committee's final vote on the bill was 18 to 5.

The bill did not specify any country to which loans could be made but Jesse Jones, federal loan administrator, had told the committee the intention was to lend Finland $20,000,000 in addition to the $10,000,000 that country previously borrowed. Jones said loans of $10,000,000 each also would be made to Sweden and Norway.

Loans would be made, he said, to Latin American countries but the bill stipulated that no country could get more than $20,000,000 from the new capital.

Mae Murray

Almost hysterical, she was calmed by friends and continued:

"I had walked out of my marriage a bankrupt—that is a matter of record. But I was building up a new fortune. I had a $120,000 contract with an English picture company, but I was forced to give it up because my boy became so desperately ill and before long my money was gone.

"From then on, it became a fight for my health, a fight so that no one would know I hadn't any money and a fight for 'face,' for it seems not to be attractive to be without money."

She testified she once sold a $5,000 chinchilla jacket for $150 to obtain funds for an operation for her son. She said she "begged and pleaded" with Mdivani to assist her and visit the boy, but without success.

She charged that the prince is living in luxury, but that a $5,000 payment when they were divorced in 1933 and $508 since were his only contributions to the boy's support.

Miss Murray told the judge she had no bank account, made not a cent during the past year, had no property—"in fact, nothing at all."

Judge Dockweiler conferred with counsel for the former actress and for Mdivani, then said he would send written interrogatories to a New York judge who would ask the son with which parent he preferred to live.

Miss Murray recently was denied her demand in New York for a writ or habeas corpus to have her son returned to her. The court ruled she was not in a position to provide the boy a satisfactory home.

The boy now is in the custody of Miss Bessie Cunning, sister of Dr. Daniel Cunning, a brain and ear specialist who performed a mastoid operation upon him.

Mdivani was in court at the afternoon session today but did not testify. During a recess Miss Murray complained to Judge Dockweiler that she was annoyed by his "sneers and face-making."

Today's communique said there was fighting in six regions yesterday on a thirty-mile sector comprising the western half of the Karelian Isthmus, and that all Russian attacks were beaten back.

The areas of combat were along the line from Ylasomme, near the Gulf of Finland, curving slightly northward to Lake Naykki, jagging south to Kamara, almost directly south to Leipasuo, between Lakes Muola and Ayrapaan and on Lake Ayrapaan itself.

A seventh minor effort was at Salmenkaitan. Although the western side of the isthmus saw the most intense fighting, the Finns reported repulsing a Russian attack also at Taipale, on the easternmost end of the line on the shore of Lake Ladoga.

"Between Lake Muola and Lake Ayrapaan the enemy attacked twice," said the communique, "leaving behind him each time as he withdrew a battalion killed.

"An enemy force that attacked across Lake Ayrapaan at Sinkniemi was repulsed and lost about 800 killed and 100 prisoners."

The Finns reported destroying sixteen tanks on the isthmus and six more north of Lake Ladoga, where they also captured "large quantities of war material."

According to the Finns the Russians killed twelve women and children in an air raid yesterday on the town of Issalmi, behind the lines in central Finland.

The Russians dropped "a few parachute patrols" behind the lines again, according to the communique, but they "were either killed or taken prisoner."

The Red army's hopes of celebrating its 22nd birthday anniversary yesterday (Friday) with a smashing victory over the Finns fell far short of realization.

Not only were the stout-hearted Finns still holding out on that date along a bent but unbroken Mannerheim line, but there were insistent rumors in Scandinavia that the Franco-British Allies were preparing to take a more direct and aggressive hand in the Russo-Finnish conflict.

That impression grew out of reports that Franco-British warships and air craft had appeared in force in the Barents Sea which washes the northern coasts of Norway, Finland and Russia.

Allied naval activity on the Petsamo-Murmansk coast, is significant although it may not actually be incident to the Finnish-Russian conflict.

Nurmansk, Russian ice-free port on that frozen coast, is the refuge of many German ships caught at sea by the outbreak of the war. It is also the most likely destination of many of the 300 or more German ships still scattered in neutral harbors all around the world and priming for attempts to run the Allied blockade when conditions are favorable.

The time when the Russian White Sea will be free of ice is approaching. When winter's grip along the northern Russian coast breaks, chances of German shipping escaping the allied blockade and reaching friendly Russia waters will be greatly improved.

Strengthened Allied naval patrols on the Norwegian-Finnish-Russian north coast may be a routine step of the sea blockade against Germany, but it could have far more serious implications for Berlin and Moscow.

Many Ask Roosevelt To Settle Altmark Seizure by British

Oslo, Feb. 23 (AP) — Authoritative sources said tonight that the Norwegian government would propose to Britain that the Altmark incident be settled by arbitration if the two countries fail to reach an agreement shortly.

No details of the arbitration plan were disclosed pending further negotiations, but it was recalled that the Oslo newspaper "Shipping Times" had suggested that the matter be submitted to a tribunal headed by President Roosevelt.

The negotiations began immediately after the incident of Feb. 16, when a British destroyer entered Norwegian territorial waters, cornered the Altmark in Gjossing Fjord and removed 299 British seamen which the Nazi vessel was transporting back to Germany as prisoners.

Six German sailors were killed in the clash, another died later in a hospital and an eighth has been reported missing.

The principal stumbling block to closing the incident has been Norway's demand that Britain return the prisoners for internment in Norway and that she pay suitable compensation.

"I think you also realize that there are many instances where people have different motives from yours, and we have to have pretty rigid control over them because of the harmful effect they might have upon the lives of our youth."

Asked about the resignation Captain Balch sent to Patterson on Feb. 17, Judge Menefee last night commented, "Naturally, this court works very closely with the State's attorney's office, the county commissioners and other county and city officials. We have had an opportunity to examine any resignation."

In other words, Mr. Menefee and county officials aren't taking Captain Balch's resignation any too seriously at the moment.

Mr. Patterson's Move Again

So, since it's up to Mrs. Menefee to say whether the children can be moved, and since she shows no desire for having them moved, it now appears that Mr. Patterson will either have to back down, make a compromise settlement, or take the matter to court.

So, apparently, since Mrs. Menefee isn't going to act, the next move is up to Mr. Patterson.

Idle Money in Banks Hits All-Time High

Washington, Feb. 23 (AP) — Idle money in the nation's banks reached a record high of $5,630,000,000 this week.

The Federal Reserve Board said the unprecedented total was attained in the seven days ended February 21, due to an increase of $50,000,000 during the week arising from treasury gold purchases and spending.

Conditions

addresses and roundtable discussions of the subject "the American farmer and the European War," closes tomorrow night. Mayor F. H. LaGuardia of New York and Assistant Secretary of State Adolf A. Berle, Jr., are on the program tomorrow noon.

Davis listed these "unpleasant medicines for boom control:"

1. Refusal to extend war credit to belligerents.
2. "Stiff and courageous taxation x x x if the patient's fever begins to rise with symptoms resembling those of the business fever that accompanied the old war."
3. Sterilization of gold purchases, a practice that "lacks sex appeal because it involves adding $35 to the national debt for each ounce that is bought."
4. Allow the federal reserve board to fix bank reserve requirements at whatever point necessary to forestall a "dangerous credit expansion."

"None of these antidotes would be popular when the time came to apply them," he said.

Illustrate His Point

Coonley attacked the illusion of war prosperity by declaring that everybody could have a job "if we employed 5,000,000 persons to make fireworks and 5,000,000 others to shoot them off — a less destructive occupation than war."

"For a time money would circulate, trade would be brisker. But the support of these workers would be a burden on the rest, and the outcome would be a lower standards of living for all."

Pleading for a continuation of neutrality, he said the United States is "not competent to dispense justice everywhere or to abolish man's inhumanity to man. Moreover, we have here at home the difficult problem of making democracy work."

Phillip Murray of Pittsburg, chairman of the steel workers organizing committee, declared in a third prepared address that the fortunes of the farmer and the laboring man are literally as intertwined as those of Jack and Jill. Cash incomes of the two groups rise and fall together, he added.

"Both farmers and labor have one basic objective in common —the maintenance of a stable level of maximum industrial production and a constant lowering of the cost of living," he said. "Like the farmer, the industrial worker suffers from the same monopoly restrictions of industrial production."

Murray termed "greatly exaggerated" the purported conflict of agriculture and the unions over wages paid to agricultural workers and over the factor of wages in industrial prices. Only one farmer out of seven hires any help at all, he said, "and wages increases sought by labor represent only a small part of the cost of goods which farmers purchase."

Roosevelt Fishes Off Cocos Island

Cocos Island, Feb. 23. (AP)—President Roosevelt fished today in the waters off this remote Pacific island famed for centuries as a Pirate hideaway and the reputed burial place of millions in treasure.

The cruiser Tuscaloosa and her attendant destroyers, the Lang and Jouett, anchored in picturesque Chatham Bay from which rise tropically verdured mounatins in which may be hidden loot which Mr. Roosevelt said was estimated at from $20,000,000 to $40,000,000.

Also anchored in the bay was the fifty-foot schooner Fiddlers Green, which brought three adventurers—Dr. Edmund Kelly, his brother, F. H. Kelly, and their nephew, Howard A. Kelly, from Baltimore on a 6,800-mile trip which started last July.

Invited aboard the Tuscaloosa, the Kellys talked to the president and told of meeting another treasure-hunting party headed by a Californian named Davenport, who reported finding treasure signs and sailed for Panama for digging equipment. The island is uninhabited.

The Tuscaloosa had orders to up anchor at noon, taking Mr. Roosevelt for a view of additional unrevealable places which might eventually prove valuable in Panama canal defense plans.

Break Police Lines

The 760 veterans of the Graf Spee battle marched in the Royal review. Londoners who had waited five hours for a glimpse of the seamen broke police lines as the king, with prime minister Chamberlain, reviewed the officers and men and bestowed decorations.

To Mrs. W. Russell, widow of a marine who refused first aid during the battle and waved on his comrades with shattered arms, the king gave the medal for conspicuous gallantry.

Queen Elizabeth watched the scene from an admiralty window, then joined the king while the bands played "Hearts of Oak."

Trafalgar Square and its environs became a mass of cheering humanity beneath the tall, smoke-stained column topped by the figure of Nelson, Britain's greatest sea hero. Confetti and streamers fluttered down.

Churchill (no Hore-Belisha enthusiast himself) spoke at a great banquet-luncheon at the Guild hall after the officers and men of the Exetert and Ajax had marched there.

Churchill Taunts Norway

He coupled praise for their Montevidio victory with a tale of its "epilogue"—the rescue by the destroyer Cossack last week of 299 British prisoners from the Spee's auxiliary ship Altmark "under the noses of the enemy and amidst tangles of one-sided neutrality." That last was a taunt at Norway's attempt to keep the British destroyer out of her territorial waters, where the Altmark was grounded and boarded.

Churchill said soberly that Britain had lost nearly 3,000 men in the war at sea but declared naval auxiliary vessels of the fleet now totalled 1,700 and that the number was increasing rapidly.

In the air-sea war, three German planes were sighted near British coasts today—off Essex, Norfolk and over Sunderland ond the Durham shore. The first may have been destroyed by anti-aircraft fire, unconfirmed reports said.

The sinking of an unidentified Norwegian ship by a German bomber was reported, and a search was under way for the crew. The British steamer Leo Dawson, 4,330 tons, was given up for lost with all hands, now that she is three weeks overdue. The Dutch Alja, 385 tons, also was listed as sunk, but there were no details.

(The "Federal Reserve" dollar has an open market value of about ten cents in U. S. currency.)

Even at these prices little flour was available, and many shop-keepers closed their doors. The public temper was rising and a few cases of looting were reported.

The impending famine was forecast last September when floods covered all valleys and most of the plains of Hopeh province. The floods took thousands of lives, and foreign relief workers predicted 25,000,000 would face starvation this Winter unless drastic measures were taken. There are 1,500,000 people in Peiping.

The affected area is under Japanese military occupation.

A. G. Hart Amazes National Farm Institute Forum Group

Des Moines, Ia., Feb. 23 (AP)—An amazed National Farm Institute forum group today heard A. G. Hart, Iowa State College economist, cast doubt on the idea that the farmer's well-being is the entire foundation of national prosperity.

"I want to urge you strongly to reconsider the idea that the farmer's prosperity is the clue to the city man's prosperity," he said. "The market for industry is largely industry itself."

Forum Leader Earl Smith of Chicago, vice president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, previously had declared that full parity payments of $607,000,000 to the farmers in 1941 would raise agricultural income $2,800,000,000.

The turnover of that amount, he continued, would add $18,200,000,000 to the national income and the federal government's added receipts and savings would reach $3,348,000,000 a year, enough to balance the budget.

Institute visitors all day had been hearing speeches on the need for raising farm income if the national economy was to get anywhere.

Hart, however, declared that probably only ten percent of the urban family's living expenses could be traced back to the farmer's pocketbook. Even though as much as twenty-five percent of a family's income may be spent for food, he said, the greater part of that cost goes for processing, transportation and the like.

"Buying power of city residents is much more important to the city than is the buying power of the country," he declared.

over which the abbots wore voluminous cloaks of stiff gold and silver brocade.

To the left on raised cushions sat the Dalai Lama's father, 41, in a robe of gold embroidered in green, with a skirt of rainbow striped silk. Next to him was the mother, 40, in a stiff brocaded purple robe and rainbow skirt. Next to her sat the Dalai Lama's 12-year-old brother and the brother's girl-wife. (The Dalai Lama himself is supposed to be six years old.)

After an interval the Dalai Lama entered, his chubby hands held by attendant abbots. Behind them came a regent dressed in yellow and the prime minister and incarnate Lama of Takta.

The little Dalai Lama, dressed in golden robes and a yellow conical hat, climbed briskly and confidently up the lower steps to the throne, then was lifted to his plane by the lord chamberlain and carefully wrapped with red and golden robes.

With intervals of shrill debate between two doctors of divinity and of stiff jointed dancing by boys armed with jade battle axes, the Dalai Lama conferred blessings with both hands on cabinet ministers, his parents, his brother and his brother's wife, and with one hand on other officials and monks.

From time to time tea, rice and meat were served to the Dalai Lama after the usual precautions to ensure against poison.

Later great piles of sweetmeats, bread and entire dried carcasses of yaks, bulls and sheep, with horns and tails complete, were set out on low tables in the center of the hall.

Servants of the Potala and other poor made a wild rush and despite the whips of attendants each secured what he could.

The five-hour ceremony was conducted with further debate and dance after which the Dalai Lama sent silk scarves to the principal persons present, was lifted down from the throne and withdrew.

The ninth, tenth, eleventh and twelfth Dalai Lamas died under mysterious circumstances before reaching the exercise of their power at 18. The new Dalai Lama is the supposed reincarnation of the thirteenth, who died in exile Dec. 17, 1933.

The Divine child, Ling--Erh, is said to have been born in the pasture lands of the Chinese province of Kokonor at the exact moment the 13th Dalai Lama died.

Skeptics insist, however, he is only four and a half years old.

dresses and for that reason the money was being held.

With reference to reports from an eye-witness that on Jan. 18, the British removed mails from an American clipper plane by bayonet point, the state department issued a statement saying that it had received no advices indicating that the British used force.

Says Force Used

However, a second eye-witness corroborated the story of force today. This spectator, who declined to permit the use of his name, gave an account that differed only in minor details from the one first published.

He said that when Capt. Charles A. Lorber of the Transatlantic clipper displayed unwillingness to surrender the mail, the chief British censor said:

"If you are going to be unpleasant about this, we shall have to resort to taking the mail by force."

"Then I am afraid you will have to do that," Lorber was quoted as replying.

Then "marines and soldiers" were called to enforce the censor's demands. The second eye-witness asserted that he was unable to say what kind of arms the "marines or soldiers" carried.

At Bermuda, the chief censor declared "the story of mail removal at bayonet point is utter nonsense. Lord Lothian said that reports of force were "eyewash."

Show of Force Made For Benefit of Captain

Hamilton, Bermuda, Feb. 23 (AP)—An official statement issued here tonight said British censorship officials produced "a show of force" during the removal of the first Pan-American Clipper mail to be censored here on January 18 in order to enable the Clipper's captain "to yield the mail without x x x failing in his duty as a United States mail carrier."

The report insisted that this "show of force" was produced by unarmed special constables, "without even a truncheon between them." (Persons who were present described the force as armed, either soldiers or marines. One account said they had bayonets affixed).

In the language of the report, the special constables supervised the unloading of the air mail from the Clipper after bringing a boat alongside the airport upon arrival of the plane.

After Pan-American officials made a formal protest, the report continued, "Captain (Charles A.) Lorber rightly decided that while he and the crew could take no part in the actual unloading, they should show censorship officials where the mails were stowed and unlock all compartments."

The report disclosed that the decision to examine Transatlantic mails was taken before Christmas, but was not put into practice during three weeks of bad weather which delayed the arrival of "experts" from England.

Pan-American was not warned of the impending censorship, the report added, because of the necessity for secrecy and the fact that the airline, in that event, would have required instructions from the United States government.

Janice Logan Best Undressed Woman

New York, Feb. 23. (AP)—Introducing—"the best undressed woman of the year"—Miss Janice Logan!

This "very serious" kudos was bestowed tonight by the Art Students League upon the youthful newcomer to the screen, a Chicago Junior Leaguer.

The selection was announced at the league's annual ball after the entire student body had examined photographs of actresses, burlesquers, chorines and debutantes.

The league, weary of annual selections of the country's ten best dressed women, selected there ten best undressed women—all screen actresses—in the order named:

Miss Logan, Marlene Dietrich, Dorothy Lamour, Ruth Terry, Zorina, Miriam Hopkins, Carole Landis, Shirley Ross, Ann Sheridan, Vivian Leigh.

Planet Feature

MBS at 5:45 has scheduled a "Parade of Planets," in which the combination of five major planets in the evening sky is to be described.

Father Patrick McCarthy, S. A., director of the Ave Maria radio hour, has chosen St. Hyacinth as the subject of the Atlantic Seaboard broadcast for Sunday. Originating at Station WMCA, New York, the program is relayed through Stations WIP, Philadelphia and WCBM, Baltimore.

Hyacinth, son of a noble Polish family, carried the Gospel into Central Europe. Following his ordination in the Dominican Order at the age of 35, he set out from Rome in 1220 at the head of a band of missionaries. After preaching through Prussia, Pomerania and Russia and founding many monasteries he reached the shores of the Black Sea. He died at Cracow in 1257.

Criminal Canines Can't Return

Winchester, Ky., Two German police dogs are safe as long as they stay out of Kentucky, but if they return, it's the firing squad for them.

County Attorney J. Smith Hays, Jr., said the owner sent the dogs out of the state before issuance of warants charging them with killing sheep.

Formal trials were held, however, and County Judge Joe S. Lindsay decreed death for both dogs.

That's Gratitude

Tyler, Tex. (AP)—Just to prove how he felt about it, Brent Tolbert, nine, took the dollar he had been saving and bought the police department three pounds of candy as a reward for recovering his bicycle after it disappeared.

Planet Feature

MBS at 5:45 has scheduled a "Parade of Planets," in which the combination of five major planets in the evening sky is to be described.

Father Patrick McCarthy, S. A., director of the Ave Maria radio hour, has chosen St. Hyacinth as the subject of the Atlantic Seaboard broadcast for Sunday. Originating at Station WMCA, New York, the program is relayed through Stations WIP, Philadelphia and WCBM, Baltimore.

Hyacinth, son of a noble Polish family, carried the Gospel into Central Europe. Following his ordination in the Dominican Order at the age of 35, he set out from Rome in 1220 at the head of a band of missionaries. After preaching through Prussia, Pomerania and Russia and founding many monasteries he reached the shores of the Black Sea. He died at Cracow in 1257.

Criminal Canines Can't Return

Winchester, Ky., Two German police dogs are safe as long as they stay out of Kentucky, but if they return, it's the firing squad for them.

County Attorney J. Smith Hays, Jr., said the owner sent the dogs out of the state before issuance of warants charging them with killing sheep.

Formal trials were held, however, and County Judge Joe S. Lindsay decreed death for both dogs.

That's Gratitude

Tyler, Tex. (AP)—Just to prove how he felt about it, Brent Tolbert, nine, took the dollar he had been saving and bought the police department three pounds of candy as a reward for recovering his bicycle after it disappeared.

The Answer

NO DOUBT many have wished that economists could speak the language of the layman. If you ask an economist, for example, why today we have little spurts of upswing in business only to see it dribble out in a few short months, he will begin something like this:

"The depreciation reserves and undistributed earnings of business, plus the moderate amount of financing that has been done through banks and government agenies, add up to substantial totals available for capital expenditures. The causes of the decline in new issues are complex and controversial," and so forth and so on.

And so one stops reading.

What they try to say is this:

In 1929, businessmen knew they could put a little money into a business and be pretty certain of seeing that business succeed and show a profit. So, new business money in the form of public issues of new capital securities in 1929 totaled $5,788,000,000—enough to create a pretty fancy batch of new jobs.

In 1935 things were pretty bad generally and but $404,000,000 went into new business—still enough to create a few jobs. Business was on the way out at that time.

Then, in 1936 things looked better and $1,192,000,000 was put into new business, creating a lot more jobs. The feeling held to the next year, and $1,225,000,000 was socked into new business—some more jobs.

But along came that feeling of fear of what the administration was going to do, and the bottom fell out of American business recovery. The payroll taxes started and the horde of federal investigators started their rounds of business offices. Businessmen got scared—and look what happened.

In 1938 new investments dropped to $872,000,000 and in 1939 the amount took another dive to $371,000,000.

You can't lick old man fear. But you can lick the New Deal. That may be the answer

Happier Times in Prospect

MAJORITY POLITICAL OPINION in the United States consists of tides of conservatism alternating with an occasional tide of radicalism. The phenomenon is not exclusive with this country but occurs wherever opinion is free to express itself politically.

The ebb and flow are not regularly spaced in time, perhaps because various fortuitous factors, like war or depression, usually play a part in it. But the inevitability of change, of ebb and flow, is so well established as to suggest the presence of an underlying cause, a factor of fatigue perhaps, which might produce a regular periodicity if fortuitous factors were not also always present.

Probably it is the system, more than the people themselves, which requires change. The capitalist system must function through the operation of a myriad of individual enterprisers who must summon the confidence to enterprise. Thus the system thrives best on stability, on circumstances that promote confidence.

The effect of novel governmental measures is apt to be unsettling. They cause fear and caution, which are the reverse of enterprise. This is a fact of history. Political success by the reform party or faction usually has been followed, where it has not been immediately accompanied, by a period of bad business.

Thus periods of reform and experimentation in due course must be followed by periods of profitable calm, since the people must live.

At present it seems certain the nation stands at the turning point of a ten-year tide of radicalism. Ten years, in the light of prior experience, is a long time for a reform period to last. A conservative tide is due, if not overdue. If one is about to set in, prior experience shows the country is in for happier times.

Not without Profit

UNPLEASANT as the subject is, it is just as well to recall that the corrupt Long political machine, which has been shattered by the outraged citizens of Louisiana, enjoyed the passive help of the Roosevelt administration. That was because of the vote-gaining possibilities, which is something the administration always carefully regards.

When Huey Long, the Louisiana Kingfish, called twenty-two of his cronies on the telephone in 1932 and asked them to go to the Democratic national convention in Chicago as delegates, Franklin D. Roosevelt was nominated for president and it was the voting of Long's puppets that helped to swing the tide. Long's hand-picked men were seated through the efforts of Farley and the rightly-named delegates were thrown out of the convention.

But all this is history now, and the Long dynasty in Louisiana is also history, only a scant half-decade since the death of the Kingfish.

History contains some strange things, but nothing stranger than the story of Huey Long, dictator and president-maker. Long ruled Louisiana in about the same manner that Mussolini rules Italy. He would call the "legislature" into session, dash down to Baton Rouge from his labors at Washington and proclaim new laws to hamstring business, raise taxes and punish his enemies. As an afterthought, the "legislature" would place its stamp upon the Huey proclamations.

Several times the higher-ups in the Long gang were threatened with federal grand jury action on income tax charges and the like, but every time some mysterious force stayed the proceedings. Certain it is that the citizens of Louisiana had no help from President Roosevelt in their long struggle to throw off the Long yoke.

But the dictatorship has toppled and the state is now on the road back to an orderly republican form of government, a fact that enheartens all lovers of liberty and justice everywhere. The whole miserable experience may not be without profit. When Huey proclaimed a law making receipts and expenditures of the state treasury a secret—not even available to the newspapers—he succeeded in an accomplishment that was unique in the history of American political gangs. The outcome shows what a dangerous thing that was, and some interesting light should be now thrown upon that accomplishment.

Out of Their Mouths

WHEN Representative Joseph W. Martin Jr., Republican floor leader of the House of Representatives, declared in a Chicago speech that the American farmer is the first victim of the Roosevelt administration's misguided internationalism, he took the words right out of the mouths of the farmers of America.

When Representative Martin declared that because of reciprocal trade agreements the farmer is now forced to sell his products in his home market in competition with the products of low wages in Europe and Latin America and rice and water peasants of the Orient, he scored another bullseye.

The American farmer is as firmly opposed to the Hull reciprocal trade pacts as he is to the policies of Stalin. The American farmer is convinced that there can be no real prosperity for him until the importation of unneeded farm crops is stopped.

Terming the election of a Republican Congress as vital to recovery as the election of a Republican president, Representative Martin pointed out that, while fifty additional Republican members are needed to gain control of the House, in sixty-five districts in 1938 Republican candidates were defeated by opponents who had majorities of less than five per cent.

These districts, as Representative Martin says, appear to be already in the Republican bag.

Spiral of Reprisal

CONGRESSMEN from farm states are said to be organizing to make drastic cuts in the Navy appropriations bill, in "reprisal" for the cuts in appropriations for agriculture.

Appropriations for national defense can probably stand a little pruning, but it is the spirit of the new attitude that counts. Once the various groups in Congress begin to take measures of "reprisal" by cutting off some of the other fellow's funds when their own handout is pruned, the vicious spiral which has been upward will start downward.

A little contest in which each group would see how much it could cut from some other group would soon balance the budget.

Pals of Browder, convicted of traveling on a wrong passport, raise the "martyr" cry. They think a citizen is entitled to the doubt about his own name.

Findings of the Browser

By MARSHALL MASLIN

The Browser is telling you that if you do not read Richard Llewellyn's "How Green Was My Valley" (Macmillan), you will be missing a lovely experience. . . Some books are but words put together in strange combinations, written only because their authors wanted to "do a novel" and some come from the human heart—and if the men and women who write them have the power to transform common words into magical beauty then they are real as birth and death and hating and loving. For the Browser "How Green Was My Valley" is that kind of novel. Others may find it "sentimental and shapeless" and perhaps it is but it gave deep satisfaction to the Browser.

Marshall Maslin

Fifty years ago there was a green valley in Southern Wales. The men of the valley worked in the mines, made good wages, lived a sturdy life; the women raised their children to love God and walk straightly, but to enjoy life also and strike when struck.

Richard Llewellyn, himself a Welshman, concentrates on the boy Huw, one of the youngest of the large Morgan family. And through him is told how the ugly outer world pressed in one the green valley, blackened it with coal dust, ruined its villages with mountains of slag, and finally destroyed that good way of living. Huw, in his sixties and almost the last survivor of those lost golden days, remembers the comedy and the tragedy and the sweetness, all the excitement and the battling. But he remembers with humor and vigor and shrewdness. There's no whining in this tale of days that are gone. These Welshmen are proud and brave, they surrender their green valley defiantly, and their great song of bold humanity echoes over the battlefield of their lost cause.

That long awaited book by Eugen Stenach on his forty years of biological and medical experiments, "Sex and Life", has been written at last (and published by the Viking Press). On the jacket appears the statement that "this is a book written for all intelligent adults and especially for the reader who wishes to keep abreast of the latest scientific developments, readers who want to know more about the biology of sex; men and women particularly those in the middle and late years who will learn from this book the startling possibilities of adding years of mental and physical vigor to life". It IS a solid, instructive book, written with restrained zeal—and Dr. Steinach clears away all of the nonsense that has been floating around for twenty years about his famous "reactivation" technique. There are no leers or smirks in this book.

Bookchat: Strange item from Dr. Paul Cutright's "The Great Naturalists Explore South America": "A chicken is a pet to certain Indians of British Guiana and they would no more think of eating one than we would our favorite wire-haired terrier". . . Remember "Dynasty of Death", that novel of the munition makers by Taylor Caldwell that was a mild best seller a couple of years ago? Remember how the Browser snooted it? She has written a sequel called "The Eagles Gather"—and the Browser has not changed his opinion. . . Macmillan's first printing of 350,000 copies of "Gone With the Wind" was sold out in ten days. Now 350,000 more copies have been sold. . . The Browser is waiting eagerly for E. Arnot Robertson's spring novel, "The Blue Cloak". She's one of his favorites . . . one of those Englishwomen who wrote so much more sturdily than the modern Englishmen. . . That ought to be enough from Marsh Maslin,

Lanier Honor Backed by Many

BY EDWIN C. HILL

Edwin C. Hill

Down in the city of Baltimore, in beautiful Greenmount cemetery, there is a grave marked with a big boulder of pink Georgia granite. And inscribed on the brass plate affixed to the gravestone is this striking line: "I am lit with the sun." It is the gravestone of one of the foremost poets of America, Sidney Lanier, musician, scholar, poet and Southern gentleman par excellence—the Lord Byron of his time, but a Byron who was a gentleman in more than rank and name.

The name of the poet Lanier comes into the news as candidates are placed before the College of Electors of the Hall of Fame of New York University. Sidney Lanier, author of many great and beautiful poems—"Sunrise", "The Marshes of Glynn," "The Symphony," "Psalm of the West," the "Ballad of Trees" and "The Master", probably the finest poem on Easter ever written—belongs to the great company of Bryant, Poe, Emerson, Longfellow, Whittier, Holmes and Lowell, and is probably the most distinguished nominee this year for the Hall of Fame, an honor to which his worth and genius clearly entitle his memory.

Have Wide Support

The Daughters of the Southern Confederacy are ardently supporting the claims of Sidney Lanier to a niche in the famous Hall; in fact, the whole South is behind the appeal to the College of Electors. At Johns Hopkins University, in Baltimore, on the ninety-eighth anniversary of the poet's birth, there was a meeting to give impetus to the movement, at which the young Governor O'Conor of Maryland and President Isaiah Bowman of the University were the speakers.

The College of Electors of the Hall of Fame meets every five years. The next meeting will be this year in June. The College is made of about one hundred university presidents, scientists, editors, professors, historians, artists and judges. It is difficult to see how they can pass over the claims of the Lord Byron of the South.

Painting Battle Scenes

The British War Office has sent Miss Gwen Le Gallienne to the Western Front to paint battle scenes. John Bull feeling fairly secure of himself, one feels, to take care of such little details as making sure that coming generations of British peoples will know what the war was all about.

Gwen Le Gallienne is known over here not only as a very gifted painter and sculptor but as a half-sister of Eva Le Gallienne, that lady whose name, some thirteen years ago, suddenly leaped forth on Broadway in six-foot letters of fire. The Death Watch of the New York stage ceased its sepulchral croaking and combed the dictionary for new superlativse to glimmer in her diadem.

Down under the clanking old elevated railroad, in the grime and gloom of old Fourteenth street, she launched a ship of ideals. She took hold of a decrepit old music hall, long abandoned to melodrama and cheap pictures, and with her own hands and brains created the Civic Reportory Theatre. She was her own star, stage director, producer, costume-designer and play-reader. While the big houses up Broadway languished and closed their doors, Eva Le Gallienne's Civic Repertory thrived like the greatest of all bay trees.

Made a Doctor

Russell Sage College, at Troy, New York, peered over its glasses at this amazing woman and made her a Doctor of Letters. With it went this citation: "Few braver or more useful ventures have ever been launched." The late Otto Kahn once said of her, "She's courageous, eager, far sighted and a little hard-boiled."

The scholarly Hoosier, the Minister to Nicaragua, Meredith Nicholson, is home with Mrs. Nicholson for a vacation. One of Indiana's outstanding novelists, Nicholson belongs with the Hoosier immortals, Lew Wallace, James Whitcomb Riley, George Ade, Booth Tarkington, the McCutcheons, George and John. He thinks that the sports writers of America are turning out the best literary product going. I entirely agree with him.

Vivid Writing

The most colorful, vivid,, dramatic, easy-flowing, flexible, diverting writing you'll find anywhere flows from the typewriters of the sporting columnists, fellows like Damon Runyon and Bill Corum, Dan Parker, Frankie Graham and Wilbur Wood, John Kieran, Joe Williams, Jimmy Powers and many more, of course.

These lads are not entirely muscle-bound. They are not all tightened up by that peculiar form of self consciousness which so often paralyzes free expression. They are top-flight golfers with a beautifully free-flowing swing. Too seldom do they get the commendation due them as literary critics cast wreaths of laurel around the receding brows of false alarms.—Copyright, 1940, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Wisecrack Smearing of Constructive Republican Program Report Falls Flat

By FRANKLYN WALTMAN

Since the submission of the report of the Republican Program committee, the New Deal ballyhoo boys and smear men will be stopped from saying that the Republicans are without a constructive program. For in that report is a program of constructive action of which any American political party might be proud.

Of course, it is not to be supposed that the New Dealers will not continue to try to cover up their failures by asserting that their opposition is without constructive, remedial plans. But when they do, just ask the simple question: "How about the report of the Republican program committee?"

The odds are at least ten to one that the vociferous crier that the Republicans have nothing better to offer will not have read that document—will not even have read the extensive synopsis of it—published by newspapers in all parts of the country.

Smear Efforts Commence

We offer such odds because of close association with the New Dealers here in Washington (we think we know their type of mind) and because already efforts have been made to smear the Republican Program committee report by glib generalities and wise-cracks on the part of persons who had not had an opportunity to read it in full.

We are thinking particularly of that great Mississippi wind-bag, Representative John E. Rankin, who talks first and thinks afterward, if at all. No sooner had the report been made public—and before Mr. Rankin had an opportunity to read the document in full—this Mississippi bubble declared that it should have been printed in Braille because it was conceived in the dark and should be read in the dark.

This was the worst which the Democratic brain trust could think up about the report the first day. Instead of injuring the work of the Program committee it made it glisten all the brighter. Republicans who had not read the report came to the conclusion that it must be a pretty good job if that was all the New Dealers could say about it.

Are They Just Charlatans?

Now Mr. Rankin or the Democratic "smear" chieftain, Charles Michelson, or Jim Farley or President Roosevelt or anyone else has a perfect right to criticize the report of the Republican Program committee. They have a right to disagree with it. But if they wish the country to regard them as other than charlatans and demagogues, they should base their criticism on something more solid than cheap wise-cracking. They should get down to facts and point out exactly what is wrong with the findings and recommendations of the Republican Program committee.

Let them come forth and in a dignified manner undertake to debate the merits of this report and its recommendations. Let them defend the New Deal against the criticisms of this report. They will find eager and willing supporters of the report to debate and discuss with them. If they cannot do this, then let them keep their silence, for the country is in no mood for wise-cracking about the serious situation in which it finds itself.

Even though this report has been hailed favorably from coast to coast by newspaper editorial pages of all complexions of political thought, the Republican Program committee may not have the right answer to what is wrong with our country. But at least this committee of 200 outstanding men and women in all walks of life made an honest, sincere and intelligent effort to find out. They eschewed all partisanship in their work and in their report. They tried to be—and we believe were realistic in their findings.

New Deal Has Failed

Their work at least serves as a basis for discussion—and that we should have during the next three months for the good of our country. If they are wrong, let's find the correct answer. There is evidence on all sides that the New Deal—despite some meritious undertakings—has been a failure—has failed miserably to solve the problem of 9,000,000 unemployed. It has failed to bring back a normal and lasting economic recovery—and until that is done all the social reforms undertaken count for little.

By all means read the report of the Republican Program committee in full. Calmly discuss it with your neighbors and fellow workers. Insist that criticisms of the report be based on fact and not the devices of the smear artist and the propagandist. Check what is said about the report against the assertions in it.

If this report stimulates honest, calm thinking and discussion, Republicans will feel the job has been worthwhile, even if you disagree with the findings in the end. For the report then will serve the purpose carried out by the Federalist papers at the time of the adoption of the constitution when our forefathers left us a heritage of serious, honest thinking in behalf of the general welfare.

Montclair Shows It Can Be Done

From the New York Herald Tribune

Over the generations Montclair, N. J., has built up a national reputation for civic-mindedness. One searches for an explanation why this small city should continue to demonstrate with so few lapses how municipal affairs may be conducted to produce a maximum of efficient public service within a thrifty budget. It includes in its population, to be sure, a generous proportion of relatively prosperous New York commuters, a breed proverbially insistent on both modern conveniences and solvency. But there are plenty of other communities hereabouts of the same social consistency and, for that matter, in every other large metropolitan area. Yet none has seemed quite able to compete with Montclair as the model municipal housekeeper.

And now we find her establishing a new record with a surplus of $500,000 in her treasury accumulated from last year's administration of her government, this on top of a reduction of taxes. x x x

Montclair is governed by a town commission made up of four Republicans, of whom Mayor Speers is one, and one Democrat. Mayor Speers is a New York business executive. He understands the art of making both ends meet without victimizing his customers. He also understands that thrift is an American ideal and is best exercised politically when the public is asked to take a hand. In short, he and Montclair have hit upon a formula for running a government within its income while even reducing its burden on the taxpayer, which puts to shame all the excuses elsewhere that it can't be done. It can be done both locally and nationally by executives with the proper will and training who accept the people as partners.

This accomplishment has taken place in a typical New York suburb. Similar tidings have arrived from communities as unlike one another as Atlanta, Ga., one of the important cities of the South, and Redding, Conn., a typical, small New England village. Evidently there is no city or village to which the principles of business economy are not applicable. But the example of Montclair is a particularly outstanding one. May its moral be studied and followed throughout the country!

Millions of Air Raiders

From the Charleston, W. Va., Gazette

Five million persons were passengers in airplanes last year. This is the figure of the Civil Aeronautics Authority and covers private and commercial flying in the United States and foreign lands. It is not concerned with military and naval aviation nor with experimental flying.

The passenger total represents an increase of fifty-five per cent over that of 1938, and was made possible, the CAA believes, by the great advance in safety. As the public realizes that it is increasingly safe to travel by aid, more people proceed to do so. There have been serious airline accidents abroad in recent weeks, but in the United States, the scheduled commercial airlines have made an amazing record of passenger miles flown over a period of eight months without a fatal accident.

The reasons for such a record are listed. They include improved radio aids, beacon lights, weather reports, emergency landing fields, and so on. Planes become steadily better and pilots are thoroughly trained and competent.

This does not mean that there will be no more accidents on scheduled flights. It does mean that causes of accidents are being eliminated and overcome as far as is humanly possible, and that aviation has taken its place beside the other modes of transpotation with the hazards reduced to a minimum.

The Answer

NO DOUBT many have wished that economists could speak the language of the layman. If you ask an economist, for example, why today we have little spurts of upswing in business only to see it dribble out in a few short months, he will begin something like this:

"The depreciation reserves and undistributed earnings of business, plus the moderate amount of financing that has been done through banks and government agenies, add up to substantial totals available for capital expenditures. The causes of the decline in new issues are complex and controversial," and so forth and so on.

And so one stops reading.

What they try to say is this:

In 1929, businessmen knew they could put a little money into a business and be pretty certain of seeing that business succeed and show a profit. So, new business money in the form of public issues of new capital securities in 1929 totaled $5,788,000,000—enough to create a pretty fancy batch of new jobs.

In 1935 things were pretty bad generally and but $404,000,000 went into new business—still enough to create a few jobs. Business was on the way out at that time.

Then, in 1936 things looked better and $1,192,000,000 was put into new business, creating a lot more jobs. The feeling held to the next year, and $1,225,000,000 was socked into new business—some more jobs.

But along came that feeling of fear of what the administration was going to do, and the bottom fell out of American business recovery. The payroll taxes started and the horde of federal investigators started their rounds of business offices. Businessmen got scared—and look what happened.

In 1938 new investments dropped to $872,000,000 and in 1939 the amount took another dive to $371,000,000.

You can't lick old man fear. But you can lick the New Deal. That may be the answer

Happier Times in Prospect

MAJORITY POLITICAL OPINION in the United States consists of tides of conservatism alternating with an occasional tide of radicalism. The phenomenon is not exclusive with this country but occurs wherever opinion is free to express itself politically.

The ebb and flow are not regularly spaced in time, perhaps because various fortuitous factors, like war or depression, usually play a part in it. But the inevitability of change, of ebb and flow, is so well established as to suggest the presence of an underlying cause, a factor of fatigue perhaps, which might produce a regular periodicity if fortuitous factors were not also always present.

Probably it is the system, more than the people themselves, which requires change. The capitalist system must function through the operation of a myriad of individual enterprisers who must summon the confidence to enterprise. Thus the system thrives best on stability, on circumstances that promote confidence.

The effect of novel governmental measures is apt to be unsettling. They cause fear and caution, which are the reverse of enterprise. This is a fact of history. Political success by the reform party or faction usually has been followed, where it has not been immediately accompanied, by a period of bad business.

Thus periods of reform and experimentation in due course must be followed by periods of profitable calm, since the people must live.

At present it seems certain the nation stands at the turning point of a ten-year tide of radicalism. Ten years, in the light of prior experience, is a long time for a reform period to last. A conservative tide is due, if not overdue. If one is about to set in, prior experience shows the country is in for happier times.

Not without Profit

UNPLEASANT as the subject is, it is just as well to recall that the corrupt Long political machine, which has been shattered by the outraged citizens of Louisiana, enjoyed the passive help of the Roosevelt administration. That was because of the vote-gaining possibilities, which is something the administration always carefully regards.

When Huey Long, the Louisiana Kingfish, called twenty-two of his cronies on the telephone in 1932 and asked them to go to the Democratic national convention in Chicago as delegates, Franklin D. Roosevelt was nominated for president and it was the voting of Long's puppets that helped to swing the tide. Long's hand-picked men were seated through the efforts of Farley and the rightly-named delegates were thrown out of the convention.

But all this is history now, and the Long dynasty in Louisiana is also history, only a scant half-decade since the death of the Kingfish.

History contains some strange things, but nothing stranger than the story of Huey Long, dictator and president-maker. Long ruled Louisiana in about the same manner that Mussolini rules Italy. He would call the "legislature" into session, dash down to Baton Rouge from his labors at Washington and proclaim new laws to hamstring business, raise taxes and punish his enemies. As an afterthought, the "legislature" would place its stamp upon the Huey proclamations.

Several times the higher-ups in the Long gang were threatened with federal grand jury action on income tax charges and the like, but every time some mysterious force stayed the proceedings. Certain it is that the citizens of Louisiana had no help from President Roosevelt in their long struggle to throw off the Long yoke.

But the dictatorship has toppled and the state is now on the road back to an orderly republican form of government, a fact that enheartens all lovers of liberty and justice everywhere. The whole miserable experience may not be without profit. When Huey proclaimed a law making receipts and expenditures of the state treasury a secret—not even available to the newspapers—he succeeded in an accomplishment that was unique in the history of American political gangs. The outcome shows what a dangerous thing that was, and some interesting light should be now thrown upon that accomplishment.

Out of Their Mouths

WHEN Representative Joseph W. Martin Jr., Republican floor leader of the House of Representatives, declared in a Chicago speech that the American farmer is the first victim of the Roosevelt administration's misguided internationalism, he took the words right out of the mouths of the farmers of America.

When Representative Martin declared that because of reciprocal trade agreements the farmer is now forced to sell his products in his home market in competition with the products of low wages in Europe and Latin America and rice and water peasants of the Orient, he scored another bullseye.

The American farmer is as firmly opposed to the Hull reciprocal trade pacts as he is to the policies of Stalin. The American farmer is convinced that there can be no real prosperity for him until the importation of unneeded farm crops is stopped.

Terming the election of a Republican Congress as vital to recovery as the election of a Republican president, Representative Martin pointed out that, while fifty additional Republican members are needed to gain control of the House, in sixty-five districts in 1938 Republican candidates were defeated by opponents who had majorities of less than five per cent.

These districts, as Representative Martin says, appear to be already in the Republican bag.

Spiral of Reprisal

CONGRESSMEN from farm states are said to be organizing to make drastic cuts in the Navy appropriations bill, in "reprisal" for the cuts in appropriations for agriculture.

Appropriations for national defense can probably stand a little pruning, but it is the spirit of the new attitude that counts. Once the various groups in Congress begin to take measures of "reprisal" by cutting off some of the other fellow's funds when their own handout is pruned, the vicious spiral which has been upward will start downward.

A little contest in which each group would see how much it could cut from some other group would soon balance the budget.

Pals of Browder, convicted of traveling on a wrong passport, raise the "martyr" cry. They think a citizen is entitled to the doubt about his own name.

For the Browser "How Green Was My Valley" is that kind of novel. Others may find it "sentimental and shapeless" and perhaps it is but it gave deep satisfaction to the Browser.

Marshall Maslin

Fifty years ago there was a green valley in Southern Wales. The men of the valley worked in the mines, made good wages, lived a sturdy life; the women raised their children to love God and walk straightly, but to enjoy life also and strike when struck.

Richard Llewellyn, himself a Welshman, concentrates on the boy Huw, one of the youngest of the large Morgan family. And through him is told how the ugly outer world pressed in one the green valley, blackened it with coal dust, ruined its villages with mountains of slag, and finally destroyed that good way of living. Huw, in his sixties and almost the last survivor of those lost golden days, remembers the comedy and the tragedy and the sweetness, all the excitement and the battling. But he remembers with humor and vigor and shrewdness. There's no whining in this tale of days that are gone. These Welshmen are proud and brave, they surrender their green valley defiantly, and their great song of bold humanity echoes over the battlefield of their lost cause.

That long awaited book by Eugen Steinach on his forty years of biological and medical experiments, "Sex and Life", has been written at last (and published by the Viking Press). On the jacket appears the statement that "this is a book written for all intelligent adults and especially for the reader who wishes to keep abreast of the latest scientific developments, readers who want to know more about the biology of sex; men and women particularly those in the middle and late years who will learn from this book the startling possibilities of adding years of mental and physical vigor to life". It IS a solid, instructive book, written with restrained zeal—and Dr. Steinach clears away all of the nonsense that has been floating around for twenty years about his famous "reactivation" technique. There are no leers or smirks in this book.

Bookchat: Strange item from Dr. Paul Cutright's "The Great Naturalists Explore South America": "A chicken is a pet to certain Indians of British Guiana and they would no more think of eating one than we would our favorite wire-haired terrier". . . Remember "Dynasty of Death", that novel of the munition makers by Taylor Caldwell that was a mild best seller a couple of years ago? Remember how the Browser snooted it? She has written a sequel called "The Eagles Gather"—and the Browser has not changed his opinion. . . Macmillan's first printing of 350,000 copies of "Gone With the Wind" was sold out in ten days. Now 350,000 more copies have been sold. . . The Browser is waiting eagerly for E. Arnot Robertson's spring novel, "The Blue Cloak". She's one of his favorites . . . one of those Englishwomen who wrote so much more sturdily than the modern Englishmen. . . That ought to be enough from Marsh Maslin,

Lanier Honor Backed by Many

Edwin C. Hill

Down in the city of Baltimore, in beautiful Greenmount cemetery, there is a grave marked with a big boulder of pink Georgia granite. And inscribed on the brass plate affixed to the gravestone is this striking line: "I am lit with the sun." It is the gravestone of one of the foremost poets of America, Sidney Lanier, musician, scholar, poet and Southern gentleman par excellence—the Lord Byron of his time, but a Byron who was a gentleman in more than rank and name.

The name of the poet Lanier comes into the news as candidates are placed before the College of Electors of the Hall of Fame of New York University. Sidney Lanier, author of many great and beautiful poems—"Sunrise", "The Marshes of Glynn," "The Symphony," "Psalm of the West," the "Ballad of Trees" and "The Master", probably the finest poem on Easter ever written—belongs to the great company of Bryant, Poe, Emerson, Longfellow, Whittier, Holmes and Lowell, and is probably the most distinguished nominee this year for the Hall of Fame, an honor to which his worth and genius clearly entitle his memory.

Have Wide Support

The Daughters of the Southern Confederacy are ardently supporting the claims of Sidney Lanier to a niche in the famous Hall; in fact, the whole South is behind the appeal to the College of Electors. At Johns Hopkins University, in Baltimore, on the ninety-eighth anniversary of the poet's birth, there was a meeting to give impetus to the movement, at which the young Governor O'Conor of Maryland and President Isaiah Bowman of the University were the speakers.

The College of Electors of the Hall of Fame meets every five years. The next meeting will be this year in June. The College is made of about one hundred university presidents, scientists, editors, professors, historians, artists and judges. It is difficult to see how they can pass over the claims of the Lord Byron of the South.

Painting Battle Scenes

The British War Office has sent Miss Gwen Le Gallienne to the Western Front to paint battle scenes. John Bull feeling fairly secure of himself, one feels, to take care of such little details as making sure that coming generations of British peoples will know what the war was all about.

Gwen Le Gallienne is known over here not only as a very gifted painter and sculptor but as a half-sister of Eva Le Gallienne, that lady whose name, some thirteen years ago, suddenly leaped forth on Broadway in six-foot letters of fire. The Death Watch of the New York stage ceased its sepulchral croaking and combed the dictionary for new superlativse to glimmer in her diadem.

Down under the clanking old elevated railroad, in the grime and gloom of old Fourteenth street, she launched a ship of ideals. She took hold of a decrepit old music hall, long abandoned to melodrama and cheap pictures, and with her own hands and brains created the Civic Reportory Theatre. She was her own star, stage director, producer, costume-designer and play-reader. While the big houses up Broadway languished and closed their doors, Eva Le Gallienne's Civic Repertory thrived like the greatest of all bay trees.

Wisecrack Smearing of Constructive Republican Program Report Falls Flat

By FRANKLYN WALTMAN

Since the submission of the report of the Republican Program committee, the New Deal ballyhoo boys and smear men will be stopped from saying that the Republicans are without a constructive program. For in that report is a program of constructive action of which any American political party might be proud.

Of course, it is not to be supposed that the New Dealers will not continue to try to cover up their failures by asserting that their opposition is without constructive, remedial plans. But when they do, just ask the simple question: "How about the report of the Republican program committee?"

The odds are at least ten to one that the vociferous crier that the Republicans have nothing better to offer will not have read that document—will not even have read the extensive synopsis of it—published by newspapers in all parts of the country.

Smear Efforts Commence

We offer such odds because of close association with the New Dealers here in Washington (we think we know their type of mind) and because already efforts have been made to smear the Republican Program committee report by glib generalities and wise-cracks on the part of persons who had not had an opportunity to read it in full.

We are thinking particularly of that great Mississippi wind-bag, Representative John E. Rankin, who talks first and thinks afterward, if at all. No sooner had the report been made public—and before Mr. Rankin had an opportunity to read the document in full—this Mississippi bubble declared that it should have been printed in Braille because it was conceived in the dark and should be read in the dark.

This was the worst which the Democratic brain trust could think up about the report the first day. Instead of injuring the work of the Program committee it made it glisten all the brighter. Republicans who had not read the report came to the conclusion that it must be a pretty good job if that was all the New Dealers could say about it.

Are They Just Charlatans?

Now Mr. Rankin or the Democratic "smear" chieftain, Charles Michelson, or Jim Farley or President Roosevelt or anyone else has a perfect right to criticize the report of the Republican Program committee. They have a right to disagree with it. But if they wish the country to regard them as other than charlatans and demagogues, they should base their criticism on something more solid than cheap wise-cracking. They should get down to facts and point out exactly what is wrong with the findings and recommendations of the Republican Program committee.

Let them come forth and in a dignified manner undertake to debate the merits of this report and its recommendations. Let them defend the New Deal against the criticisms of this report. They will find eager and willing supporters of the report to debate and discuss with them. If they cannot do this, then let them keep their silence, for the country is in no mood for wise-cracking about the serious situation in which it finds itself.

Even though this report has been hailed favorably from coast to coast by newspaper editorial pages of all complexions of political thought, the Republican Program committee may not have the right answer to what is wrong with our country. But at least this committee of 200 outstanding men and women in all walks of life made an honest, sincere and intelligent effort to find out. They eschewed all partisanship in their work and in their report. They tried to be—and we believe were realistic in their findings.

New Deal Has Failed

Their work at least serves as a basis for discussion—and that we should have during the next three months for the good of our country. If they are wrong, let's find the correct answer. There is evidence on all sides that the New Deal—despite some meritious undertakings—has been a failure—has failed miserably to solve the problem of 9,000,000 unemployed. It has failed to bring back a normal and lasting economic recovery—and until that is done all the social reforms undertaken count for little.

By all means read the report of the Republican Program committee in full. Calmly discuss it with your neighbors and fellow workers. Insist that criticisms of the report be based on fact and not the devices of the smear artist and the propagandist. Check what is said about the report against the assertions in it.

If this report stimulates honest, calm thinking and discussion, Republicans will feel the job has been worthwhile, even if you disagree with the findings in the end. For the report then will serve the purpose carried out by the Federalist papers at the time of the adoption of the constitution when our forefathers left us a heritage of serious, honest thinking in behalf of the general welfare.

Montclair Shows It Can Be Done

From the New York Herald Tribune

Over the generations Montclair, N. J., has built up a national reputation for civic-mindedness. One searches for an explanation why this small city should continue to demonstrate with so few lapses how municipal affairs may be conducted to produce a maximum of efficient public service within a thrifty budget. It includes in its population, to be sure, a generous proportion of relatively prosperous New York commuters, a breed proverbially insistent on both modern conveniences and solvency. But there are plenty of other communities hereabouts of the same social consistency and, for that matter, in every other large metropolitan area. Yet none has seemed quite able to compete with Montclair as the model municipal housekeeper.

And now we find her establishing a new record with a surplus of $500,000 in her treasury accumulated from last year's administration of her government, this on top of a reduction of taxes. x x x

Montclair is governed by a town commission made up of four Republicans, of whom Mayor Speers is one, and one Democrat. Mayor Speers is a New York business executive. He understands the art of making both ends meet without victimizing his customers. He also understands that thrift is an American ideal and is best exercised politically when the public is asked to take a hand. In short, he and Montclair have hit upon a formula for running a government within its income while even reducing its burden on the taxpayer, which puts to shame all the excuses elsewhere that it can't be done. It can be done both locally and nationally by executives with the proper will and training who accept the people as partners.

This accomplishment has taken place in a typical New York suburb. Similar tidings have arrived from communities as unlike one another as Atlanta, Ga., one of the important cities of the South, and Redding, Conn., a typical, small New England village. Evidently there is no city or village to which the principles of business economy are not applicable. But the example of Montclair is a particularly outstanding one. May its moral be studied and followed throughout the country!

Millions of Air Raiders

From the Charleston, W. Va., Gazette

Five million persons were passengers in airplanes last year. This is the figure of the Civil Aeronautics Authority and covers private and commercial flying in the United States and foreign lands. It is not concerned with military and naval aviation nor with experimental flying.

The passenger total represents an increase of fifty-five per cent over that of 1938, and was made possible, the CAA believes, by the great advance in safety. As the public realizes that it is increasingly safe to travel by aid, more people proceed to do so. There have been serious airline accidents abroad in recent weeks, but in the United States, the scheduled commercial airlines have made an amazing record of passenger miles flown over a period of eight months without a fatal accident.

The reasons for such a record are listed. They include improved radio aids, beacon lights, weather reports, emergency landing fields, and so on. Planes become steadily better and pilots are thoroughly trained and competent.

This does not mean that there will be no more accidents on scheduled flights. It does mean that causes of accidents are being eliminated and overcome as far as is humanly possible, and that aviation has taken its place beside the other modes of transpotation with the hazards reduced to a minimum.

REVERSE CURE

There Was Only One Way to Make Mary See the Light and That Was to Close Her Eyes for a While.

By CECIL M. HARSH

The handsome but haggard young man seated across the desk from Dr. Winters shifted impatiently in his chair. He smoked innumerable cigarettes with short, jerky puffs. His eyes were bloodshot. His tweeds looked slept in.

Dr. Winters studied his nervous visitor carefully. He ran his hands through his thin white hair. His concern was evident as he leaned forward questioningly.

Phil Scott stopped the incessant drumming of his fingers. "I guess you know Mary and me have separated."

"Mary won't see me."

"Yes. Can I do anything?" Dr. Winters sympathized. "I'll do anything I can."

Phil's voice was husky. "Thanks, Doc." He breathed more easily now, but hurried on. "Maybe you could talk to Mary. She'll listen to you."

Dr. Winters set a chipped old pipe between his teeth. "Perhaps if you explain what the trouble is all about——"

"That's just it, Doc. There wasn't any real trouble at first. We had a crazy little argument about a week-end party or something just as trivial. Anyway, the important thing was that we both lost our tempers and said quite a few things that hurt. If it had only stopped there! But it didn't. We ended up tearing each other apart, fault by fault."

Phil Scott's hands were trembling as he paused to light another cigarette. He took a few deep puffs before he continued.

"Then Mary threatened to leave, but like a fool I walked out first. When I cooled off and went back, she was gone. I was too proud to crawl to her right then. Now it's too late; Mary won't see me."

"Take it easy, Phil. We'll find a way."

Phil was bitter. "Then we'll have to hurry. The divorce hearing is tomorrow."

"That soon!"

Dr. Winters twisted the worn gold band on his left hand reflectively.

"If I could arrange it so you could be alone with Mary for a while, do you think you two could patch things up?"

"I am positive we could. All I want is the chance," Phil said confidently.

"Good. I think I can arrange it."

Phil Scott's shoulders squared a little. "I certainly hope you are right Doc. How soon do you think you can make it?"

"Not until the trial, Phil. It won't be so obvious then. If it looked as though we had planned it, you might lose your chance. You just be ready when the time comes."

Dr. Winters merely nodded as Phil left.

He searched through a yellowed drug encyclopedia. When he found the formula he called a drugstore and had them get the prescription ready. He then telephoned Judge Roberts. He had treated countless patients to help make them well, but this was the first time he had ever planned to make one sick.

At 10 o'clock the next morning Dr. Winters took a conspicuous seat in the front row of the courtroom. Between Judge Roberts and himself, Mary and Phil Scott were seated with their lawyers.

Mary, nervous and strained, was a very lovely young woman. Her dark brown eyes were tearful but defiant. It was apparent she regretted this farce, but her stout pride was even more apparent.

Phil Scott, a few feet away, was trying to appear calm without much success. It was obvious he would have much preferred action to this orderly procedure of the law. He looked to Dr. Winters for reassurance.

Dr. Winters extended crossed fingers. He wished he felt as confident as he hoped he looked.

Mary Scott's attorney was completing his opening plea:

"And I will prove to this court's satisfaction that Mrs. Scott has suffered sufficient mental agonies to warrant complete divorce." He paused eloquently. "Now, your Honor, I would like to call Mrs. Scott to the stand."

Dr. Winters signaled to Judge Roberts.

"The court declares a 10-minute recess," Judge Roberts ordered, ignoring the lawyer's protest.

Dr. Winters waited outside the court room for Mary Scott. "Here are a couple of tablets to settle your nerves, Mary."

"Thanks, Doctor," Mary said softly.

Well, that's over, Dr. Winters thought. If the medicine don't work too quickly, Mary should get sick about the time she took the stand.

Mary was called to testify as soon as the hearing was resumed. Dr. Winters watched her closely as she walked to the stand. She sat down unsteadily. She tugged nervously on the corners of her handkerchief. She looked lost in the large, cold chair.

"Please, I don't feel like testifying now," she sobbed.

"There, your Honor, is vivid proof of my client's distraught condition," her lawyer shouted dramatically.

"Quiet!" Judge Roberts snapped. "As the woman's physician I claim she is too ill to continue," Dr. Winters shouted above the confusion.

Mary nodded in dumb agreement. Then she fainted.

Phil rushed to his fallen wife.

Dr. Winters pushed forward and massaged Mary's wrists. He hoped Phil would realize that this was his chance. He had done his part. "Here, Phil, help me take Mary to the judge's chamber."

Phil smiled. "I don't need help now, Doc, and thanks." He picked up Mary tenderly and carried her through the door.

"I don't guess it will be necessary for you to look after Mrs. Scott," Judge Roberts said, "Anyway they sound all right."

Proper Allowances for Depreciation Are Explained

The amount to be recovered by depreciation is the cost of the property, if acquired by purchase after February 28, 1913. If acquired by purchase prior to March 1, 1913, the basis is the cost of the property, less depreciation sustained prior to March 1, 1913, or the fair market value on March 1, 1913, whichever is greater.

The proper allowance for depreciation is that amount which should be set aside for the taxable year in accordance with a reasonably consistent plan (not necessarily a uniform rate) whereby the aggregate amount so set aside, plus the salvage value, will at the end of the useful life of the property equal the cost of other basis of the property.

The depreciation rate of a building is not based upon the number of years it will stand before being condemned and razed but on the number of years it will remain habitable or serviceable, for the purpose for which constructed.

If the taxpayer builds a new building, the period over which depreciation may be claimed begins at the time the building is completed and capable of being used. Buildings under construction are not subject to a depreciation allowance.

If it is clearly shown that, because of economic or other conditions, property must be abandoned at a date prior to the end of its normal useful life, so that depreciation deductions alone are insufficient to return the cost or other basis, a reasonable deduction for obsolescence may be allowed in addition to depreciation. No deduction for obsolescence is permitted because, in the opinion of the taxpayer, the property may become obsolete at some future date.

Anyway, the important thing was that we both lost our tempers and said quite a few things that hurt. If it had only stopped there! But it didn't. We ended up tearing each other apart, fault by fault."

Phil Scott's hands were trembling as he paused to light another cigarette. He took a few deep puffs before he continued.

"Then Mary threatened to leave, but like a fool I walked out first. When I cooled off and went back, she was gone. I was too proud to crawl to her right then. Now it's too late; Mary won't see me."

"Take it easy, Phil. We'll find a way."

Phil was bitter. "Then we'll have to hurry. The divorce hearing is tomorrow."

"That soon!"

Dr. Winters twisted the worn gold band on his left hand reflectively.

"If I could arrange it so you could be alone with Mary for a while, do you think you two could patch things up?"

"I am positive we could. All I want is the chance," Phil said confidently.

"Good. I think I can arrange it."

Phil Scott's shoulders squared a little. "I certainly hope you are right Doc. How soon do you think you can make it?"

"Not until the trial, Phil. It won't be so obvious then. If it looked as though we had planned it, you might lose your chance. You just be ready when the time comes."

Dr. Winters merely nodded as Phil left.

He searched through a yellowed drug encyclopedia. When he found the formula he called a drugstore and had them get the prescription ready. He then telephoned Judge Roberts. He had treated countless patients to help make them well, but this was the first time he had ever planned to make one sick.

At 10 o'clock the next morning Dr. Winters took a conspicuous seat in the front row of the courtroom. Between Judge Roberts and himself, Mary and Phil Scott were seated with their lawyers.

Mary, nervous and strained, was a very lovely young woman. Her dark brown eyes were tearful but defiant. It was apparent she regretted this farce, but her stout pride was even more apparent.

Phil Scott, a few feet away, was trying to appear calm without much success. It was obvious he would have much preferred action to this orderly procedure of the law. He looked to Dr. Winters for reassurance.

Dr. Winters extended crossed fingers. He wished he felt as confident as he hoped he looked.

Mary Scott's attorney was completing his opening plea:

"And I will prove to this court's satisfaction that Mrs. Scott has suffered sufficient mental agonies to warrant complete divorce." He paused eloquently. "Now, your Honor, I would like to call Mrs. Scott to the stand."

Dr. Winters signaled to Judge Roberts.

"The court declares a 10-minute recess," Judge Roberts ordered, ignoring the lawyer's protest.

Dr. Winters waited outside the court room for Mary Scott. "Here are a couple of tablets to settle your nerves, Mary."

"Thanks, Doctor," Mary said softly.

Well, that's over, Dr. Winters thought. If the medicine don't work too quickly, Mary should get sick about the time she took the stand.

Mary was called to testify as soon as the hearing was resumed. Dr. Winters watched her closely as she walked to the stand. She sat down unsteadily. She tugged nervously on the corners of her handkerchief. She looked lost in the large, cold chair.

"Please, I don't feel like testifying now," she sobbed.

"There, your Honor, is vivid proof of my client's distraught condition," her lawyer shouted dramatically.

"Quiet!" Judge Roberts snapped.

"As the woman's physician I claim she is too ill to continue," Dr. Winters shouted above the confusion.

Mary nodded in dumb agreement. Then she fainted.

Phil rushed to his fallen wife.

Dr. Winters pushed forward and massaged Mary's wrists. He hoped Phil would realize that this was his chance. He had done his part. "Here, Phil, help me take Mary to the judge's chamber."

Phil smiled. "I don't need help now, Doc, and thanks." He picked up Mary tenderly and carried her through the door.

"I don't guess it will be necessary for you to look after Mrs. Scott," Judge Roberts said, "Anyway they sound all right."

Proper Allowances for Depreciation Are Explained

The amount to be recovered by depreciation is the cost of the property, if acquired by purchase after February 28, 1913. If acquired by purchase prior to March 1, 1913, the basis is the cost of the property, less depreciation sustained prior to March 1, 1913, or the fair market value on March 1, 1913, whichever is greater.

The proper allowance for depreciation is that amount which should be set aside for the taxable year in accordance with a reasonably consistent plan (not necessarily a uniform rate) whereby the aggregate amount so set aside, plus the salvage value, will at the end of the useful life of the property equal the cost of other basis of the property.

The depreciation rate of a building is not based upon the number of years it will stand before being condemned and razed but on the number of years it will remain habitable or serviceable, for the purpose for which constructed.

If the taxpayer builds a new building, the period over which depreciation may be claimed begins at the time the building is completed and capable of being used. Buildings under construction are not subject to a depreciation allowance.

If it is clearly shown that, because of economic or other conditions, property must be abandoned at a date prior to the end of its normal useful life, so that depreciation deductions alone are insufficient to return the cost or other basis, a reasonable deduction for obsolescence may be allowed in addition to depreciation. No deduction for obsolescence is permitted because, in the opinion of the taxpayer, the property may become obsolete at some future date.

KEEPING LIFE IN THE TRESSES

By HELEN FOLLETT

WHEN the old glory mop, after standing up valiantly, starts to moult, there is sorrow in the heart of the beauty seeker. She should be tranquil. Human hair does a continual hail and farewell act. Every day some shafts will fall. The wool atop the human pate is house cleaning, getting rid of debris.

The life of a single hair is between two and seven years. Considering that it sometimes grows five inches a year, it could extend into yard lengths during a lifetime. When its time comes, it fluffs away, the papilla produces an understudy. It is when the hair-growing mechanism is dead that the case is hopeless.

Brushing brings away only the dead shafts. It should be done every day to remove surface dust and to stimulate the scalp. A five-minute friction now and then is helpful. Careless shampooing is harmful because soap is not thoroughly removed. Wetting the hair daily is a bad practice.

Hot oil treatments are recommended by beauty specialists.

The general health is a factor. Sleeplessness, worry, digestive disturbances and fevers have a deplorable effect upon the topmop.

With evening sweaters all the rage, there is more than ordinary need of the use of deodorants or deterrents in the armpits. Sweat glands are active there. Cosmetic counters offer preparations in various forms; if one does not correct the unpleasant condition, another one will.

Moist skin is often caused by nervousness. Nervousness is the result of physical ills or mental disturbances. Emotional control makes for a happier life; lack of it has a bad effect upon health and appearance.

The daily bath is a factor in treatment of excessive perspiration. Go over the flesh with clear water, before using soap.

CHAPTER THIRTY-EIGHT

ROMANY walked into Joe Telling's office the next morning and handed him the check for two hundred dollars.

"I hope"—she looked coldly regal—"you will give this to Mr. Nelson for me right away. And I hope you will be as anxious to spread this story as you were the other one.

Joe's face reddened.

"I don't get it!" He avoided her cool green eyes.

"Don't you?" Romany closed her handbag with a snap. "Perhaps I'd better explain. The day Mr. Nelson gave you the check to pay for my pictures he told you you weren't to tell anyone. Not even me. I didn't know about it until last night.

"But a little later you went into the cocktail lounge and had a few drinks with Myra Noyes. That night you told several people all about it. I'm reminding you, just in case you don't know how your tongue rattles when you're drinking."

"Somebody's crazy." Joe's hand trembled holding his cigaret. "It must have been Noyes."

Romany's eyes narrowed.

"Perhaps you don't realize that is an admission that you told her. Otherwise, how would she have found it out?"

From Brent, I suppose," Joe stammered. "I don't know a thing about it."

Romany looked at him witheringly.

"Don't get in any deeper, Mr. Telling. You're not very good t this sort of thing. And let me warn you, if there's any more gossip about me that comes out of the press department, you and I are going to have a little conference with the head of this network. Do I make myself clear?"

"Sure, sure," Telling blustered. "T ere won't be anything like that around here."

"I—just wanted to make sure." Romany walked to the door. "And make certain you send the story of this check along the grape vine."

In the afternoon Joe Telling lost his job. Dreading a meeting with Brent Nelson, he had gone downstairs for lunch after his visit with Romany and had one drink too many.

Staggering into a board meeting fifteen minutes late, his end at Interstate came swiftly and suddenly. Into his place the next day stepped the publicity head of an advertising agency, Milton Gale.

Gale was an old-time newspaper man, popular in Chicago. One of the first things he did was get a list of all newcomers to Interstate and find out whether there were pictures and biographies on file of them.

Milt's determination to see fair play around the broadcasting studios was responsible for Cholly O'Neil's being sent for and enrolled in the television contest the next day.

"You're going up the ladder so fast," Milt grinned at her, "I'd like to see if you couldn't give these old-timers around here a little run for their money. Besides, I always was a little partial to red-heads."

"Well," Cholly grinned back at him, "I won't stand a chance, but since you feel that way about it, I'll do as you say."

"It can't do you any harm." Gale picked up some pictures on his desk. "You've got some pretty stiff competition, though. I'm sorry your friend, Miss Haile, pulled out. I think she might have won it."

"Romany wouldn't stay in after she found out what they were saying about her."

Romany walked into Joe Telling's office and handed him the check.

"Think I could talk her into coming back in? She's got good publicity value. I'm thinking of the publicity more than the individual. Giving that gang over at the other network a little competition."

"Romany isn't very easily influenced after she's made up her mind," Cholly assured him. "She'd just be unhappy anyway. She's very sensitive about the gossip."

"Too bad," said Gale. "By the way, they tell me there's a big increase in Hayworth syrup sales since you went on the air. That must be a surprise to your sponsor."

"It's a surprise to me," Cholly smiled pertly. "In fact, it doesn't make sense."

"Well"—Gale got up, holding out his hand—"we'll see what you can do in a month in the television contest. I'll telephone Hayworth and tell him what we've decided to do. He's a pretty good friend of mine. I knew him when he was making syrup on the kitchen stove."

"Did you really?" exclaimed Cholly, laughing. "Imagine Mr. Hayworth making syrup on the kitchen stove!"

"There was a day," grinned Gale. He looked at her over his glasses. "Hay tells me there's some danger of your becoming his daughter-in-law, Miss O'Neil."

"He didn't!" gasped Cholly.

Milt grinned again.

"Yep! And just between ourselves, I think he likes the idea. Don't let a stuffed shirt fool you. There's one bird who is just as human since he's made a million as he was when he was on the farm growing corn."

Myra was reading Tanner's radio column in Terry's dressing room at the cafe when she learned that Cholly O'Neil had enrolled in the television contest. She wadded the paper into a ball and threw it into the corner.

When Romany Haile withdrew from the contest, she had breathed with ease. There surely was no reason why she shouldn't win the title. But the hed-head was a definite threat. She said, sullenly, when Terry came in the door after his act:

"Did you read Tanner? That O'Neil girl is going to run for the television title."

Terry nodded. "Yeah! I saw it."

"Well, why didn't you tell me?" Myra watched him closely.

"Oh," Terry shrugged, "I thought you'd see it for yourself."

"Of course," Myra sniffed, "she hasn't got a chance. Nobody's ever heard of her."

"Oh, no?" Terry lit a cigaret. "She's the fastest-shooting star Chicago has ever seen. In a year from now Cholly O'Neil will be the biggest female name in radio. She's another Kate Smith. And she's got the edge on Kate because she plays the piano and is a television wow. With singing and playing talent, and looks, what can stop her?"

"I believe," Myra accused him whitely, " you're still in love with her."

Terry got up, reaching for his coat.

"Now, don't start that stuff, Myra! I'm in no mood for a battle. I'm just telling you, Cholly O'Neil has everything. Come on and let's go out to Delucio's. I need a drink."

At the Hayworth penthouse, Mrs. Hayworth had also read Tanner's column. Despite the fact that the new radio program was selling syrup faster than it ever had been sold, Dover's mother still was unable to reconcile herself to the fact that she had been defied.

She went into her husband's room, holding the tabloid before her:

"Dover," she raged, "I thought I told you to fire that O'Neil girl that your son has been going around with! And here I see in the paper she's going in a television contest. Don't you know Dover never will get rid of her if you don't do something about it?"

"He'll never get rid of her with my consent." The father went on reading, not looking up.

Mrs. Hayworth went on for a half hour, but the syrup king refused to be moved in his decision that Cholly O'Neil stay in his employ. The next day, still enraged, Mrs. Hayworth packed and went to visit her sister in Boston. Her husband sighed with relief. That was the one thing that would cool Carrie off.

The next afternoon, Terry phoned Cholly.

Avoid "Dirty" Look

Do not give a "dirty look" to the person who is compelled to sit at your table in a crowded restaurant. He or she may dislike the situation as much as you do, but it is courteous and considerate to be pleasant under the circumstances.

Sickroom Precautions

If there is illness in the home, put on a long-sleeved cover-all apron before entering the sick room and remove it when leaving. This helps protect the rest of the family from the germs. Always wash and scald the sick room dishes separately from the other dishes.

Don't Monopolize

It is not good manners to monopolize the conversation when in a party. Give the other members of the group a chance to air their views.

"The Authority on Authorities"

ALWAYS COUNT LOSERS

IT IS unpardonable for a declarer of experience to neglect counting the number of possible losers in the various suits, when playing a trump contract. Failure to go through that simple little preliminary can result in all sorts of mistakes of play and perhaps the defeat of a project which should be airtight against any effort of the opposition.

With that bad bidding, it is necessary to explain that North and South were using ace-showing responses to original two-bids, but even then it is pretty sad work. But the play was even sorrier.

West led the club J to the A. Had South counted, seeing only one possible spade loser, a diamond should have been discarded, but South tossed a spade, then led the diamond 10 to the J, Q and K. The club K was ruffed, diamond A played, then the diamond 2 ruffed by the heart 6 and overruffed by the J. The heart 4 to the A killed dummy's last trump. The spade A was cashed and a small spade led to the K of West, who returned the diamond 8 for East to ruff, setting the contract.

Had South discarded a diamond on the club A, then at once led spades, six would have been made if West took the first spade and seven if South played the A on a second spade in case West held up. Even if South used a low spade on a second round after one hold-up by West, he could not have lost more than one spade and two diamonds at the absolute outside.

Try this STEAMED CHOCOLATE PUDDING
Light, tender, delicate made with purer Spry

YES, Spry is purer! Notice how gleaming white it is. Stays fresh longer, too, and creams so easily. Three extra advantages and only Spry gives all three! Bake, fry with Spry.

STEAMED CHOCOLATE PUDDING with Mint Sauce or Whipped Cream

¼ cup Spry
¾ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
¾ cup sugar
1 egg, unbeaten
1½ ounces chocolate, melted
½ teaspoon soda
¾ cup sifted flour
½ cup milk

Combine Spry, salt and vanilla. Add sugar gradually and cream thoroughly. (Easy to do with triple-creamed Spry and it makes your pudding so light and tender.) Add egg and beat well. Add chocolate and blend well. Add soda to flour and sift 3 times. Add flour to creamed mixture, alternately with milk, mixing after each addition until smooth. Pour into one-quart mold greased with Spry, cover tightly, and steam 1½ hours. Serve with Mint Sauce or whipped cream. Serves 6 to 8.

MINT SAUCE

1 egg white, unbeaten
¾ cup sugar
1 teaspoon light corn sirup
¼ cup water
½ teaspoon peppermint extract
Green coloring

Combine egg white, sugar, corn sirup and water in top of double boiler. Beat with rotary egg beater until thoroughly mixed. Place over rapidly boiling water, beat 3 minutes, or until mixture holds up in peaks. Remove from heat and beat until slightly cool. Add flavoring and coloring to tint sauce a delicate green. Makes 2 cups.

Walter W. Clay, private detective, who suffered a heart attack last week, is in a serious condition at his aparement in the Boulevard hotel.

Sickroom Precautions

If there is illness in the home, put on a long-sleeved cover-all apron before entering the sick room and remove it when leaving. This helps protect the rest of the family from the germs. Always wash and scald the sick room dishes separately from the other dishes.

Don't Monopolize

It is not good manners to monopolize the conversation when in a party. Give the other members of the group a chance to air their views.

KEEPING LIFE IN THE TRESSES

By HELEN FOLLETT

WHEN the old glory mop, after standing up valiantly, starts to moult, there is sorrow in the heart of the beauty seeker. She should be tranquil. Human hair does a continual hail and farewell act. Every day some shafts will fall. The wool atop the human pate is house cleaning, getting rid of debris.

The life of a single hair is between two and seven years. Considering that it sometimes grows five inches a year, it could extend into yard lengths during a lifetime. When its time comes, it fluffs away, the papilla produces an understudy. It is when the hair-growing mechanism is dead that the case is hopeless.

Brushing brings away only the dead shafts. It should be done every day to remove surface dust and to stimulate the scalp. A five-minute friction now and then is helpful. Careless shampooing is harmful because soap is not thoroughly removed. Wetting the hair daily is a bad practice.

Hot oil treatments are recommended by beauty specialists.

The general health is a factor. Sleeplessness, worry, digestive disturbances and fevers have a deplorable effect upon the topmop.

With evening sweaters all the rage, there is more than ordinary need of the use of deodorants or deterrents in the armpits. Sweat glands are active there. Cosmetic counters offer preparations in various forms; if one does not correct the unpleasant condition, another one will.

Moist skin is often caused by nervousness. Nervousness is the result of physical ills or mental disturbances. Emotional control makes for a happier life; lack of it has a bad effect upon health and appearance.

The daily bath is a factor in treatment of excessive perspiration. Go over the flesh with clear water, before using soap.

CHAPTER THIRTY-EIGHT

ROMANY walked into Joe Telling's office the next morning and handed him the check for two hundred dollars.

"I hope"—she looked coldly regal—"you will give this to Mr. Nelson for me right away. And I hope you will be as anxious to spread this story as you were the other one.

Joe's face reddened.

"I don't get it!" He avoided her cool green eyes.

"Don't you?" Romany closed her handbag with a snap. "Perhaps I'd better explain. The day Mr. Nelson gave you the check to pay for my pictures he told you you weren't to tell anyone. Not even me. I didn't know about it until last night.

"But a little later you went into the cocktail lounge and had a few drinks with Myra Noyes. That night you told several people all about it. I'm reminding you, just in case you don't know how your tongue rattles when you're drinking."

"Somebody's crazy." Joe's hand trembled holding his cigaret. "It must have been Noyes."

Romany's eyes narrowed.

"Perhaps you don't realize that is an admission that you told her. Otherwise, how would she have found it out?"

From Brent, I suppose," Joe stammered. "I don't know a thing about it."

Romany looked at him witheringly.

"Don't get in any deeper, Mr. Telling. You're not very good t this sort of thing. And let me warn you, if there's any more gossip about me that comes out of the press department, you and I are going to have a little conference with the head of this network. Do I make myself clear?"

"Sure, sure," Telling blustered. "T ere won't be anything like that around here."

"I—just wanted to make sure." Romany walked to the door. "And make certain you send the story of this check along the grape vine."

In the afternoon Joe Telling lost his job. Dreading a meeting with Brent Nelson, he had gone downstairs for lunch after his visit with Romany and had one drink too many.

Staggering into a board meeting fifteen minutes late, his end at Interstate came swiftly and suddenly. Into his place the next day stepped the publicity head of an advertising agency, Milton Gale.

Gale was an old-time newspaper man, popular in Chicago. One of the first things he did was get a list of all newcomers to Interstate and find out whether there were pictures and biographies on file of them.

Milt's determination to see fair play around the broadcasting studios was responsible for Cholly O'Neil's being sent for and enrolled in the television contest the next day.

"You're going up the ladder so fast," Milt grinned at her, "I'd like to see if you couldn't give these old-timers around here a little run for their money. Besides, I always was a little partial to red-heads."

"Well," Cholly grinned back at him, "I won't stand a chance, but since you feel that way about it, I'll do as you say."

"It can't do you any harm." Gale picked up some pictures on his desk. "You've got some pretty stiff competition, though. I'm sorry your friend, Miss Haile, pulled out. I think she might have won it."

"Romany wouldn't stay in after

Romany walked into Joe Telling's office and handed him the check.

she found out what they were saying about her."

"Think I could talk her into coming back in? She's got good publicity value. I'm thinking of the publicity more than the individual. Giving that gang over at the other network a little competition."

"Romany isn't very easily influenced after she's made up her mind," Cholly assured him. "She'd just be unhappy anyway. She's very sensitive about the gossip."

"Too bad," said Gale. "By the way, they tell me there's a big increase in Hayworth syrup sales since you went on the air. That must be a surprise to your sponsor."

"It's a surprise to me," Cholly smiled pertly. "In fact, it doesn't make sense."

"Well"—Gale got up, holding out his hand—"we'll see what you can do in a month in the television contest. I'll telephone Hayworth and tell him what we've decided to do. He's a pretty good friend of mine. I knew him when he was making syrup on the kitchen stove."

"Did you really?" exclaimed Cholly, laughing. "Imagine Mr. Hayworth making syrup on the kitchen stove!"

"There was a day," grinned Gale. He looked at her over his glasses. "Hay tells me there's some danger of your becoming his daughter-in-law, Miss O'Neil."

"He didn't!" gasped Cholly.

Milt grinned again.

"Yep! And just between ourselves, I think he likes the idea. Don't let a stuffed shirt fool you. There's one bird who is just as human since he's made a million as he was when he was on the farm growing corn."

Myra was reading Tanner's radio column in Terry's dressing room at the cafe when she learned that Cholly O'Neil had enrolled in the television contest. She wadded the paper into a ball and threw it into the corner.

When Romany Haile withdrew from the contest, she had breathed with ease. There surely was no reason why she shouldn't win the title. But the hed-head was a definite threat. She said, sullenly, when Terry came in the door after his act:

"Did you read Tanner? That O'Neil girl is going to run for the television title."

Terry nodded. "Yeah! I saw it."

"Well, why didn't you tell me?" Myra watched him closely.

"Oh," Terry shrugged, "I thought you'd see it for yourself."

"Of course," Myra sniffed, "she hasn't got a chance. Nobody's ever heard of her."

"Oh, no?" Terry lit a cigaret. "She's the fastest-shooting star Chicago has ever seen. In a year from now Cholly O'Neil will be the biggest female name in radio. She's another Kate Smith. And she's got the edge on Kate because she plays the piano and is a television wow. With singing and playing talent, and looks, what can stop her?"

"I believe," Myra accused him whitely, "you're still in love with her."

Terry got up, reaching for his coat.

"Now, don't start that stuff, Myra! I'm in no mood for a battle. I'm just telling you, Cholly O'Neil has everything. Come on and let's go out to Delucio's. I need a drink."

At the Hayworth penthouse, Mrs. Hayworth had also read Tanner's column. Despite the fact that the new radio program was selling syrup faster than it ever had been sold, Dover's mother still was unable to reconcile herself to the fact that she had been defied.

She went into her husband's room, holding the tabloid before her:

"Dover," she raged, "I thought I told you to fire that O'Neil girl that your son has been going around with! And here I see in the paper she's going in a television contest. Don't you know Dover never will get rid of her if you don't do something about it?"

"He'll never get rid of her with my consent." The father went on reading, not looking up.

Mrs. Hayworth went on for a half hour, but the syrup king refused to be moved in his decision that Cholly O'Neil stay in his employ. The next day, still enraged, Mrs. Hayworth packed and went to visit her sister in Boston. Her husband sighed with relief. That was the one thing that would cool Carrie off.

The next afternoon, Terry phoned Cholly.

Try this STEAMED CHOCOLATE PUDDING
Light, tender, delicate made with purer Spry

YES, Spry is purer! Notice how gleaming white it is. Stays fresh longer, too, and creams so easily. Three extra advantages and only Spry gives all three! Bake, fry with Spry.

STEAMED CHOCOLATE PUDDING with Mint Sauce or Whipped Cream

¼ cup Spry
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
¾ cup sugar
1 egg, unbeaten
1½ ounces chocolate, melted
½ teaspoon soda
¾ cup sifted flour
½ cup milk

Combine Spry, salt and vanilla. Add sugar gradually and cream thoroughly. (Easy to do with triple-creamed Spry and it makes your pudding so light and tender.) Add egg and beat well. Add chocolate and blend well. Add soda to flour and sift 3 times. Add flour to creamed mixture, alternately with milk, mixing after each addition until smooth. Pour into one-quart mold greased with Spry, cover tightly, and steam 1½ hours. Serve with Mint Sauce or whipped cream. Serves 6 to 8.

MINT SAUCE

1 egg white, unbeaten
¼ cup sugar
1 teaspoon light corn sirup
¼ cup water
½ teaspoon peppermint extract
Green coloring

Combine egg white, sugar, corn sirup and water in top of double boiler. Beat with rotary egg beater until thoroughly mixed. Place over rapidly boiling water, beat 3 minutes, or until mixture holds up in peaks. Remove from heat and beat until slightly cool. Add flavoring and coloring to tint sauce a delicate green. Makes 2 cups.

(All measurements in these recipes are level)

A Thin Veneer

You are not showing your high position in "society," and your sophisticated perority when you are snobbish and cold to those outside your circle. You are merely showing that what ever culture you possess is a thin veneer over an inferior, ill-mannered personality.

Ill Temper At Cards

Nothing shows a person's bad manners and lack of thought for others more than showing obvious annoyance or ill-temper after being beaten in a friendly game of cards.

Fixing Blame in Child Thefts Is Interesting Study

Real Affection on Part of Parents Would Help Children

By GARRY C. MYERS, M. D.

Recently we considered a case of stealing in a young child. Today let us discuss some problems of theft concerning children over six.

Many letters come to me about older children stealing from members of the family, and in most cases the young thief is motivated by jealousy or lack of esteem.

A boy of twelve, for instance, takes money from the purse of his father, but from no one else. The father had deserted the mother and child for two years and then returned. In the meanwhile, the child had been the sole comfort of the mother, the object of her liberal affection. Suddenly, the man the boy had learned to disrespect returned to share the mother's affections. How hard it must have been for the lad to adjust himself! The boy began taking money, but only from the father's pocket. As I wrote the mother, the hope for the lad's getting straight is for him to be won by the father, not an easy task.

Girl Steals From Stepsister

A girl of seven steals from her stepsister, the father's oldest child. The offender must feel very jealous of that stepsister. No doubt the father betrays more affection (unknowingly, perhaps) toward the older child. Anyway, the younger sister supposes that the older is loved more than she is; and what a child thinks is so for her.

Genuine assurance of being loved is the one great means of preventing theft and lying, provided, of course, the child is exposed to good ideals and habits in the parents. But love is not revealed alone by the more primitive mode of fondling and caressing. Sometimes these expressions are but smoke screens of hypocrisy, and are so interpreted by the child. I am not one who denounces such expressions; some children do not get enough of them. But more often than not they are poor substitutes for sincere love.

Share Child's View

We parents best reveal true affection by tenderness of tone; by the niceties of courtesy and regard for the sacredness of the child's personality; by answering all his questions kindly and listening thoughtfully to all he has to say; by treating him as nearly like an honored guest as possible, and proving true sympathy and understanding of him. We should try also to acquire his point of view, share his joys and assuage his sorrows, making him feel he is worth while. We should let him know that we care, never referring to past ills which had duly been considered, forgetting the things that are behind and looking forward hopefully and happily with him—such is love.

Without this love how is a child to be honest and truthful to those who presume to love him? How, moreover, is he to learn honesty and truthfulness to others?

PATTERN 9325

A fresh new dress not only makes you look well, but makes you FEEL so alive! Marian Martin's Pattern 9325 has been especially designed for maturely figured women with a flare for style. Its gracefully curved princess lines give perfect seam-fitting without darts. Why not cut the novel side-front bodice sections which come down on the skirt in low, slimming points, on a bias for easy fit? That becoming, pointed collar shows off most effectively if made in contrast, perhaps with ric-rac or lace edging. The sleeves may be simple puffs or have slashed openings. Use the Sew Chart to guide your stitches.

Pattern 9325 may be ordered only in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 requires 4¾ yards 35 inch fabric and 2 yards lace edging.

Send fifteen cents in coins for this Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your size, name, address, and style number.

Our new Marian Martin pattern book brings the world of fashion right into your home! Without stirring from your arm-chair, you can plan your whole Spring wardrobe—on inexpensive, easy-to-sew terms. Factory Employment Off And Payrolls Decrease

Baltimore, Feb. 23 (AP) — Factory employment in Maryland last month dropped 1.3 per cent and payrolls decreased 3.1 per cent as compared with December, but "the decreases are seasonal and tob be expected at this time of year," the commissioner of labor and statistics reported.

"This is the first month since August, 1939, that the rise in employment has been checked at all," the report stated.

Losses were reported in either employment or payrolls or both in all but six of the forty-three industries included in the survey. The survey covered 640 factories.

Of the forty-three industries, six reported increases in both employment and payrolls despite the general decrease.

They were grain and mill products; slaughtering and meat packing; clothing, women's and children's; electrical machinery; boots and shoes; shipbuilding and repairing.

"Retail trade indicated the usual after-Christmas decrease," the report stated. "Hotels showed the only increase in the non-manufacturing industries for the December - January comparison."

Scholastic Clan

Louisville, Ky. (AP)—The Kottke family is well represented in the University of Louisville student body. The father, Hugo Kottke, Sr., an automobile salesman, takes public speaking courses twice weekly.

Town of 12,000 Is Left Without Bank

Stonington, Conn., Feb. 23 (AP)—This town of 12,000 persons was left without a bank when shareholders of the 90-year old First National Bank voted for liquidation because "business conditions are such that it is unable to pay the stockholders what they feel is an adequate return on their investments."

President J. Rodney Smith said the institution was in "excellent" financial condition.

Factory Employment Off And Payrolls Decrease

Baltimore, Feb. 23 (AP) — Factory employment in Maryland last month dropped 1.3 per cent and payrolls decreased 3.1 per cent as compared with December, but "the decreases are seasonal and tob be expected at this time of year," the commissioner of labor and statistics reported.

"This is the first month since August, 1939, that the rise in employment has been checked at all," the report stated.

Losses were reported in either employment or payrolls or both in all but six of the forty-three industries included in the survey. The survey covered 640 factories.

Of the forty-three industries, six reported increases in both employment and payrolls despite the general decrease.

They were grain and mill products; slaughtering and meat packing; clothing, women's and children's; electrical machinery; boots and shoes; shipbuilding and repairing.

"Retail trade indicated the usual after-Christmas decrease," the report stated. "Hotels showed the only increase in the non-manufacturing industries for the December - January comparison."

Scholastic Clan

Louisville, Ky. (AP)—The Kottke family is well represented in the University of Louisville student body. The father, Hugo Kottke, Sr., an automobile salesman, takes public speaking courses twice weekly.

Hugo, Jr., 24, attends a salesmanship class. Another son, Emmett, 21, takes sociology and accounting courses at night. Elsie, a daughter, is a freshman student in the Liberal Arts College.

Town of 12,000 Is Left Without Bank

Stonington, Conn., Feb. 23 (AP)—This town of 12,000 persons was left without a bank when shareholders of the 90-year old First National Bank voted for liquidation because "business conditions are such that it is unable to pay the stockholders what they feel is an adequate return on their investments."

President J. Rodney Smith said the institution was in "excellent" financial condition.

Stewards in the Kingdom

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON — By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Matthew 24, 25

When Jesus left the temple at Jerusalem, His disciples wanted to show Him the buildings, but He said, "See ye not all these things? Verily I say unto you, There shall not be left here one stone upon another that shall not be thrown down.'"

Jesus sat upon the Mount of Olives and His disciples gathered around Him and asked Him concerning His second coming: "Tell us when shall these things be? And what shall be the sign of Thy coming and of the end of the world?" they asked Him.

Regarding the life they should lead before His coming, Jesus told them parables, one concerning the virgins, five wise and five foolish who were bidden to a wedding. The wise took oil for their lamps, but the foolish took no oil, and all slept.

When the bridegroom came, the wise virgins were ready with burning lamps, but the foolish ones went to buy oil, and while they were gone, the bridegroom came and the door was shut, and they were left outside.

Stewards in the Kingdom

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

2-24

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Feb. 25 is Matthew 24, 25, the Golden Text being Matthew 25:21, "Well done, good and faithful servant.")

STEWARDS in the kingdom is the subject of today's lesson. How, in other words, should we live and act during our lives so that we can be sure we are worthy to be classed among the righteous when the Lord comes again in glory.

You will remember that at the close of the last lesson Jesus wept over Jerusalem, prophesying its ruin and mourning that its people would not accept His message. In the beginning of today's lesson Jesus and His disciples went out of the temple, and in spite of all Jesus had told them of things to come, they wanted to show Him the various buildings and have Him admire them. Jesus reproved them, saying, "See ye not all these things? verily I say unto you, There shall not be left one stone upon another, that shall not be thrown down."

The disciples were curious about these sayings, and when He sat upon the Mount of Olives, from which He had a fine view of Jerusalem, they came to Him and asked Him privately, "Tell us, when shall these things be? and what shall be the sign of Thy coming, and of the end of the world?"

Jesus then told them of many things that would happen—famines, pestilences, wars. Many false prophets would appear, and many would believe these, but His true followers would not be deceived, but would go on steadfastly doing their duty and waiting until He, the Lord of All, should appear. We have not room here to repeat His prophecies and tell of all Jesus told these humble followers of His.

Tells Parables

To Jesus the disciples must have seemed like children, and He made His meaning clear to them by way of parables, which symbolized what He expected of them when He should have gone.

We must always be ready for the coming, He tells us in the parable of the ten virgins who were to go to the wedding feast. We are told that they must have been girl friends of the bride and were bidden to be present at the wedding feast. None knew when the bridegroom would come, so the virgins provided themselves with lamps. Five of the virgins—those who were wise—took oil in vessels for their lamps; but the foolish ones took no oil. All slept until the cry was made, "Behold, the bridegroom cometh: go ye out to meet him!" Then the virgins trimmed their lamps and the wise ones filled theirs with oil and lighted them; but the foolish tried to borrow oil from the others, but were told that they had only enough for themselves. Then the virgins hastened to the merchants to get oil, but when they returned the bridegroom had come, and the gates were locked against them. "Lord, open to us," they cried, but He said, "Verily, I say unto you, I know ye not." Watch, therefore, Jesus said, for ye know neither the day nor the hour wherein the Son of Man cometh.

Parable of Talents

The parable of the ten talents is then told. Talents were worth a great deal of money. This parable likened the kingdom of heaven to a man who traveled to a far country. Calling his servants he gave five talents to the first, two to the second, and one to the third, according to his ability. Then he went away. When he came back after a long time, the man who had been given five talents had five more, ten in all, for him; and likewise the man who had two talents had doubled them. But the man who had only had one talent, had buried it in the garden and now brought it, probably corroded and thus worth less. To the first two the master said, "Well done, good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things: enter thou into the joy of thy lord." But as to him who had had but one talent and who had made nothing, he was cast into outer darkness.

In the day of judgment, "When the Son of Man shall come in His glory," He shall say to those on His right hand, "I was a-hungered, and ye gave Me meat; I was thirsty, and ye gave Me drink; I was a stranger, and ye took Me in; naked, and ye clothed Me; I was sick, and ye visited Me; I was in prison, and ye came unto Me." And they shall say, "Lord, when saw we Thee a-hungered, and fed Thee? or thirsty, and gave Thee drink? When saw we Thee a stranger, and took Thee in? or naked, and clothed Thee? Or when saw we Thee sick, or in prison, and came unto Thee?"

And the King shall answer and say unto them, "Verily I say unto you, Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these My brethren, ye have done it unto Me."

We are the "Stewards in the kingdom." So should we live that we will have no fear of whatever may befall us, even the Day of Judgment.

Stewards in the Kingdom — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON — By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Matthew 24, 25

When Jesus left the temple at Jerusalem, His disciples wanted to show Him the buildings, but He said, "See ye not all these things? Verily I say unto you, There shall not be left here one stone upon another that shall not be thrown down.'"

Jesus sat upon the Mount of Olives and His disciples gathered around Him and asked Him concerning His second coming: "Tell us when shall these things be? And what shall be the sign of Thy coming and of the end of the world?" they asked Him.

Regarding the life they should lead before His coming, Jesus told them parables, one concerning the virgins, five wise and five foolish who were bidden to a wedding. The wise took oil for their lamps, but the foolish took no oil, and all slept.

When the bridegroom came, the wise virgins were ready with burning lamps, but the foolish ones went to buy oil, and while they were gone, the bridegroom came and the door was shut, and they were left outside.

Stewards in the Kingdom

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Feb. 25 is Matthew 24, 25, the Golden Text being Matthew 25:21, "Well done, good and faithful servant.")

STEWARDS in the kingdom is the subject of today's lesson. How, in other words, should we live and act during our lives so that we can be sure we are worthy to be classed among the righteous when the Lord comes again in glory.

You will remember that at the close of the last lesson Jesus wept over Jerusalem, prophesying its ruin and mourning that its people would not accept His message. In the beginning of today's lesson Jesus and His disciples went out of the temple, and in spite of all Jesus had told them of things to come, they wanted to show Him the various buildings and have Him admire them. Jesus reproved them, saying, "See ye not all these things? verily I say unto you, There shall not be left one stone upon another, that shall not be thrown down."

The disciples were curious about these sayings, and when He sat upon the Mount of Olives, from which He had a fine view of Jerusalem, they came to Him and asked Him privately, "Tell us, when shall these things be? and what shall be the sign of Thy coming, and of the end of the world?"

Jesus then told them of many things that would happen—famines, pestilences, wars. Many false prophets would appear, and many would believe these, but His true followers would not be deceived, but would go on steadfastly doing their duty and waiting until He, the Lord of All, should appear. We have not room here to repeat His prophecies and tell of all Jesus told these humble followers of His.

Tells Parables

To Jesus the disciples must have seemed like children, and He made His meaning clear to them by way of parables, which symbolized what He expected of them when He should have gone.

We must always be ready for the coming. He tells us in the parable of the ten virgins who were to go to the wedding feast. We are told that they must have been girl friends of the bride and were bidden to be present at the wedding feast. None knew when the bridegroom would come, so the virgins provided themselves with lamps. Five of the virgins—those who were wise—took oil in vessels for their lamps; but the foolish ones took no oil. All slept until the cry was made, "Behold, the bridegroom cometh: go ye out to meet him!" Then the virgins trimmed their lamps and the wise ones filled theirs with oil and lighted them; but the foolish tried to borrow oil from the others, but were told that they had only enough for themselves. Then the virgins hastened to the merchants to get oil, but when they returned the bridegroom had come, and the gates were locked against them. "Lord, open to us," they cried, but He said, "Verily, I say unto you, I know ye not." Watch, therefore, Jesus said, for ye know neither the day nor the hour wherein the Son of Man cometh.

Parable of Talents

The parable of the ten talents is then told. Talents were worth a great deal of money. This parable likened the kingdom of heaven to a man who traveled to a far country. Calling his servants he gave five talents to the first, two to the second, and one to the third, according to his ability. Then he went away. When he came back after a long time, the man who had been given five talents had five more, ten in all, for him; and likewise the man who had two talents had doubled them. But the man who had only had one talent, had buried it in the garden and now brought it, probably corroded and thus worth less. To the first two the master said, "Well done, good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things: enter thou into the joy of thy lord." But as to him who had had but one talent and who had made nothing, he was cast into outer darkness.

In the day of judgment, "When the Son of Man shall come in His glory," He shall say to those on His right hand, "I was a-hungered, and ye gave Me meat; I was thirsty, and ye gave Me drink; I was a stranger, and ye took Me in; naked, and ye clothed Me; I was sick, and ye visited Me; I was in prison, and ye came unto Me." And they shall say, "Lord, when saw we Thee a-hungered, and fed Thee? or thirsty, and gave Thee drink? When saw we Thee a stranger, and took Thee in? or naked, and clothed Thee? Or when saw we Thee sick, or in prison, and came unto Thee?"

And the King shall answer and say unto them, "Verily I say unto you, Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these My brethren, ye have done it unto Me."

We are the "Stewards in the kingdom." So should we live that we will have no fear of whatever may befall us, even the Day of Judgment.

The Truth about Leprosy in U. S. Told by Writer

Disease, Contrary to Popular Belief, Hardly Contagious at All

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

I was walking along a street in New Orleans with my wife a few weeks ago, and there approached us a young man who wore dark goggles, evidently had a good deal of his nose destroyed and two white patches on his cheek. My wife shuddered at this gruesome sight, and as he passed us he brushed her arm. She asked me what was the matter with him and I replied, "Only leprosy," at which I had a young domestic explosion on my hands.

I reassured her that leprosy, contrary to popular belief, is hardly contagious at all, and when we got to Mexico City I persuaded her to visit the leper sanitarium there.

I visited the only continental United States leporsarium (there is one in Honolulu) near New Orleans this month. This sanitarium is located at Carville. All the states are authorized to send their lepers to this institution, a model of its kind, which takes care of about 400 lepers constantly, the year 'round. Some times they get away and we occasionally find them wandering around the roads of California, but they are usually glad to return to the leprosarium.

Of Great Antiquity

Leprosy is a disease of great antiquity, although most of the lepers described in the Bible in medieval times probably were suffering from some other condition. Very few parts of the world are entirely free from the disease. Leprosy is common in China, Japan, the Philippines, Australia, India, Arabia, Iceland, the Scandinavian countries and Russia.

There are several forms of leprosy. In the commonest form the germ invades the nose and infiltrates from the nose into the skin of the cheek. In the course of time this invasion assumes a nodular form so that the skin on the cheek and forehead is thick and lumpy. The patients have a leonine expression. In the other form the germ invades the nervous system and it is characterized by flat white spots on the skin, usually on the hands and legs. These spots become numb and contractures of the tendons occur so that there is a claw hand or foot.

Chaulmoogra Oil Used

Treatment of leprosy today is very satisfactory with the use of a preparation known as chaulmoogra oil. In a report of the United States Public Health Service I find that 23 percent of the patients, after treatment, can be paroled, as no longer even a faint menace to the public. Ninety-one percent of the remaining under treatment are either improved or become stationary.

The belief that leprosy is very contagious still obtains, yet there are a good many lepers wandering around the country. One that I know of visits skin clinics regularly and exhibits himself to students for 25 cents a look.

Questions and Answers

C. C.: "Please state whether it would be injurious to a person's health to take two tablets of benzedrine sulphate a day. I heard that it is good for reducing."

Answer—Benzedrine sulphate is a new drug. It is a good general principle not to use a new drug over any period of time. The action of benzedrine is to stimulate the brain and give a feeling of increased energy. No report has been made as to its effect on reducing. The injunction by the A. M. A. Council on Pharmacy is very clear as to "possible dangers from continued use."

New Labor Union Puts Ban on All Strikes

Philadelphia, Feb. 23 (AP)—A group of Philadelphians disclosed that they have incorporated a new labor union, placing itself in position to sue or be sued.

Its certificate of incorporation declares that its members shall never strike.

The officers named the new organization the Craftsman's Union and said its membership would be restricted to federal, state, municipal, county and school employes.

Purposes of the union were listed as furthering the interests of members by aiding in extension of the Civil Service system, and helping prosecute violations of Civil Service regulations.

The union has not made any moves toward affiliation with the American Federation of Labor or Congress of Industrial Organizations.

J. Webster Jones, counsel for the incorporators, said the union was intended to serve "a separate and distinct field" of the relationship between a government authority and its employe, a civil servant.

Talking Rock Explains

Manzanita, Calif. (AP)—The talking rock of Lost Valley has been robbed of its mystery by two University of California students. They found that weird murmurs issuing from a cleft in the rock were caused by wind sweeping through a cavern with which the cleft is connected. Strange carvings which tradition associates with the "talk" have not been deciphered.

Marriage by Radio Forbidden in London

Montreal, Feb. 23 (AP) — Cold, unromantic law stepped in here and dashed the hopes of Sergeant Charles Chevalier, lovelorn member of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, and his dark-haired, 19-year-old fiance, Vicky Quesnel, to marry by Transatlantic radio.

Sympathetic London lawyers delved into their law books to see if such an ocean-spanning ceremony were permissible but came up with the decision that English law forbids marriage by proxy.

Vicky was disappointed but not Papa Napoleon Quesnel, who bestowed his blessings upon the engagement but wasn't so sure about the proposed radio wedding anyway.

"We've been thinking seriously about the plan but if it's impossible, then it's impossible," he said. "I think the best thing for them is just to be engaged and when the war's over they can get married—if they still want to."

U. S. Prepared To Place Mines Off Coast

Washington, Feb. 23 (AP)—An army expert has reported that the coast artillery was preparing to protect American shores in time of emergency with the same general type of mine field used now by Germany and Britain to safeguard Helgoland and the Firth of Forth.

Captain J. E. Harriman noted in the semi-official periodical, "Army Ordnance," that thus far hostile warcraft, other than raiding submarines, have shunned both the German and British naval strongholds.

"The threat of controlled or uncontrolled mines may be the answer," the officer suggested.

Detailing American and foreign harbor defense methods, Captain Harriman said the coast artillery corps could employ mine fields controlled from the shore which would permit passage of friendly vessels.

Of the methods employed to explode control mines when hostile ships approach, Captain Harriman said "delayed contact fire" offered the advantage of a "valuable intelligence agency."

By this method, if a vessel strikes one of the mines the charge does not explode but instead a control station ashore is automatically warned of the vessel's presence. If observers decide the ship is hostile, the mine is set off immediately by lectricity.

Tommy Farr Unfit For Royal Air Force

London, Feb. 23 (AP)—A man whose physical condition is good enough to enable him to challenge for the world's heavyweight boxing championship is not necessarily fit to fight in Britain's Royal Air Force, the House of Commons has learned.

Laborite W. A. Robinson asked why Tommy Farr, the 26-year-old Welsh pugilist, was released from the air service. The reply came from Air Minister Sir Kingsley Wood:

"This man was found on medical examination to be below the required standard."

Communist Publications Hit by Miss Stamp

College Park, Md., Feb. 23 (AP)—Miss Adele H. Stamp, Dean of women at the University of Maryland, declares that "it behooves all of us to become better informed" about what Communist publications are teaching young people "in order to combat it by being able to present both sides."

Miss Stamp said she attended sessions of the American Youth Congress in Washington "expecting to find fine, sane, wholesome boys and girls, but I was bitterly disappointed and disillusioned."

"I found a great many Communists (in the organization) and all too few young people with faith in America," she said in an article in the college newspaper, the Diamondback.

She said she talked with youths from high schools, industries, and many organizations, and, noting "a strange sameness" in their speech, "became suspicious they were repeating parrot fashion opinions and statements they had memorized or been taught."

Miss Stamp asserted the youth congress was not representative of the 4,500,000 members which it claims, but only of "a certain group."

Mayor 29 Years, He Will Seek Job Again

Ceredo, W. Va., Feb. 23 (AP)—E. H. Smith, now out of office for two years after serving twenty-nine one-year terms, as mayor of Ceredo—at $50 a year—is a candidate for re-election.

He disclosed here that he would accept the nomination of the People's Progressive Party, the banner under which he had been elected almost continuously since 1907.

Smith was nominated by the party thirty-two times, but suffered defeat three times.

"I don't like to boast," he reflected, "but it was during my administration that the town got its paved streets, water works and sewer system."

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

I was walking along a street in New Orleans with my wife a few weeks ago, and there approached us a young man who wore dark goggles, evidently had a good deal of his nose destroyed and two white patches on his cheek. My wife shuddered at this gruesome sight, and as he passed us he brushed her arm. She asked me what was the matter with him and I replied, "Only leprosy," at which I had a young domestic explosion on my hands.

I reassured her that leprosy, contrary to popular belief, is hardly contagious at all, and when we got to Mexico City I persuaded her to visit the leper sanitarium there.

I visited the only continental United States leporsarium (there is one in Honolulu) near New Orleans this month. This sanitarium is located at Carville. All the states are authorized to send their lepers to this institution, a model of its kind, which takes care of about 400 lepers constantly, the year 'round. Some times they get away and we occasionally find them wandering around the roads of California, but they are usually glad to return to the leprosarium.

Of Great Antiquity

Leprosy is a disease of great antiquity, although most of the lepers described in the Bible in medieval times probably were suffering from some other condition. Very few parts of the world are entirely free from the disease. Leprosy is common in China, Japan, the Philippines, Australia, India, Arabia, Iceland, the Scandinavian countries and Russia.

There are several forms of leprosy. In the commonest form the germ invades the nose and infiltrates from the nose into the skin of the cheek. In the course of time this invasion assumes a nodular form so that the skin on the cheek and forehead is thick and lumpy. The patients have a leonine expression. In the other form the germ invades the nervous system and it is characterized by flat white spots on the skin, usually on the hands and legs. These spots become numb and contractures of the tendons occur so that there is a claw hand or foot.

Chaulmoogra Oil Used

Treatment of leprosy today is very satisfactory with the use of a preparation known as chaulmoogra oil. In a report of the United States Public Health Service I find that 23 percent of the patients, after treatment, can be paroled, as no longer even a faint menace to the public. Ninety-one percent of the remaining under treatment are either improved or become stationary.

The belief that leprosy is very contagious still obtains, yet there are a good many lepers wandering around the country. One that I know of visits skin clinics regularly and exhibits himself to students for 25 cents a look.

Questions and Answers

C. C.: "Please state whether it would be injurious to a person's health to take two tablets of benzedrine sulphate a day. I heard that it is good for reducing."

Answer—Benzedrine sulphate is a new drug. It is a good general principle not to use a new drug over any period of time. The action of benzedrine is to stimulate the brain and give a feeling of increased energy. No report has been made as to its effect on reducing. The injunction by the A. M. A. Council on Pharmacy is very clear as to "possible dangers from continued use."

New Labor Union Puts Ban on All Strikes

Philadelphia, Feb. 23 (AP)—A group of Philadelphians disclosed that they have incorporated a new labor union, placing itself in position to sue or be sued.

Its certificate of incorporation declares that its members shall never strike.

The officers named the new organization the Craftsman's Union and said its membership would be restricted to federal, state, municipal, county and school employes.

Purposes of the union were listed as furthering the interests of members by aiding in extension of the Civil Service system, and helping prosecute violations of Civil Service regulations.

The union has not made any moves toward affiliation with the American Federation of Labor or Congress of Industrial Organizations.

J. Webster Jones, counsel for the incorporators, said the union was intended to serve "a separate and distinct field" of the relationship between a government authority and its employe, a civil servant.

Talking Rock Explains

Manzanita, Calif. (AP)—The talking rock of Lost Valley has been robbed of its mystery by two University of California students. They found that weird murmurs issuing from a cleft in the rock were caused by wind sweeping through a cavern with which the cleft is connected. Strange carvings which tradition associates with the "talk" have not been deciphered.

Marriage by Radio Forbidden in London

Montreal, Feb. 23 (AP) — Cold, unromantic law stepped in here and dashed the hopes of Sergeant Charles Chevalier, lovelorn member of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, and his dark-haired, 19-year-old fiance, Vicky Quesnel, to marry by Transatlantic radio.

Sympathetic London lawyers delved into their law books to see if such an ocean-spanning ceremony were permissible but came up with the decision that English law forbids marriage by proxy.

Vicky was disappointed but not Papa Napoleon Quesnel, who bestowed his blessings upon the engagement but wasn't so sure about the proposed radio wedding anyway.

"We've been thinking seriously about the plan but if it's impossible, then it's impossible," he said. "I think the best thing for them is just to be engaged and when the war's over they can get married—if they still want to."

Lent's a Time To Bring Out New Desserts

New Puddings Help Give a New Interest to Meatless Meals

By LOUISE BENNETT WEAVER
AP Feature Service Writer

A new dessert goes far toward glorifying the simplest of meals. That's a good thing to keep in mind during Lent, if you serve meatless dinners. A different kind of dessert will cheer up the family.

This MOCHA SPONGE is a grand dessert for cheering up people. It can be made hours ahead of serving time and has a delicious flavor. Soak 1 tablespoon of granulated gelatin 5 minutes in 1-4 cup cold water. Dissolve in a cup of boiling coffee (leftover coffee will serve very well). Add 2-3 cup granulated sugar and stir until well blended. Cool and let thicken slightly. Then add 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1-2 teaspoon grated orange rind, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 2 egg whites, beaten, and 1-2 cup whipped cream. Pour into a mould, greased and sprinkled with shredded toasted almonds. Set in a cold place. Unmould carefully and the sides and top will be nut covered. You can pass plain or whipped cream with this dessert.

CARAMEL CREAM PUDDING uses a vanilla wafer crust. Mix 1 cup rolled vanilla wafers with 1-8 teaspoon salt and 1-4 cup butter, melted. Spread about 1-4 inch thick on a shallow greased pan. Cover with Caramel Cream made this way: Mix together 1-2 cup dark brown sugar, 1-3 cup flour and 1-8 teaspoon salt. Add 3 tablespoons thick caramel syrup (made by carmelizing granulated sugar), 3 egg yolks and 1 2-3 cups milk. Cook until thick, in a double boiler. Add 1 teaspoon of vanilla and pour over the crust. Spread with meringue. For the meringue, beat 3 egg whites until stiff, gradually beat in 1-3 cup granulated sugar. Roughly spread over the filling and sprinkle with 3 tablespoons vanilla wafer crubs mixed with 2 tablespoons brown sugar and 1-2 teaspoon vanilla. Bake 25 minutes in a slow oven. Cool and serve, cut into squares.

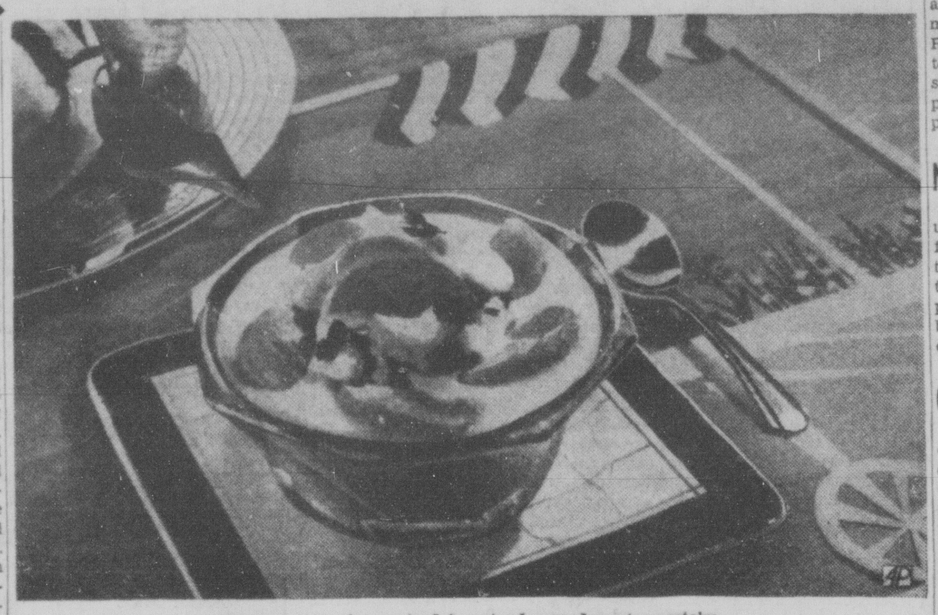
PINEAPPLE CHERRY TOPPING turns an old-fashioned cobbler mixture into an appealing dessert. Mix 2 cups flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1-4 teaspoon salt and 2 tablespoons granulated sugar. Cut in 5 tablespoons fat and slowly mix in an egg and 1-2 cup milk. Spread the dough about 1 inch thick on a greased shallow pan. Cover with 1 cup shredded or cubed pineapple mix with 1-2 cup seeded red cherries, 1-2 cup granulated sugar, 1-2 teaspoon cinnamon, 2 tablespoons flour and 3 tablespoons butter, melted. Bake 24 minutes in a moderate oven. Serve warm or cold with lemon or pineapple sauce. The pineapple and cherries blend especially well both in flavor and color.



Here's a tangerine custard to extend your dessert repertoire.

TANGERINE CUSTARD

2 cups milk, scalded	¼ cup granulated sugar
3 eggs	Few grains salt
½ teaspoon vanilla	Tangerine sections

Beat eggs slightly; beat in sugar and salt. Pour scalded milk over egg and sugar mixture. Return the custard to top of double boiler; stir over hot water until mixture forms a coating on a metal spoon. Pour immediately into a bowl; add vanilla. When cool, pour into serving dishes. Cover each portion with layer of tangerine sections (free of membrane). Top with whipped cream and serve. Five servings.

Here is an ORANGE FLAVORED PUDDING which is tops. Serve it fresh. Cream together 1-2 cup fat and 1 cup granulated sugar. Mix in 2 eggs, 1-4 teaspoon grated orange rind, 1 tablespoon grated orange rind, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 2 cups flour and 2 1-3 teaspoons baking powder. Beat well and pour into shallow pan, well greased or waxed paper lined. Sprinkle broken nuts mixed with a little orange marmalade (or any other jam or jelly). Bake 25 minutes in a moderate oven. Lemon or foamy sauce goes perfectly with this new dessert.

Fish Facts

When cleaning fish, be sure to remove all blood, especially that along the back bone. If it's left, it may give the fish a musty flavor. Rinse fish through many cold water baths before cooking it. To store fish, wrap it well in waxed paper and leave it in the coldest part of the refrigerator.

New Flavor Ideas

For some new flavor flings try using orange juice in place of milk for softening mashed sweet potatoes; adding a dash of dry mustard to macaroni and cheese dishes or putting broken nutmeats into apple butter and spreading it over warm coffee bread.

Children's Milk Quotas

When the youngsters lose interest in drinking their daily quota of milk, use more milk in cooking. Cook cereals in milk instead of water, serve custards frequently and increase the amount of cream soups, foods with milk sauces and escalloped dishes.

Meat Pie Topping

Lenten Dinner

Oysters come in for their full share of attention in Lent. Make up some in a pot pie. When served with a buttered green vegetable, tossed salad with relish dressing and custard dessert, you have another hit meal idea.

Test for Fresh Fish

When buying fish allow a third of a pound to a serving for steak, canned or fillets. It will take about half a pound a serving for fish with bones, head and tail on. Fish that is fresh will sink in cold water, so, if it floats, do not use it.

Oyster-Stuffed Fish

Oyster-Stuffing for fish is something new. Make a regular bread oyster stuffing, season well and use as a filling between 2 layers of fish steak (mild-flavored) or lightly stuff a large sized fish to be baked.

Lent's a Time To Bring Out New Desserts

New Puddings Help Give a New Interest to Meatless Meals

By LOUISE BENNETT WEAVER
AP Feature Service Writer

A new dessert goes far toward glorifying the simplest of meals. That's a good thing to keep in mind during Lent, if you serve meatless dinners. A different kind of dessert will cheer up the family.

This MOCHA SPONGE is a grand dessert for cheering up people. It can be made hours ahead of serving time and has a delicious flavor. Soak 1 tablespoon of granulated gelatin 5 minutes in 1-4 cup cold water. Dissolve in a cup of boiling coffee (leftover coffee will serve very well). Add 2-3 cup granulated sugar and stir until well blended. Cool and let thicken slightly. Then add 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1-2 teaspoon grated orange rind, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 2 egg whites, beaten, and 1-2 cup whipped cream. Pour into a mould, greased and sprinkled with shredded toasted almonds. Set in a cold place. Unmould carefully and the sides and top will be nut covered. You can pass plain or whipped cream with this dessert.

CARAMEL CREAM PUDDING uses a vanilla wafer crust. Mix 1 cup rolled vanilla wafers with 1-8 teaspoon salt and 1-4 cup butter, melted. Spread about 1-4 inch thick on a shallow greased pan. Cover with Caramel Cream made this way: Mix together 1-2 cup dark brown sugar, 1-3 cup flour and 1-8 teaspoon salt. Add 3 tablespoons thick caramel syrup (made by carmelizing granulated sugar), 3 egg yolks and 1 2-3 cups milk. Cook until thick, in a double boiler. Add 1 teaspoon of vanilla and pour over the crust. Spread with meringue. For the meringue, beat 3 egg whites until stiff, gradually beat in 1-3 cup granulated sugar. Roughly spread over the filling and sprinkle with 3 tablespoons vanilla wafer crubs mixed with 2 tablespoons brown sugar and 1-2 teaspoon vanilla. Bake 25 minutes in a slow oven. Cool and serve, cut into squares.

Here's a tangerine custard to extend your dessert repertoire.

PINEAPPLE CHERRY TOPPING turns an old-fashioned cobbler mixture into an appealing dessert. Mix 2 cups flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1-4 teaspoon salt and 2 tablespoons granulated sugar. Cut in 5 tablespoons fat and slowly mix in an egg and 1-2 cup milk. Spread the dough about 1 inch thick on a greased shallow pan. Cover with 1 cup shredded or cubed pineapple mix with 1-2 cup seeded red cherries, 1-2 cup granulated sugar, 1-2 teaspoon cinnamon, 2 tablespoons flour and 3 tablespoons butter, melted. Bake 24 minutes in a moderate oven. Serve warm or cold with lemon or pineapple sauce. The pineapple and cherries blend especially well both in flavor and color.

TANGERINE CUSTARD

2 cups milk, scalded
3 eggs
½ teaspoon vanilla
¼ cup granulated sugar
Few grains salt
Tangerine sections

Beat eggs slightly; beat in sugar and salt. Pour scalded milk over egg and sugar mixture. Return the custard to top of double boiler; stir over hot water until mixture forms a coating on a metal spoon. Pour immediately into a bowl; add vanilla. When cool, pour into serving dishes. Cover each portion with layer of tangerine sections (free of membrane). Top with whipped cream and serve. Five servings.

Here is an ORANGE FLAVORED PUDDING which is tops. Serve it fresh. Cream together 1-2 cup fat and 1 cup granulated sugar. Mix in 2 eggs, 1-4 teaspoon grated orange rind, 1 tablespoon grated orange rind, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 2 cups flour and 2 1-3 teaspoons baking powder. Beat well and pour into shallow pan, well greased or waxed paper lined. Sprinkle broken nuts mixed with a little orange marmalade (or any other jam or jelly). Bake 25 minutes in a moderate oven. Lemon or foamy sauce goes perfectly with this new dessert.

Fish Facts

When cleaning fish, be sure to remove all blood, especially that along the back bone. If it's left, it may give the fish a musty flavor. Rinse fish through many cold water baths before cooking it. To store fish, wrap it well in waxed paper and leave it in the coldest part of the refrigerator.

New Flavor Ideas

For some new flavor flings try using orange juice in place of milk for softening mashed sweet potatoes; adding a dash of dry mustard to macaroni and cheese dishes or putting broken nutmeats into apple butter and spreading it over warm coffee bread.

Children's Milk Quotas

When the youngsters lose interest in drinking their daily quota of milk, use more milk in cooking. Cook cereals in milk instead of water, serve custards frequently and increase the amount of cream soups, foods with milk sauces and escalloped dishes.

Meat Pie Topping

Lenten Dinner

Oysters come in for their full share of attention in Lent. Make up some in a pot pie. When served with a buttered green vegetable, tossed salad with relish dressing and custard dessert, you have another hit meal idea.

Test for Fresh Fish

When buying fish allow a third of a pound to a serving for steak, canned or fillets. It will take about half a pound a serving for fish with bones, head and tail on. Fish that is fresh will sink in cold water, so, if it floats, do not use it.

Oyster-Stuffed Fish

Oyster-Stuffing for fish is something new. Make a regular bread oyster stuffing, season well and use as a filling between 2 layers of fish steak (mild-flavored) or lightly stuff a large sized fish to be baked.

Fort Hill Wins; Allegany Triumphs 38-35

Sentinels Defeat Handley Five in Final Home Tilt

Winchester Outfit No Match for Fort Hill Hoop Artists

Rice Paces Locals with Six Markers; Blades, Carnell Runnersup

The Fort Hill Sentinels closed their home season here last night by defeating the Handley High Judges of Winchester, Va., at the Fort Hill gym by the score of 43 to 16.

The Sentinels had things their own way from start to finish. Frye opened the scoring with a free throw, Ullery counted from the field and was quickly followed by Frye, Bell and Nesbitt.

Some loose playing on the part of the Judges followed and Tiny Mite Nesbitt took advantage of the lineup to score from the field as the quarter ended with the visitors yet to tally, the Sentinels having a 11-0 lead.

Handley Scoreless

McIntyre broke the ice by scoring the Judges' first point on a free throw, but Carnell and Rice tallied for the Sentinels. Dean made one of two free tosses to make the score 16 to 1. Blades scored on a set shot and Rice followed with a lay-in basket. Huett, Judge substitute, tallied the visitors' third point of the fray on a set shot score. Blades came back with a free toss and Zuckerman pushed one in under the hoop as the half time period ended, with the Sentinels holding a sixteen point margin 21-5.

The third quarter got under way slow with lots of subs for both teams seeing action. Bell tallied as did Pope of the Judges to make it 23-5. The Fort Hill quint took matters into their own hands to score four straight goals, Carnell getting two and Rice and Dean one apiece.

Handley spent the remaining minutes in a desperate attempt to rally but they were unable to penetrate the Sentinel's defense and the quarter ended, Fort Hill 31, Handley 16.

Rice Leads Scorers

A whole new team came into the game for the Hilltoppers and Blades started the ball rolling with a goal and Holtzman collected from the field. Oayes tallied for the Judges to bring the count to 35-10. Lots of wild passes by the Winchester quint marred the best part of the final period. Holtzman and Ritter, the only veterans from last year's Winchester five, tallied a goal apiece for each team, Berryman counted with two fast field goals to give the Sentinels a twenty-one point lead. Huett and Pope made the final goals for the visitors and Blade, Fort Hill, garnered one from the field as the game ended, 43-16.

Rice was top scorer for the Fort Hill crew with six points and Blades and Carnell were runnersup with five apiece. Huett and Pope carried the brunt of the burden for the visitors with four point each.

In the curtain raiser the Fort Hill faculty defeated the Allegany faculty 42-26. Long and Gormer carried off scoring honors for the winners with twelve and nine points respectively, while Chisholm grabbed ten tallies for the losers.

THRILL MAKERS IN SPORT

Los Angeles, Feb. 23 (N.A.N.A.)—The discussion, which started calmly enough, had to do with the great thrill makers of sport—the athletes who, time after time, had made the crowds shiver and shake and roar.

It warmed up quickly. Jack Dempsey had his supporters in boxing—Ty Cobb in baseball—Jim Thorpe in football—Eddie Shore in hockey—Don Meade among the jockeys—Manuel Andrada in polo—Bobby Jones in golf and Bill Tilden in tennis. Still the discussion raged—and when I say raged, I'm not fooling.

This, mind you, was no attempt to pick the greatest in each sport but the one who had provided the most thrills. And when the last objection had been overcome and the last voice had died away, this was the consensus:

Boxing—Joe Louis, Jack Dempsey.
Baseball—Babe Ruth.
Football—Red Grange.
Hockey—Howie Morenz.
Racing—Earl Sande.
Polo—Tommy Hitchcock.
Golf—Walter Hagen.
Tennis—Maurice McLoughlin.

On Their Chairs

Dempsey? He thrilled 'em didn't he? He and Luis Firpo put on the most thrilling fight the ring has known, at least in our time. And what of the day he battered the giant Willard to a pulp—and the day he stood up under Carpentier's best shot to the whiskers and then flattened the Frenchman? Or the night he had Gene Tunney on the floor for the long count?

But the nod went to Louis because, with two exceptions—his first fight with Bob Pastor and his recent engagement with Arturo Godoy—he had the customers standing on their chairs—including the night on which he was knocked out by Max Schmeling. The fact that he can punch so hard, yet doesn't take a punch too well, makes him the head man in thrills where the fighters are concerned. With Carnera—Baer—Paulino—Braddock—Schmeling on two occasions—Lewis and Galento—no matter how long or short the fight, it was a spine tingler.

The Babe's Smashes

Cobb duelling with a pitcher—Cobb running the bases — Cobb against the enemy team — Cobb against the multitude—there was a thrill maker. But what of the Babe and his home-run smashes?

Day after day the crowd turned out not so much to see the ball game as to see the Babe hit a home run. The burden—although he never seemed to realize it—was a heavy one. He could double and triple and get a couple of singles and still the crowd would be dissatisfied. He had to make a home run—and the number of times he came through was amazing.

And, of course, the top thrill came the day he called his shot on Charlie Root of the Cubs. With two strikes on him, he hit a home run over the fence in right-center—just where he had said he would.

Day in and day out, year in and year out, the Babe made the stands bellow. Even when he struck out it was a thrill.

The Galloping Ghost

Jim Thorpe—Clint Frank—Sid Luckman—Davey O'Brien—George Gipp—Sammy Baugh—and, going back down the years, Frank Hinkey and Pudge Heffelfinger, brought the crowds up cheering.

But the fellow who did it more than any of the others? The vote, as I say, went to Red Grange—the Galloping Ghost—the greatest ball carrier in football history.

There were a number of things Red couldn't do—couldn't do, I mean, as well as a lot of other fellows—things like blocking and kicking and passing and tackling. But for three years at Illinois, every time he tucked the ball under his arm, nothing else in the world seemed to matter except that he should be stopped—or go on. And no one who saw him weaving and slipping and darting through the opposing team ever forgot it.

The first time he played as a professional—just by way of indicating how great a hold he had on the public—he outdrew the Army and Navy, who had played in the same city the day before.

The Little Canadian

Eddie Shore, ranging up and down the ice for the Boston Bruins—and now for the New York Americans—has been a commanding figure in hockey for years. Body checking, hooking the puck away from an opponent, taking it himself and careening madly to a goal, he has thrilled thousands and hundreds of thousands. But at least as long as major league hockey has been played south of the border—in this instance the Canadian border—it never has known another figure such as that of the late Howie Morenz—the little Canadian who was the fastest thing in the fastest game in the world.

Andrada, the Argentine, riding at Meadow Brook when he was in his prime, was a shaggy centaur—a Firpo on horseback.

But what of Hitchcock against the English? Hitchcock, riding for the East, against the West? Hitchcock against the Argentines—when he was supposed to be slowing up and everybody was feeling sorry for him?

Tommy came to polo as a stripling and grew to manhood in this picture book game—and he never rode out on the field without the crowd knowing he was there—and rising to watch him as he went tearing down the field.

Meade in racing? Certainly. And Fator and Workman and Seabo and Kurtsinger and all the rest—going away back to Snapper Garrison and Isaac Murphy. But was there ever a more resounding cry on a race track than that of "Come on, Sande!"? The answer—or so they said in this meeting—was "No."

Cleveland Pilot Looks for Club To Prove 'Plenty O.K'

Says Yankees Will Have Plenty of Trouble This Year

By RUSS NEWLAND

San Francisco, Feb. 23 (AP)—The Cleveland Baseball Club, take the word of Manager Oscar Vitt, is going to be "plenty O.K." this season.

Vitt won't go so far as to say the Indians will win the pennant but in an appraisal of his 1940 prospects he volunteered the information "the Yankees can be beat."

The Yankees have been rough housing their American League relatives for years. Vitt thinks the big bullies are going to have their ears pinned back more frequently this season than last.

League Better Balanced

"The Red Sox, Detroit and Cleveland will give the Yankees plenty of trouble this year," he said. "From all indications every club in the league will be better balanced.

Cleveland's chief problem, as Vitt sees it, is linked up with a couple of "ifs." They're in the pitching department.

If Mel Harder can get his winning streak started early in the schedule and if Johnny Allen's repaired arm holds up, Vitt believes the Indians will be prepared to put on some old fashioned scalping parties.

Harder, heretofore, has been a late starter. He gets going in the stretch run. Allen, since a bone chip was removed from his arm, has been a five-inning pitcher.

Rookies Showed Up Well

Lou Boudreau, the new shortstop acquired from Buffalo, turned in such a smart performance at the tail end of last season that his manager already is comparing him to the best in the game.

Two youngsters will get a whack at the second base job. One is Oscar Grimes, a holdover, and the other is Ray Mack, purchased from Buffalo along with Boudreau. Mack also finished the last six weeks of the 1939 season with Cleveland and looked great.

The outfield and catching department are the least of Cleveland's worries.

The club will take the largest squad of pitchers—nineteen— to Spring training camp since 1928.

Potomac Downs West Liberty

Keyser, W. Va., Feb. 23 — West Liberty teachers fell before Potomac State here tonight 43 to 40 in a hard fought game after holding a 29 to 27 lead at the end of the third quarter.

The lead changed hand several times in the fourth period but with the score tied at 33-33 Harmon and Starford scored to put Potomac State out in front to stay.

Harmon with 18 and Fittro with 11 points led the state offensive.

Allegany Hi Gets Scare but Spurts To Top Piedmont

Campobello Crew Trailing 30-25 in Last Period Wins by 38-35

Gaffney's Absence Felt; Allegany Girls in Prelim 40-6

Piedmont, W. Va., Feb. 23.—(Special to the NEWS)—Allegany high school's Western Maryland Interscholastic League championship basketball team had a narrow squeeze here tonight when Piedmont high spurted after trailing 25-22 at the three quarters and went ahead 30-25 in the last quarter only to lose out 38-35.

The absence of Jim Gaffney, giant center of the Cumberland team, probably had much to do with difference in play of the team, but Coach John Casey's improved tossers made a battle of it all the way and McLucas, Gaffney's sub, put up a good game, although held scoreless.

Allegany trailed at the quarter 7-3 as the visitors found difficulty getting the range. With Piedmont leading 11-10 Winters, bagged the field goal that put Allegany ahead for the first time late in the second period, the half ending 16-12 in their favor.

Piedmont outscored Allegany 10-9 in the third period, the score standing 25-22 at the intermission and then the unexpected happened. Piedmont opened the final period with a rush and led at 30-25 before Allegany spurted. The score was knotted three times in the final period, as the visitors battled on to win out after Bell set the stage for Allegany's final drive.

Bell led Allegany with six fielders and a foul for 13 points. Niland and Kelly were the leading scorers for Piedmont each topping Bell's total by a point.

In the preliminary game the Allegany girls easily defeated the Piedmont girls' team 40-6.

National Indoor Tennis Tourney Seedings Are Shattered by Upsets

New York, Feb. 23 (AP)—The seedings in the national indoor tennis tournament were shattered in three places today as Elwood Cooke of Portland, Ore., Edward Alloo of Berkeley, Calif., and Joe Fishback of New York were eliminated by unranked opponents in second round matches.

Cooke, a finalist at Wimbledon last year, and rated behind top-seeded Bobby Riggs in the draw, bowed to Marvin Kantrowitz of New York, and Lehigh University, 6-3, 2-6, 9-7. His defeat came a few moments after the sixth-seeded Fishback had dropped a 7-5, 3-6, 9-7 encounter to Alfred Jarvis, of Tenafly, N. J.

In the concluding duel of the day, Alloo, who preceded Fishback in the seedings, was swept aside by big Frank Froehling, of Chicago, 6-4, 6-4. Riggs himself rested today and will make his bid for a spot in the third round tomorrow when he faces Lester Kabacoff, Alloo's fellow townsman.

Frank Bowden, of New York, ranked fourth, defeated Vincent Paul, also of New York, 6-4, 6-2, while in another all-New York battle, Chauncey Steele, seventh seeded, disposed of J. Norman Anderson, 8-6, 6-1.

LaSalle Athletic Fund Drive Set in Motion--Booster Game

The second stage of the LaSalle Athletic Association campaign for its fund to promote the school's athletic program with the return of Patrick J. Conway as athletic director and coach was set in motion last evening at a meeting at Carroll Hall.

After a check of the pledge cards turned in, the names of last year's subscribers, pledge cards were distributed to members of the committee to contact the contributors for this year's renewal.

Last spring nearly 300 graduates, former students and friends of the school pledged themselves to contribute $7.50, in annual payments of $2.50, to enable LaSalle to secure a full-time secular coach and teacher.

The 1939 subscriptions totaled less than $1,500, however, and as the 1940-41 program, including Coach "Pat" Conway's salary, will run higher it is estimated that at least $1,800 must be collected this spring. To reach the goal it will be necessary for new pledges to be secured and many of the original subscriptions raised.

It was announced at last night's meeting that the LaSalle high school basketball team will play the Freshman team of St. Francis College, Loretto, Pa., in a Boosters Day program at SS. Peter and Paul School gym here on Sunday, March 3.

Championships of National AAU in New York Tonight

Interest Centers in Mile Run and Threat To Fenske

New York, Feb. 23 (AP)—The National A.A.U. championships, mid-season climax of each indoor track season, will be presented at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night with a cast of characters that includes eight individual defending champions.

The competitors come from as far away as Torrance, Calif., and as near at hand as the New York A. C. From Torrance comes Lou Zamperini to offer the strongest threat to Chuck Fenske's string of five straight mile - running victories. From the New York A. C. clubhouse a few blocks up the street comes a mass entry sure to weld another link in the long chain of winged foot team championships.

Fenske Favored to Win

There will be two changes in the routine of past years. For the first time since 1932, the racing part of the program returns to yards, a move made because yards are more familiar to US. fans. For the first time in its history, the meet will be run with six point-scoring places.

It would be branding the form chart a liar to predict anything but a victory for Fenske in the mile. The Wisconsin boy has been too fast and too consistent.

Yet Glenn Cunningham came into the nationals in his first major indoor season, in 1933, with an almost equally impressive record, and still was beaten by Gene Venzke.

Champs In Field

Venzke, who set the meet record at 4:15 in 1932, and Cunningham will be in against Fenske and Zamperini. So will Archie San Romani. This gives the race the same field that chased Fenske to his second 4:07.4 mile a week ago.

Other defending champions in feature events are Charley Beetham, the unpredictable Ohioan, in the 600; John Borican, matched with John Woodruff again as he tries to repeat in the 1,000; Don Lash in the three-mile, Tommy Deckard in the steeplechase, Allan Tolmich in the hurdles and Herb Thompson in the sprint.

Crane Clothiers Whip Berkeley Springs Five

Crane Clothier basketeers swept their two-game series with the Berkeley Springs CCC team by nosing out the West Virginians 26 to 20 last night on the Central Y. M. C. A. court. The losers were on the long end of a 6-4 score at the end of the first period, but the locals outscored Berkeley six to four in the next round to close the period with the score knotted at 10-all. The third canto ended with the locals on top, 18-16.

Largent, Smith, Jim Angellatta, Malamphy and Spoltore each bagged four markers for the victors while Mayfield of the CCC craw tallied six points to capture high-scoring honors. The lineups:

CRANE CLOTHIERS	G	FG	Pts.

Bluefield College Cancels Court Games

Bluefield, W. Va., Feb. 23 (AP)—President E. C. Wade of Bluefield College, where a student demonstration last week followed the dismissal of Captain Bob Herder from the basketball team, announced today cancellation of remaining games on the schedule.

It was reported the decision was reached because of a possible student demonstration at a game scheduled with Bastian CCC for tonight.

Coach Mullie Lenoir declined comment.

PRIZEFIGHTER AND THE LADIES

If all the fight training grinds were as easy to take as this one, the pugilistic profession probably would be overcrowded. Here's Gus Lesnevitch, who meets Billy Conn, lightheavy king, for the latter's title in Miami Beach, Feb. 28, pictured with friends.

Parsons Cinches Potomac Valley Conference Title

Panthers Come from Behind To Nose out Petersburg 41 to 35

Parsons, W. Va., Feb. 23.—Coach Myrl Kepner's Parsons High Panthers came from behind in a spirited last-quarter rally here tonight to edge out a 41-35 win over the Petersburg Vikings and clinch the Potomac Valley Conference basketball championship for the third successive year.

Coach Whitey Kendall's Vikings definitely had the tiltists on the run, going into the final stanza with an eight-point lead but were unable to stave off the closing rush of the Panthers. Petersburg was on top for the first three periods, the quarter scores reading 16-8, 23-9 and 28-20.

Frank Bowley, Panther forward, was the game's top bomber with 15 tallies on five doubledeckers and the same number of fouls while Sears and Hill of Petersburg, and Dow Cox of Parsons, were tied for the runnerup berth with 12 counters each. Sears, Petersburg center, was banished on fouls in the fourth quarter. The lineups:

PARSONS	G	FG	Pts.

Sloystown Defeats Garrett High, 40-29

Garrett, Pa., Feb. 23—Despite a 22-point performance by Lane, Garrett High went down to defeat before Stoystown High in a recent game here. The score was 40-29.

Garrett held an 11-10 lead at the end of the first quarter but the winners were in front at 18-16 at the half and 31-25 at the end of the third period.

Nine Naval Academy Teams See Action Today

Annapolis, Feb. 23 (AP) — Navy athletes get a final workout in the waning indoor sports season tomorrow with nine contests on the week-end sports calendar.

The resurgent basketball team, conquerors of Gettysburg College yesterday after losing ten in eleven previous starts, will meet William and Mary College.

The varsity fencing team, undefeated in three years, will meet swordsmen from St. Johns University, Brooklyn. The smallbore rifle squad, likewise unlicked in three years, puts its record on the line against marksmen from George Washington University.

Final varsity contest pits the Midshipmen against the Dartmouth gymnasium squad.

The Navy plebes will have a busy day, with five contests on their program. They start against the University of Pennsylvania frosh wrestlers, and continue through matches with George Washington U. freshmen in basketball and small bore rifle; Temple University in gymnasium, and the William Penn Charter School of Philadelphia in fencing

Chandler Harper Takes Lead in N. Orleans Open

Smashes Sensational 32-25-67 on Windswept Links To Tie Record

By MORTIMER KREEGER

New Orleans, Feb. 23. (AP)—Chandler Harper, 25-year old pro from Portsmouth, Va., smashed a sensational 32-35—67 over the long, windswept City Park links today to tie the course record and lead the first round of the $10,000 New Orleans open golf tournament.

One of the last players to finish 18 holes, Harper bettered the 36-32—68 which put Ben Hogan of White Plains, N. Y., in second place and the 35-34—69 which gave Tony Long of Inwood, L. I., the third spot.

Five players were tied at 70 and four at 71, making a total of 12 entrants to beat the course par of 72.

Never Won Major Title

Harper has never won a major title although he held his state amateur championship three times and open crown twice.

Hogan's bad luck with his putter kept him from the day's and the course's best round. He missed a three-footer on the fourth, three-putter the sixth and on the final three holes putts of under six feet stopped inches short.

An estimated 8,000 persons followed the players. The biggest gallery trailed (Slammin) Sammy Snead of Shawnee, Pa., whose one-under-par, 36-35—71, was good only for a ninth-place tie.

Wehrle Low Amateur

Tied at 70 were Lloyd mangrum of Oak Park, Ill.; Paul Runyan of White Plains, N. Y.; Craig Wood of Mamaroneck, N. Y.; Harold (Jug) McSpaden of Winchester, Mass., and Ralph Guldahl of Chicago.

Gene Sarazen, the venerable Connecticut farmer, despite his age and a sore thumb, cracked out a 71 to tie with Snead, Vic Ghezzi of Deal, N. J., and Bud Williamson of Fort Wayne, Ind.

Centre Street Seeks Sunday League Title

Donald Palmer's Centre Street M. E. basketeers will shoot the works today on the Central Y.M.C.A. court at 3 o'clock in an effort to capture the Junior Sunday School League championship in the shortest possible time by again defeating Grace Baptist cagers.

Last Saturday, the title series was initiated with Centre Street scoring a comparatively easy 37-28 victory. Except for a few moments at the start of the tussle, Centre Street held the upper hand all the way.

If a third and deciding game is necessary to decide the crown, it will be staged next Saturday. Centre Street and Grace Baptist, coached by Henry Stroup, each won nine of ten tilts during the regular campaign to wind up in a tie for first place.

Paw Paw-St. Peters Contest Postponed

The scheduled game between Paw Paw, W. Va., high and St. Peter's of Westernport at Paw Paw, scheduled for last night, has been postponed and will be played next Thursday if Paw Paw loses out in the tournament play. If Paw Paw gets by its tournament opener the game will be played Tuesday, March 5.

Lesnevich Lauds Conn but Figures He'll Take Title

Has Style Solved for Go Wednesday--"Conn on Way Up"

By LARRY ROLLINS

Miami, Fla., Feb. 23 (AP)—Perspiring Gus Lesnevich conceded today that Billy Conn is a pretty good fighter — perhaps even a coming heavyweight champion — but insisted there will be a new light heavy king come Wednesday night.

"It's up to me to profit by the mistakes I made against Conn last November," said Lesnevich, who is back for another crack at the title less than four months after muffing his first big chance.

"It took that fight to teach me how to handle Conn. Now I'm ready to win."

Lesnevich lay on a rubbing table and tacitly admitted Conn outsmarted him in their first meeting.

"That's right," put in Manager Joe Vella. "Conn is a great counter-puncher, and Gus carried the fight to him all the way — just as Billy expected."

"I won the first four rounds," Lesnevich declared, "and then Conn went to work. I came back later, but Conn saved himself better than I did, and had more left."

Conn, Vella explained, takes care of himself the first two minutes of a round, letting the other fellow wear himself out, and then turns on the steam.

Lesnevich believes he can outbox Conn, and will be content to do that until the champion elects to slug.

Here's what Gus thinks about Billy's prospects in the heavyweight division:

"I see no reason why he shouldn't go all right. He's tall enough to handle more weight, and he's better than most of the heavies. He ought to give Joe Louis a great fight."

Ridgeley Hoopmen Trim Moorefield

With Captain John Lookabaugh showing the way with 21 markers on nine baskets and three of eight free throws, Coach Hubert Price's Ridgeley High cagers walloped Moorefield High 41 to 15 in a Potomac Valley Conference tussle last night on the Ridgeley boards.

The Pricemen were on top through the entire contest, the scores at the quarter posts reading 8-4, 22-8 and 28-10. Moorefield was held to seven goals from the field, while the Black and White tallied 18 doubledeckers. Miley, with three field goals and a six-point total, was the only Jacket to tally more than one fielder.

In the preliminary tilt the Moorefield Juniors trimmed the Ridgeley Juniors 18 to 7, with Lindsay getting all of the losers' points. The lineups of the main game:

Fort Hill Wins; Allegany Triumphs 38-35

Sentinels Defeat Handley Five in Final Home Tilt

Rice Paces Locals with Six Markers; Blades, Carnell Runnersup

The Fort Hill Sentinels closed their home season here last night by defeating the Handley High Judges of Winchester, Va., at the Fort Hill gym by the score of 43 to 18.

The Sentinels had things their own way from start to finish. Frye opened the scoring with a free throw, Ullery counted from the field and was quickly followed by Frye, Bell and Nesbitt.

Some loose playing on the part of the Judges followed and Tiny Mite Nesbitt took advantage of the lineup to score from the field as the quarter ended with the visitors yet to tally, the Sentinels having a 11-0 lead.

Handley Scoreless

McIntyre broke the ice by scoring the Judges' first point on a free throw, but Carnell and Rice tallied for the Sentinels. Dean made one of two free tosses to make the score 16 to 1. Blades scored on a set shot and Rice followed with a two-in basket. Huett, Judge substitute, tallied the visitors' third point of the fray on a set shot score. Blades came back with a free toss and Zuckerman pushed one in under the hoop as the half time period ended, with the Sentinels holding a sixteen point margin 21-5.

The third quarter got under way slow with lots of subs for both teams seeing action. Bell tallied as did Pope of the Judges to make it 23-5. The Fort Hill quint took matters into their own hands to score four straight goals, Carnell getting two and Rice and Dean one apiece.

Handley spent the remaining minutes in a desperate attempt to rally but they were unable to penetrate the Sentinel's defense and the game ended, Fort Hill 31, Handley 18.

Rice Leads Scorers

A whole new team came into the game for the Hilltoppers and Blades started the ball rolling with a goal and Holtzman collected from the field. Oayes tallied for the Judges to bring the count to 35-10. Lots of wild passes by the Winchester quint marred the best part of the final period. Holtzman and Ritter, the only veterans from last year's Winchester five, tallied a goal apiece for each team, Berryman counted with two fast field goals to give the Sentinels a twenty-one point lead. Huett and Pope made the final goals for the visitors and Blade, Fort Hill, garnered one from the field as the game ended, 43-16.

Rice was top scorer for the Fort Hill crew with six points and Blades and Carnell were runnersup with five apiece. Huett and Pope carried the brunt of the burden for the visitors with four point each.

In the curtain raiser the Fort Hill faculty defeated the Allegany faculty 42-26. Long and Gormer carried off scoring honors for the winners with twelve and nine points respectively, while Chisholm grabbed ten tallies for the losers.

THRILL MAKERS IN SPORT

Los Angeles, Feb. 23 (N.A.N.A.)—The discussion, which started calmly enough, had to do with the great thrill makers of sport—the athletes who, time after time, had made the crowds shiver and shake and roar.

It warmed up quickly. Jack Dempsey had his supporters in boxing—Ty Cobb in baseball—Jim Thorpe in football—Eddie Shore in hockey—Don Meade among the jockeys—Manuel Andrada in polo—Bobby Jones in golf and Bill Tilden in tennis. Still the discussion raged—and when I say raged, I'm not fooling.

This, mind you, was no attempt to pick the greatest in each sport but the one who had provided the most thrills. And when the last objection had been overcome and the last voice had died away, this was the consensus:

Boxing—Joe Louis, Jack Dempsey.
Baseball—Babe Ruth.
Football—Red Grange.
Hockey—Howie Morenz.
Racing—Earl Sande.
Polo—Tommy Hitchcock.
Golf—Walter Hagen.
Tennis—Maurice McLoughlin.

On Their Chairs

Dempsey? He thrilled 'em didn't he? He and Luis Firpo put on the most thrilling fight the ring has known, at least in our time. And what of the day he battered the giant Willard to a pulp—and the day he stood up under Carpentier's best shot to the whiskers and then flattened the Frenchman? Or the night he had Gene Tunney on the floor for the long count?

But the nod went to Louis because, with two exceptions—his first fight with Bob Pastor and his recent engagement with Arturo Godoy—he had the customers standing on their chairs—including the night on which he was knocked out by Max Schmeling. The fact that he can punch so hard, yet doesn't take a punch too well, makes him the head man in thrills where the fighters are concerned. With Carnera—Baer—Paulino—Braddock—Schmeling on two occasions—Lewis and Galento—no matter how long or short the fight, it was a spine tingler.

The Babe's Smashes

Cobb duelling with a pitcher—Cobb running the bases — Cobb against the enemy team — Cobb against the multitude—there was a thrill maker. But what of the Babe and his home-run smashes?

Day after day the crowd turned out not so much to see the ball game as to see the Babe hit a home run. The burden—although he never seemed to realize it—was a heavy one. He could double and triple and get a couple of singles and still the crowd would be dissatisfied. He had to make a home run—and the number of times he came through was amazing.

And, of course, the top thrill came the day he called his shot on Charlie Root of the Cubs. With two strikes on him, he hit a home run over the fence in right-center—just where he had said he would.

Day in and day out, year in and year out, the Babe made the stands bellow. Even when he struck out it was a thrill.

The Galloping Ghost

Jim Thorpe—Clint Frank—Sid Luckman—Davey O'Brien—George Gipp—Sammy Baugh—and, going back down the years, Frank Hinkey and Pudge Heffelfinger, brought the crowds up cheering.

But the fellow who did it more than any of the others? The vote, as I say, went to Red Grange—the Galloping Ghost—the greatest ball carrier in football history.

There were a number of things Red couldn't do—couldn't do, I mean, as well as a lot of other fellows—things like blocking and kicking and passing and tackling. But for three years at Illinois, every time he tucked the ball under his arm, nothing else in the world seemed to matter except that he should be stopped—or go on. And no one who saw him weaving and slipping and darting through the opposing team ever forgot it.

The first time he played as a professional—just by way of indicating how great a hold he had on the public—he outdrew the Army and Navy, who had played in the same city the day before.

The Little Canadian

Eddie Shore, ranging up and down the ice for the Boston Bruins—and now for the New York Americans—has been a commanding figure in hockey for years. Body checking, hooking the puck away from an opponent, taking it himself and careening madly to a goal, he has thrilled thousands and hundreds of thousands. But at least as long as major league hockey has been played south of the border—in this instance the Canadian border—it never has known another figure such as that of the late Howie Morenz—the little Canadian who was the fastest thing in the fastest game in the world.

Andrada, the Argentine, riding at Meadow Brook when he was in his prime, was a shaggy centaur—a Firpo on horseback.

But what of Hitchcock against the English? Hitchcock, riding for the East, against the West? Hitchcock against the Argentines—when he was supposed to be slowing up and everybody was feeling sorry for him?

Tommy came to polo as a stripling and grew to manhood in this picture book game—and he never rode out on the field without the crowd knowing he was there—and rising to watch him as he went tearing down the field.

Meade in racing? Certainly. And Fator and Workman and Seabo and Kurtsinger and all the rest—going away back to Snapper Garrison and Isaac Murphy. But was there ever a more resounding cry on a race track than that of "Come on, Sande!"? The answer—or so they said in this meeting—was "No."

Cleveland Pilot Looks for Club To Prove 'Plenty O.K'

Says Yankees Will Have Plenty of Trouble This Year

By RUSS NEWLAND

San Francisco, Feb. 23 (AP)—The Cleveland Baseball Club, take the word of Manager Oscar Vitt, is going to be "plenty O.K." this season.

Vitt won't go so far as to say the Indians will win the pennant but in an appraisal of his 1940 prospects he volunteered the information "the Yankees can be beat."

The Yankees have been rough housing their American League relatives for years. Vitt thinks the big bullies are going to have their ears pinned back more frequently this season than last.

League Better Balanced

"The Red Sox, Detroit and Cleveland will give the Yankees plenty of trouble this year," he said. "From all indications every club in the league will be better balanced.

Cleveland's chief problem, as Vitt sees it, is linked up with a couple of "ifs." They're in the pitching department.

If Mel Harder can get his winning streak started early in the schedule and if Johnny Allen's repaired arm holds up, Vitt believes the Indians will be prepared to put on some old fashioned scalping parties.

Harder, heretofore, has been a late starter. He gets going in the stretch run. Allen, since a bone chip was removed from his arm, has been a five-inning pitcher.

Rookies Showed Up Well

Lou Boudreau, the new shortstop acquired from Buffalo, turned in such a smart performance at the tail end of last season that his manager already is comparing him to the best in the game.

Two youngsters will get a whack at the second base job. One is Oscar Grimes, a holdover, and the other is Ray Mack, purchased from Buffalo along with Boudreau. Mack also finished the last six weeks of the 1939 season with Cleveland and looked great.

The outfield and catching department are the least of Cleveland's worries.

The club will take the largest squad of pitchers—nineteen— to Spring training camp since 1928.

Potomac Downs West Liberty

Keyser, W. Va., Feb. 23 — West Liberty teachers fell before Potomac State here tonight 43 to 40 in a hard fought game after holding a 29 to 27 lead at the end of the third quarter.

The lead changed hand several times in the fourth period but with the score tied at 33-33 Harmon and Starford scored to put Potomac State out in front to stay.

Harmon with 18 and Fittro with 11 points led the state offensive.

Allegany Hi Gets Scare but Spurts To Top Piedmont

Gaffney's Absence Felt; Allegany Girls in Prelim 40-6

Piedmont, W. Va., Feb. 23.—(Special to the NEWS)—Allegany high school's Western Maryland Interscholastic League championship basketball team had a narrow squeeze here tonight when Piedmont high spurted after trailing 25-22 at the three quarters and went ahead 30-25 in the last quarter only to lose out 38-35.

The absence of Jim Gaffney, giant center of the Cumberland team, probably had much to do with difference in play of the team, but Coach John Casey's improved tossers made a battle of it all the way and McLucas, Gaffney's sub, put up a good game, although held scoreless.

Allegany trailed at the quarter 7-3 as the visitors found difficulty getting the range. With Piedmont leading 11-10 Winters, bagged the field goal that put Allegany ahead for the first time late in the second period, the half ending 16-12 in their favor.

Piedmont outscored Allegany 10-9 in the third period, the score standing 25-22 at the intermission and then the unexpected happened. Piedmont opened the final period with a rush and led at 30-25 before Allegany spurted. The score was knotted three times in the final period, as the visitors battled on to win out after Bell set the stage for Allegany's final drive.

Bell led Allegany with six fielders and a foul for 13 points. Niland and Kelly were the leading scorers for Piedmont each topping Bell's total by a point.

In the preliminary game the Allegany girls easily defeated the Piedmont girls' team 40-6.

National Indoor Tennis Tourney Seedings Are Shattered by Upsets

New York, Feb. 23 (AP)—The seedings in the national indoor tennis tournament were shattered in three places today as Elwood Cooke of Portland, Ore., Edward Alloo of Berkeley, Calif., and Joe Fishback of New York were eliminated by unranked opponents in second round matches.

Cooke, a finalist at Wimbledon last year, and rated behind top-seeded Bobby Riggs in the draw, bowed to Marvin Kantrowitz of New York, and Lehigh University, 6-3, 2-6, 9-7. His defeat came a few moments after the sixth-seeded Fishback had dropped a 7-5, 3-6, 9-7 encounter to Alfred Jarvis, of Tenafly, N. J.

In the concluding duel of the day, Alloo, who preceded Fishback in the seedings, was swept aside by big Frank Froehling, of Chicago, 6-4, 6-4. Riggs himself rested today and will make his bid for a spot in the third round tomorrow when he faces Lester Kabacoff, Alloo's fellow townsman.

Frank Bowden, of New York, ranked fourth, defeated Vincent Paul, also of New York, 6-4, 6-2, while in another all-New York battle, Chauncey Steele, seventh seeded, disposed of J. Norman Anderson, 8-6, 6-1.

Bluefield College Cancels Court Games

Bluefield, W. Va., Feb. 23 (AP)—President E. C. Wade of Bluefield College, where a student demonstration last week followed the dismissal of Captain Bob Herder from the basketball team, announced today cancellation of remaining games on the schedule.

It was reported the decision was reached because of a possible student demonstration at a game scheduled with Bastian CCC for tonight.

Coach Mullie Lenoir declined comment.

LaSalle Athletic Fund Drive Set in Motion--Booster Game

The second stage of the LaSalle Athletic Association campaign for its fund to promote the school's athletic program with the return of Patrick J. Conway as athletic director and coach was set in motion last evening at a meeting at Carroll Hall.

After a check of the pledge cards turned in, the names of last year's subscribers, pledge cards were distributed to members of the committee to contact the contributors for this year's renewal.

Last spring nearly 300 graduates, former students and friends of the school pledged themselves to contribute $7.50, in annual payments of $2.50, to enable LaSalle to secure a full-time secular coach and teacher.

The 1939 subscriptions totaled less than $1,500, however, and as the 1940-41 program, including Coach "Pat" Conway's salary, will run higher it is estimated that at least $1,800 must be collected this spring. To reach the goal it will be necessary for new pledges to be secured and many of the original subscriptions raised.

It was announced at last night's meeting that the LaSalle high school basketball team will play the Freshman team of St. Francis College, Loretto, Pa., in a Boosters Day program at SS. Peter and Paul School gym here on Sunday, March 3.

Championships of National AAU in New York Tonight

Interest Centers in Mile Run and Threat To Fenske

New York, Feb. 23 (AP)—The National A.A.U. championships, mid-season climax of each indoor track season, will be presented at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night with a cast of characters that includes eight individual defending champions.

The competitors come from as far away as Torrance, Calif., and as near at hand as the New York A. C. From Torrance comes Lou Zamperini to offer the strongest threat to Chuck Fenske's string of five straight mile - running victories. From the New York A. C. clubhouse a few blocks up the street comes a mass entry sure to weld another link in the long chain of winged foot team championships.

Fenske Favored to Win

There will be two changes in the routine of past years. For the first time since 1932, the racing part of the program returns to yards, a move made because yards are more familiar to US. fans. For the first time in its history, the meet will be run with six point-scoring places.

It would be branding the form chart a liar to predict anything but a victory for Fenske in the mile. The Wisconsin boy has been too fast and too consistent.

Yet Glenn Cunningham came into the nationals in his first major indoor season, in 1933, with an almost equally impressive record, and still was beaten by Gene Venzke.

Champs In Field

Venzke, who set the meet record at 4:15 in 1932, and Cunningham will be in against Fenske and Zamperini. So will Archie San Romani. This gives the race the same field that chased Fenske to his second 4:07.4 mile a week ago.

Other defending champions in feature events are Charley Beetham, the unpredictable Ohioan, in the 600; John Borican, matched with John Woodruff again as he tries to repeat in the 1,000; Don Lash in the three-mile, Tommy Deckard in the steeplechase, Allan Tolmich in the hurdles and Herb Thompson in the sprint.

Crane Clothiers Whip Berkeley Springs Five

Crane Clothier basketeers swept their two-game series with the Berkeley Springs CCC team by nosing out the West Virginians 26 to 20 last night on the Central Y. M. C. A. court. The losers were on the long end of a 6-4 score at the end of the first period, but the locals outscored Berkeley six to four in the next round to close the period with the score knotted at 10-all. The third canto ended with the locals on top, 18-16.

Largent, Smith, Jim Angellatta, Malamphy and Spoltore each bagged four markers for the victors while Mayfield of the CCC craw tallied six points to capture high-scoring honors. The lineups:

CRANE CLOTHIERS	G	FG	Pts.

Parsons Cinches Potomac Valley Conference Title

Panthers Come from Behind To Nose out Petersburg 41 to 35

Parsons, W. Va., Feb. 23.—Coach Myrl Kepner's Parsons High Panthers came from behind in a spirited last-quarter rally here tonight to edge out a 41-35 win over the Petersburg Vikings and clinch the Potomac Valley Conference basketball championship for the third successive year.

Coach Whitey Kendall's Vikings definitely had the tiltists on the run, going into the final stanza with an eight-point lead but were unable to stave off the closing rush of the Panthers. Petersburg was on top for the first three periods, the quarter scores reading 16-8, 23-9 and 28-20.

Frank Bowley, Panther forward, was the game's top bomber with 15 tallies on five doubledeckers and the same number of fouls while Sears and Hill of Petersburg, and Dow Cox of Parsons, were tied for the runnerup berth with 12 counters each. Sears, Petersburg center, was banished on fouls in the fourth quarter. The lineups:

PARSONS	G	FG	Pts.
Bowley f	5	5-10	15
Griffith f	1	1-2	3
Wolfe c	1	2-2	4

Stoystown Defeats Garrett High, 40-29

Garrett, Pa., Feb. 23—Despite a 22-point performance by Lane, Garrett High went down to defeat before Stoystown High in a recent game here. The score was 40-29.

Garrett held an 11-10 lead at the end of the first quarter but the winners were in front at 18-16 at the half and 31-25 at the end of the third period.

Nine Naval Academy Teams See Action Today

Annapolis, Feb. 23 (AP) — Navy athletes get a final workout in the waning indoor sports season tomorrow with nine contests on the weekend sports calendar.

The resurgent basketball team, conquerors of Gettysburg College yesterday after losing ten in eleven previous starts, will meet William and Mary College.

The varsity fencing team, undefeated in three years, will meet swordsmen from St. Johns University, Brooklyn. The smallbore rifle squad, likewise unlicked in three years, puts its record on the line against marksmen from George Washington University.

Final varsity contest pits the Midshipmen against the Dartmouth gymnasium squad.

The Navy plebes will have a busy day, with five contests on their program. They start against the University of Pennsylvania frosh wrestlers, and continue through matches with George Washington U. freshmen in basketball and small bore rifle; Temple University in gymnasium, and the William Penn Charter School of Philadelphia in fencing.

Chandler Harper Takes Lead in N. Orleans Open

By MORTIMER KREEGER

New Orleans, Feb. 23, (AP)—Chandler Harper, 25-year old pro from Portsmouth, Va., smashed a sensational 32-35—67 over the long, windswept City Park links today to tie the course record and lead the first round of the $10,000 New Orleans open golf tournament.

One of the last players to finish 18 holes, Harper bettered the 36-32—68 which put Ben Hogan of White Plains, N. Y., in second place and the 35-34—69 which gave Tony Long of Inwood, L. I., the third spot.

Five players were tied at 70 and four at 71, making a total of 12 entrants to beat the course par of 72.

Never Won Major Title

Harper has never won a major title although he held his state amateur championship three times and open crown twice.

Hogan's bad luck with his putter kept him from the day's and the course's best round. He missed a three-footer on the fourth, three-putter the sixth and on the final three holes putts of under six feet stopped inches short.

An estimated 8,000 persons followed the players. The biggest gallery trailed (Slammin) Sammy Snead of Shawnee, Pa., whose one-under-par, 36-35—71, was good only for a ninth-place tie.

Wehrle Low Amateur

Tied at 70 were Lloyd mangrum of Oak Park, Ill.; Paul Runyan of White Plains, N. Y.; Craig Wood of Mamaroneck, N. Y.; Harold (Jug) McSpaden of Winchester, Mass., and Ralph Guldahl of Chicago.

Gene Sarazen, the venerable Connecticut farmer, despite his age and a sore thumb, cracked out a 71 to tie with Snead, Vic Ghezzi of Deal, N. J., and Bud Williamson of Fort Wayne, Ind.

Centre Street Seeks Sunday League Title

Donald Palmer's Centre Street M. E. basketeers will shoot the works today on the Central Y.M.C.A. court at 3 o'clock in an effort to capture the Junior Sunday School League championship in the shortest possible time by again defeating Grace Baptist cagers.

Last Saturday, the title series was initiated with Centre Street scoring a comparatively easy 37-28 victory. Except for a few moments at the start of the tussle, Centre Street held the upper hand all the way.

If a third and deciding game is necessary to decide the crown, it will be staged next Saturday. Centre Street and Grace Baptist, coached by Henry Stroup, each won nine of ten tilts during the regular campaign to wind up in a tie for first place.

Paw Paw-St. Peters Contest Postponed

The scheduled game between Paw Paw, W. Va., high and St. Peter's of Westernport at Paw Paw, scheduled for last night, has been postponed and will be played next Thursday if Paw Paw loses out in the tournament play. If Paw Paw gets by its tournament opener the game will be played Tuesday, March 5.

Lesnevich Lauds Conn but Figures He'll Take Title

Has Style Solved for Go Wednesday--"Conn on Way Up"

By LARRY ROLLINS

Miami, Fla., Feb. 23 (AP)—Perspiring Gus Lesnevich conceded today that Billy Conn is a pretty good fighter — perhaps even a coming heavyweight champion — but insisted there will be a new light heavy king come Wednesday night.

"It's up to me to profit by the mistakes I made against Conn last November," said Lesnevich, who is back for another crack at the title less than four months after muffing his first big chance.

"It took that fight to teach me how to handle Conn. Now I'm ready to win."

Lesnevich lay on a rubbing table and tacitly admitted Conn outsmarted him in their first meeting.

"That's right," put in Manager Joe Vella. "Conn is a great counter-puncher, and Gus carried the fight to him all the way — just as Billy expected."

"I won the first four rounds," Lesnevich declared, "and then Conn went to work. I came back later, but Conn saved himself better than I did, and had more left."

Conn, Vella explained, takes care of himself the first two minutes of a round, letting the other fellow wear himself out, and then turns on the steam.

Lesnevich believes he can outbox Conn, and will be content to do that until the champion elects to slug.

Here's what Gus thinks about Billy's prospects in the heavyweight division:

"I see no reason why he shouldn't go all right. He's tall enough to handle more weight, and he's better than most of the heavies. He ought to give Joe Louis a great fight."

Ridgeley Hoopmen Trim Moorefield

With Captain John Lookabaugh showing the way with 21 markers on nine baskets and three of eight free throws, Coach Hubert Price's Ridgeley High cagers walloped Moorefield High 41 to 15 in a Potomac Valley Conference tussle last night on the Ridgeley boards.

The Pricemen were on top through the entire contest, the scores at the quarter posts reading 8-4, 22-8 and 28-10. Moorefield was held to seven goals from the field, while the Black and White tallied 18 doubledeckers. Miley, with three field goals and a six-point total, was the only Jacket to tally more than one fielder.

In the preliminary tilt the Moorefield Juniors trimmed the Ridgeley Juniors 18 to 7, with Lindsay getting all of the losers' points. The lineups of the main game:

RIDGELEY	G	FG	Pts.
Washabaug f	3	2-3	8
Abe f	4	0-0	8

Collegians To Resume Schedule Tomorrow

Cardon Floormen Meet Locals in Return Contest

Joust at SS. Peter & Paul Gym Will Be "Rubber" Game

Local Management Announces Reduction in Admission Prices

The McKeesport Big Five, playing the latter part of the season under the name of the Cardon Big Five, invades this city tomorrow afternoon for a "rubber game" with the Cumberland Collegians. The contest is slated to start at 3 p. m., on the SS. Peter and Paul court.

Each team has chalked up a win. Last season the Collegians bowed to the Big Five 54-40. Despite the fourteen point margin the game was interesting. A ding-dong battle was played here Sunday, December 31, when the Collegians squared accounts by winning a breath-taking thriller 39-37. Sunday's battle is expected to be a hammer-and-tongs affair.

The management of the Cumberland Collegians announced last night that the admission has been reduced to 40c adults, and 25c students, for the remainder of the season.

Stars Added

Walt Miller, former Pittsburgh Pirate star, who appeared here this season with the Pirates has joined the Big Five. Miller displayed one of the best brands of pivot-playing in the history of basketball earlier this season when he appeared with the Pirates. Miller, who was outstanding in feeding the ball from the pivot position, learned his basketball at Duquesne U. He now coaches the Homestead High club. He stands 6 feet 2 inches and is one of the best shots, playing the pivot position, in the business.

Eddie Leech, former Slippery Rock College and Westinghouse A. A. State has joined the Big Five. Leech, a guard, is 6 feet 2 inches tall.

The fans will remember Joe Fabel, who was the high scorer with the Big Five in the December battle. Faber starred at center with the Westinghouse Airbrake Five during the 1938 season. Fabel graduated from Pitt. He stands 6 feet 3 inches.

Freddy Crum, six-foot playing coach, has starred with quints around the Pittsburgh district. Crum is one of the best all-around men to be developed in the Smokey City section. He averages 12 to 16 points a game, shoots with either hand. He is speedy, cagy and the spark-plug of the club.

Joe Proska, 6 feet 2-inch guard, was Captain at Penn State 1937-38. Always a hard worker and regarded one of the best defensive men in the tri-state section.

Other players are Eddie Janicki, 6-foot guard, named the most valuable player in Pittsburgh district in 1938. George Petach, western Pennsylvania inter-collegiate high scorer, 1939. Petach, a guard, is a graduate of Grove City College "Hank" Evanoski, star guard, gathers most of the rebounds from the banking board and is an accurate shot. He has been averaging eight to ten goals a game and is deadly at the foul line. Hank stands 6 feet 3 inches.

A summary of the team is that the Big Five is a rangy, aggressive high scoring and well balanced club.

The Cardon Big Five has turned in impressive victories this year including a 51-44 triumph over the Uniontown Independents, and recently held the powerful Clarksburg Oilers to a 48-37 score.

Against the Oilers, McKeesport matched its foe basket for basket during the first half but found the pace a little too stiff in the last two sessions. Evanoski gathered 15 points and Fabel 13 against Clarksburg.

The Collegians had been scheduled to play the Buffalo Bisons here last week but the game was cancelled when the Bisons decided to disband.

Dragons Meet District Stars

Coach Hank Lindsay's Cumberland Dragons face the District All-Stars in the preliminary at 1:45. The District All-Stars is a club composed of stars from the Washington, D. C., section. Van Roby will referee both games.

Scorekeepers Can Be Wrong

Hopkinsville, Ky. (AP)—Hopkinsville and Crofton high school basketball teams played to a tie, but it was all quite unintentional.

The scoreboard showed Crofton led, 23 to 22, when the final gun sounded. Later, a recheck of the scorebook showed the teams were tied, 23-23.

By that time, the players had dressed and were leaving the gymnasium, so opposing coaches decided to play another game later.

Parsons at Keyser in Conference Game Tonight

In the limited scholastic basketball schedule tonight, Parsons and Keyser will tangle at the latter place and Franklin will invade Circleville for conference tilts and Frostburg State and Gallaudet will meet at Washington, D. C.

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

New York, Feb. 23 (AP) — Ancil Hoffman came to town today, with Max Baer's future in the palm of his hand.

"Look," he said, holding out a stubby paw on which blisters and callouses stood out like indian mounds on a prairie. "Look at this if you don't think Max is serious about a comeback."

It was a little difficult to get the connection between blisters on Ancil Hoffman's hands and Max Baer's renewal of his campaign promises, but Hoffman quickly elaborated.

"I've had Max and Buddy out at my farm near Sacramento," he explained. "I set them to work spading up the garden, but they wouldn't work unless I worked with them." He sagged wearily at the memory. "We've spaded about two acres now, working from nine to twelve and two to four every day. Max is down to 221.

"That's not the only reason I think he might make good, though. I'll tell you something. Max isn't afraid of getting his face cut up any more. He used to dread it, and as soon as he got cut he went to pieces. Now he tells me: 'What the heck, I don't care what happens to my face.'

"Another thing, he has regained confidence, and do you know who was responsible? Lou Nova. After Nova beat Max he came around and said: 'Max, don't get discouraged. You're the man who can beat Tony Galento.' Max kept thinking about it, and now he's convinced he can do it.

"He's really crazy about that kid of his, too, which is another reason he's serious. Takes him everywhere, in airplanes, anything. Had him up in an old crate the other day."

Ancil paused for breath, and looked around for a parking lot for Buddy Baer, who accompanied him east. Buddy is down to 251 pounds now, and he's a pain in the neck to talk to, literally, as he's nearly six feet seven inches tall and the average citizen talking to him has to bend his head back like he was yelling up an elevator shaft.

Outside of that, Buddy is a nice guy. Too nice, in fact, for his business. He is low-voiced, painfully courteous and intelligent. It has been remarked that he could be champion right now if he had any particular relish for fisticuffing. But, like Max, his fighting is more on the order of Ferdinand the bull. Because of his build, he's here to battle Valentin Campolo, who has been having up his ups and downs lately.

Three-Mile Event At Garden Meet Promises Thrills

Element of Contest Can Be of Character to Rouse Spectators

By LAWRENCE PERRY

New York, Feb. 23. (C.N.F.)—That three-mile event at the National A.A.U. championship meet at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night is likely to rival, if not exceed, the mile run in actual thrills. Compared to the shorter route, it lacks in prestige and therefore falls short as to popular favor. But Don Lash has regarded it as sufficiently worth while to concentrate upon preparation for the grind. So doing he sacrificed his chances in the two-mile events of the past week or so. He did the same thing last year in training for the A.A.U. 500-meter race. As it happened he won the New York Athletic Club two-mile in 1939, but in so doing he turned in very slow time.

It will be recalled that at this meet last Saturday night he was shut out, finishing behind Greg Rice, Tommy Deckard, Walter Mehle and George De George. But close followers of track form believe that his process of recent self-abnegation as regards the two miles will bear fruit tomorrow night.

Ritola Holds Record

Lots of thing can happen in a three-mile run and the element of contest can easily be of a character to bring the spectators out of their seats. It is interesting to note that the record for this race is one of the most enduring of all events on the track calendar. It, meaning the American record, has stood for fifteen years. A grand little runner in his day, Willie Ritola, holds it, the time being 13 minutes 56:2-1-0 seconds.

But the best record for this route by a citizen of the United States is held by Lash whose time at the end of three miles was clocked at 14.05 in the course, last winter, of running the 5000 meters which is just 188 yards longer than three miles. Daniel Ferris, secretary of the A.A.U., thinks that Don was hever in better condition to run a long distance race than he is right now and consequently he would not be surprised if something extraordinary happend at the Garden. Certainly Don will have plenty of pressure what with Mehle and Rice going the route with him.

Chuck Fenske Popular

Glenn Cunningham, too, has been using recent races as conditioning processes for the mile run tomorrow night in which he will be opposed by Fenske, Venzke, Zamperini and San Romani. Admittedly Chuck Fenske's consistent supremacy over the mile this winter has affected interest in this popular event and will continue to do so until Churck smashes a record when he will have the crowd with him just as Cunningham used to have.

It is rather pathetic, Cunningham's plight. Here he is running in superb form and yet losing. Has anyone realized that the many races he won last year showed times equivalent to those he has been turning in this winter? Yet in equalling his victorious 1939 times, he is getting nothing better than third and fourth places.

This, of course, means nothing other than a distinct improvement in consistency of high speed in the mile in 1940 over that of past years.

Everyone qualified to judge concerning a runner's possibilities believes that Chuck Fenske is only just beginning to show what is in him. Now twenty-four years old, he has four more years in which to attain his physical peak. Who knows what he will eventually accomplish? No one doubts that great accomplishment is hidden in his shoes.

Former Maryland Stars To Coach Terp Gridders

College Park, Md., Feb. 23 (AP)—Three of the brightest stars in the University of Maryland's sports history will collaborate in a novel coaching experiment this year, guiding the Old Line football team through spring practice and the 1940 campaign.

Announcement of the plan was made today by Athletic Director Geary Eppley coincident with the start of spring grid drill.

The "board of strategy," all connected with the university in other capacities, will consist of:

Al Woods, freshman coach for the past three years.

Eppley's announcement said the trio definitely would have charge of the spring drill and "doubtless" would continue through the coming varsity season.

Somerset Hoopmen Take Two Battles

Somerset, Pa., Feb. 23.—Coach Virgil Saylor's Somerset High cagers broke an old jinx on their home floor this week by defeating Westmont High of Johnstown 30-20 for their first victory over the Hilltoppers in two years.

In another tilt this week, Somerset gained revenge for a whipping administered by Bedford in an early meeting by downing the Bisons on the losers' boards 28-16.

Fifteen Entries At Hialeah for Flamingo Stakes

Woolf Hopes To Win Third Straight with Inscolad or Prompt Pay

Miami, Fla., Feb. 23 (AP)—Joe Widener's Flamingoes take their annual walk tomorrow, and then the customers at Hialeah will watch fifteen three-year-olds scramble a mile and a furlong for $20,000 in the thirteenth running of the Flamingo Stakes.

This well-heeled event is expected to attract a near-record crowd to Widener's Fancy Plant, giving fresh cash register impetus to an already prosperous season. To justify the fancy name, the 400 large, awkward, salmon-pinkish birds that usually stand around the infield looking bored will be paraded up and down the greensward.

First important 1940 test for three-year-olds in the East, the Flamingo Stakes will be overshadowed in importance at Hialeah only by the $50,000 added Widener Handicap on the closing day, March 2.

Herbert M. Woolf of Kansas City, owner of the Woolford Farm, will be trying to capture the stakes for the third consecutive year.

Woolf won the 1938 with Lawrin, which later went on to capture the handsome Kentucky Derby prize, and again in 1939 with Technician.

This year the Woolford colors will be carried by the entry of Inscolad and Prompt Pay.

Mrs. Payne Whitney has entered her Greentree Stable's Red Rock, winner of the recent $5,000 added Bahamas Handicap, while her son, John Hay Whitney has nominated Woof Woof.

Barring last-minute scratches, the fifteen entries will bring a gross purse of $29,475, with $22,950 for the winner.

Ex-Casey Court Stars To Meet on Award Plans

The Cumberland Caseys basketball team which held sway here from 1927 to 1934 is coming back in the sports picture but only in the role of a sponsor for the future stars of the local athletic picture. A meeting will be held Sunday at noon at the K. of C. Home to further the plan.

The Caseys—that group of fellows who wrote bright basketball history in Cumberland between 1927 and 1934—are coming back into the sports picture here.

A roundup of all the players and officials to serve with the colorful club during its run will be held Sunday at noon at the K. of C. Home.

The session has been called by Bill Keegan, mayor of Mapleside, and one of two tossers to serve on all Casey teams, and W. Arnold "Doc" Gunther, who served in various capacities, to make plans for an annual reunion and also to discuss the proposal that the old-timers establish "Casey Memorial Awards" to go to outstanding Cumberland scholastic athletes.

It has been suggested that each award perpetuate the memory of former Caseys as they pass on, and if the proposal is adopted the first will be presented this year in honor of Francis J. "Jute" McMullen, erstwhile Casey center, who died last week.

Ex-Casey tossers eligible to take part in Sunday's deliberations are Joe Dorsey, who also played on every team; Jim Kelly, Tom Mullaney, Joe LaPorta, John Minke and Frankie Coyle, who, along with Keegan, composed the original 1927 team.

Others to see active service in Casey livery are Joe Neubiser, John Mullaney, Jack Stakem, "Patsy" Gainer, George Stegmaier, "Bobby" Cavanaugh, Johnny Long, Dave Conley, Eddie Diehl, Vic May, John Blough, Bernard Bealky, "Hank" Lindsay and Joe Clancy.

The "front office," training and coaching staffs at various times included "Doc" Gunther, Willie Hoban, Frank Birmingham, Harry Ways, Owen Brady, Russ Nierman, Jack Murphy, "Rip" Collins and Art Slocum.

Soccer League "Title" Game Scheduled Sunday

STANDING OF CLUBS

	W	L	T	Pts
Williamsport	6	2	1	13
Celanese	6	2	0	12
Barton	5	2	1	11
Frostburg	5	4	0	10
Boosters	1	7	1	3
Hagerstown	0	8	1	1

Even though all remaining games may not be played, an effort will be made to decide the championship of the Western Maryland Soccer League, according to Secretary Boyd Payton of Cumberland.

No games have been staged in the circuit for over two months. A series of disputes, forfeit games and claimed forfeits was followed by inclement weather, resulting in an inability to keep up with the schedule.

According to Payton, the Williamsport Wildcats and Celanese Soccer Club will meet at Williamsport Sunday afternoon at 2:30 in one of three games remaining on the schedule.

Efforts to arrange dates for the other two contests—Barton at Hagerstown and Celanese at Barton—have met with no success. Payton stated that if no more interest is shown, the winner at Williamsport Sunday will be declared champion.

Junior High Court Tournament Today

South Branch Valley Schools to Clash in Games at Petersburg

Petersburg, W. Va., Feb. 23—South Branch Valley junior high schools will stage a one-day basketball tournament in the school gym here tomorrow with morning, afternoon and evening sessions.

The first game, which will get underway at 8:30 a. m., will bring together Petersburg and Riverton. The Sugar Grove game against Franklin, last year's champion, will follow at 9:30. Romney and Johnson Run will clash at 10:30 and the Moorefield-Bayard scrap at 11. The Petersburg and Riverton contest, which ordinarily would have been played last, was set back to 8:30 in order to get an early start.

The Franklin and Sugar Grove and Romney-Johnson Run winners will meet at 2:30, and the Moorefield-Bayard winner and the Riverton-Petersburg victor will clash one hour later. Consolation semi-finals will be played at 1:30 and 4:30.

The consolation final will be played at 7:30 o'clock Saturday night, and the main game an hour later.

The winning team will receive a trophy and the members will be given golde nbasketballs. The second palce team will receive silver basketballs and a trophy will be awarded the consolation runner-up champion.

Medals will be given for individual sportsmanship, highest score and best foul shot. Clement "German" Clower and Coach Forrest "Whitey" Kendall, of Petersburg, will handle the games.

Collegians To Resume Schedule Tomorrow

Cardon Floormen Meet Locals in Return Contest

Joust at SS. Peter & Paul Gym Will Be "Rubber" Game

Local Management Announces Reduction in Admission Prices

The McKeesport Big Five, playing the latter part of the season under the name of the Cardon Big Five, invades this city tomorrow afternoon for a "rubber game" with the Cumberland Collegians. The contest is slated to start at 3 p. m., on the SS. Peter and Paul court.

Each team has chalked up a win. Last season the Collegians bowed to the Big Five 54-40. Despite the fourteen point margin the game was interesting. A ding-dong battle was played here Sunday, December 31, when the Collegians squared accounts by winning a breath-taking thriller 39-37. Sunday's battle is expected to be a hammer-and-tongs affair.

The management of the Cumberland Collegians announced last night that the admission has been reduced to 40c adults, and 25c students, for the remainder of the season.

Stars Added

Walt Miller, former Pittsburgh Pirate star, who appeared here this season with the Pirates has joined the Big Five. Miller displayed one of the best brands of pivot-playing in the history of basketball earlier this season when he appeared with the Pirates. Miller, who was outstanding in feeding the ball from the pivot position, learned his basketball at Duquesne U. He now coaches the Homestead High club. He stands 6 feet 2 inches and is one of the best shots, playing the pivot position, in the business.

Eddie Leech, former Slippery Rock College and Westinghouse A. A. State has joined the Big Five. Leech, a guard, is 6 feet 2 inches tall.

The fans will remember Joe Fabel, who was the high scorer with the Big Five in the December battle. Faber starred at center with the Westinghouse Airbrake Five during the 1938 season. Fabel graduated from Pitt. He stands 6 feet 3 inches.

Freddy Crum, six-foot playing coach, has starred with quints around the Pittsburgh district. Crum is one of the best all-around men to be developed in the Smokey City section. He averages 12 to 16 points a game, shoots with either hand. He is speedy, cagy and the spark-plug of the club.

Joe Proska, 6 feet 2-inch guard, was Captain at Penn State 1937-38. Always a hard worker and regarded one of the best defensive men in the tri-state section.

Other players are Eddie Janicki, 6-foot guard, named the most valuable player in Pittsburgh district in 1938. George Petach, western Pennsylvania inter-collegiate high scorer, 1939. Petach, a guard, is a graduate of Grove City College "Hank" Evanoski, star guard, gathers most of the rebounds from the banking board and is an accurate shot. He has been averaging eight to ten goals a game and is deadly at the foul line. Hank stands 6 feet 3 inches.

A summary of the team is that the Big Five is a rangy, aggressive high scoring and well balanced club.

The Cardon Big Five has turned in impressive victories this year including a 51-44 triumph over the Uniontown Independents, and recently held the powerful Clarksburg Oilers to a 48-37 score.

Against the Oilers, McKeesport matched its foe basket for basket during the first half but found the pace a little too stiff in the last two sessions. Evanoski gathered 15 points and Fabel 13 against Clarksburg.

The Collegians had been scheduled to play the Buffalo Bisons here last week but the game was cancelled when the Bisons decided to disband.

Dragons Meet District Stars

Coach Hank Lindsay's Cumberland Dragons face the District All-Stars in the preliminary at 1:45. The District All-Stars is a club composed of stars from the Washington, D. C., section. Van Roby will referee both games.

Scorekeepers Can Be Wrong

Hopkinsville, Ky. (AP)—Hopkinsville and Crofton high school basketball teams played to a tie, but it was all quite unintentional.

The scoreboard showed Crofton led, 23 to 22, when the final gun sounded. Later, a recheck of the scorebook showed the teams were tied, 23-23.

By that time, the players had dressed and were leaving the gymnasium, so opposing coaches decided to play another game later.

Parsons at Keyser in Conference Game Tonight

In the limited scholastic basketball schedule tonight, Parsons and Keyser will tangle at the latter place and Franklin will invade Circleville for conference tilts and Frostburg State and Gallaudet will meet at Washington, D. C.

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

New York, Feb. 23 (AP) — Ancil Hoffman came to town today, with Max Baer's future in the palm of his hand.

"Look," he said, holding out a stubby paw on which blisters and callouses stood out like indian mounds on a prairie. "Look at this if you don't think Max is serious about a comeback."

It was a little difficult to get the connection between blisters on Ancil Hoffman's hands and Max Baer's renewal of his campaign promises, but Hoffman quickly elaborated.

"I've had Max and Buddy out at my farm near Sacramento," he explained. "I set them to work spading up the garden, but they wouldn't work unless I worked with them." He sagged wearily at the memory. "We've spaded about two acres now, working from nine to twelve and two to four every day. Max is down to 221.

"That's not the only reason I think he might make good, though. I'll tell you something. Max isn't afraid of getting his face cut up any more. He used to dread it, and as soon as he got cut he went to pieces. Now he tells me: 'What the heck, I don't care what happens to my face.'

"Another thing, he has regained confidence, and do you know who was responsible? Lou Nova. After Nova beat Max he came around and said: 'Max, don't get discouraged. You're the man who can beat Tony Galento.' Max kept thinking about it, and now he's convinced he can do it.

"He's really crazy about that kid of his, too, which is another reason he's serious. Takes him everywhere, in airplanes, anything. Had him up in an old crate the other day."

Ancil paused for breath, and looked around for a parking lot for Buddy Baer, who accompanied him east. Buddy is down to 251 pounds now, and he's a pain in the neck to talk to, literally, as he's nearly six feet seven inches tall and the average citizen talking to him has to bend his head back like he was yelling up an elevator shaft.

Outside of that, Buddy is a nice guy. Too nice, in fact, for his business. He is low-voiced, painfully courteous and intelligent. It has been remarked that he could be champion right now if he had any particular relish for fisticuffing. But, like Max, his fighting is more on the order of Ferdinand the bull. Because of his build, he's here to battle Valentin Campolo, who has been having up his ups and downs lately.

Kelly Mixed Loop

The Registereds won three from the Kant Slips in the Kelly Mixed League for the only sweep of an evening of bowling which saw the Sure Stops take two of three from the Rayons and the Buckeyes do likewise to the Kellys.

High set score for the evening went to Miller of the Buckeyes on a 392, while Mrs. Alexander took high game with 164.

Three-Mile Event At Garden Meet Promises Thrills

Element of Contest Can Be of Character to Rouse Spectators

By LAWRENCE PERRY

New York, Feb. 23. (C.N.F.)—That three-mile event at the National A.A.U. championship meet at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night is likely to rival, if not exceed, the mile run in actual thrills. Compared to the shorter route, it lacks in prestige and therefore falls short as to popular favor. But Don Lash has regarded it as sufficiently worth while to concentrate upon preparation for the grind. So doing he sacrificed his chances in the two-mile events of the past week or so. He did the same thing last year in training for the A.A.U. 500-meter race. As it happened he won the New York Athletic Club two-mile in 1939, but in so doing he turned in very slow time.

It will be recalled that at this meet last Saturday night he was shut out, finishing behind Greg Rice, Tommy Deckard, Walter Mehle and George De George. But close followers of track form believe that his process of recent self-abnegation as regards the two miles will bear fruit tomorrow night.

Ritola Holds Record

Lots of thing can happen in a three-mile run and the element of contest can easily be of a character to bring the spectators out of their seats. It is interesting to note that the record for this race is one of the most enduring of all events on the track calendar. It, meaning the American record, has stood for fifteen years. A grand little runner in his day, Willie Ritola, holds it, the time being 13 minutes 56:2-1-0 seconds.

But the best record for this route by a citizen of the United States is held by Lash whose time at the end of three miles was clocked at 14.05 in the course, last winter, of running the 5000 meters which is just 188 yards longer than three miles. Daniel Ferris, secretary of the A.A.U., thinks that Don was hever in better condition to run a long distance race than he is right now and consequently he would not be surprised if something extraordinary happend at the Garden. Certainly Don will have plenty of pressure what with Mehle and Rice going the route with him.

Chuck Fenske Popular

Glenn Cunningham, too, has been using recent races as conditioning processes for the mile run tomorrow night in which he will be opposed by Fenske, Venzke, Zamperini and San Romani. Admittedly Chuck Fenske's consistent supremacy over the mile this winter has affected interest in this popular event and will continue to do so until Chuck smashes a record when he will have the crowd with him just as Cunningham used to have.

It is rather pathetic, Cunningham's plight. Here he is running in superb form and yet losing. Has anyone realized that the many races he won last year showed times equivalent to those he has been turning in this winter? Yet in equalling his victorious 1939 times he is getting nothing better than third and fourth places.

This, of course, means nothing other than a distinct improvement in consistency of high speed in the mile in 1940 over that of past years.

Everyone qualified to judge concerning a runner's possibilities believes that Chuck Fenske is only just beginning to show what is in him. Now twenty-four years old, he has four more years in which to attain his physical peak. Who knows what he will eventually accomplish? No one doubts that great accomplishment is hidden in his shoes.

Former Maryland Stars To Coach Terp Gridders

College Park, Md., Feb. 23 (AP)—Three of the brightest stars in the University of Maryland's sports history will collaborate in a novel coaching experiment this year, guiding the Old Line football team through spring practice and the 1940 campaign.

Announcement of the plan was made today by Athletic Director Geary Eppley coincident with the start of spring grid drill.

The "board of strategy," all connected with the university in other capacities, will consist of:

Al Woods, freshman coach for the past three years.

Eppley's announcement said the trio definitely would have charge of the spring drill and "doubtless" would continue through the coming varsity season.

Somerset Hoopmen Take Two Battles

Somerset, Pa., Feb. 23.—Coach Virgil Saylor's Somerset High cagers broke an old jinx on their home floor this week by defeating Westmont High of Johnstown 30-20 for their first victory over the Hilltoppers in two years.

In another tilt this week, Somerset gained revenge for a whipping administered by Bedford in an early meeting by downing the Bisons on the losers' boards 28-16.

Fifteen Entries At Hialeah for Flamingo Stakes

Woolf Hopes To Win Third Straight with Inscolad or Prompt Pay

Miami, Fla., Feb. 23 (AP)—Joe Widener's Flamingoes take their annual walk tomorrow, and then the customers at Hialeah will watch fifteen three-year-olds scramble a mile and a furlong for $20,000 in the thirteenth running of the Flamingo Stakes.

This well-heeled event is expected to attract a near-record crowd to Widener's Fancy Plant, giving fresh cash register impetus to an already prosperous season. To justify the fancy name, the 400 large, awkward, salmon-pinkish birds that usually stand around the infield looking bored will be paraded up and down the greensward.

First important 1940 test for three-year-olds in the East, the Flamingo Stakes will be overshadowed in importance at Hialeah only by the $50,000 added Widener Handicap on the closing day, March 2.

Herbert M. Woolf of Kansas City, owner of the Woolford Farm, will be trying to capture the stakes for the third consecutive year.

Woolf won the 1938 with Lawrin, which later went on to capture the handsome Kentucky Derby prize, and again in 1939 with Technician.

This year the Woolford colors will be carried by the entry of Inscolad and Prompt Pay.

Mrs. Payne Whitney has entered her Greentree Stable's Red Rock, winner of the recent $5,000 added Bahamas Handicap, while her son, John Hay Whitney has nominated Woof Woof.

Barring last-minute scratches, the fifteen entries will bring a gross purse of $29,475, with $22,950 for the winner.

Ex-Casey Court Stars To Meet on Award Plans

The Cumberland Caseys basketball team which held sway here from 1927 to 1934 is coming back in the sports picture but only in the role of a sponsor for the future stars of the local athletic picture. A meeting will be held Sunday at noon at the K. of C. Home to further the plan.

The Caseys—that group of fellows who wrote bright basketball history in Cumberland between 1927 and 1934—are coming back into the sports picture here.

A roundup of all the players and officials to serve with the colorful club during its run will be held Sunday at noon at the K. of C. Home.

The session has been called by Bill Keegan, mayor of Mapleside, and one of two tossers to serve on all Casey teams, and W. Arnold "Doc" Gunther, who served in various capacities, to make plans for an annual reunion and also to discuss the proposal that the old-timers establish "Casey Memorial Awards" to go to outstanding Cumberland scholastic athletes.

It has been suggested that each award perpetuate the memory of former Caseys as they pass on, and if the proposal is adopted the first will be presented this year in honor of Francis J. "Jute" McMullen, erstwhile Casey center, who died last week.

Ex-Casey tossers eligible to take part in Sunday's deliberations are Joe Dorsey, who also played on every team; Jim Kelly, Tom Mullaney, Joe LaPorta, John Minke and Frankie Coyle, who, along with Keegan, composed the original 1927 team.

Others to see active service in Casey livery are Joe Neubiser, John Mullaney, Jack Stakem, "Patsy" Gainer, George Stegmaier, "Bobby" Cavanaugh, Johnny Long, Dave Conley, Eddie Diehl, Vic May, John Blough, Bernard Bealky, "Hank" Lindsay and Joe Clancy.

The "front office," training and coaching staffs at various times included "Doc" Gunther, Willie Hoban, Frank Birmingham, Harry Ways, Owen Brady, Russ Nierman, Jack Murphy, "Rip" Collins and Art Slocum.

Soccer League "Title" Game Scheduled Sunday

STANDING OF CLUBS

	W	L	T	Pts
Williamsport	6	2	1	13
Celanese	6	2	0	12
Barton	5	2	1	11
Frostburg	5	4	0	10
Boosters	1	7	1	3
Hagerstown	0	8	1	1

Even though all remaining games may not be played, an effort will be made to decide the championship of the Western Maryland Soccer League, according to Secretary Boyd Payton of Cumberland.

No games have been staged in the circuit for over two months. A series of disputes, forfeit games and claimed forfeits was followed by inclement weather, resulting in an inability to keep up with the schedule.

According to Payton, the Williamsport Wildcats and Celanese Soccer Club will meet at Williamsport Sunday afternoon at 2:30 in one of three games remaining on the schedule.

Efforts to arrange dates for the other two contests—Barton at Hagerstown and Celanese at Barton—have met with no success. Payton stated that if no more interest is shown, the winner at Williamsport Sunday will be declared champion.

Stocks Decline as Traders Stay Out of the Market until Monday

Lack of Interest Keeps Many Leaders from Advancing

New York, Feb. 23 (AP) — Stocks stepped downward today in half-hearted dealings notable chiefly for the absence of many traders from Wall Street on the excuse that Washington's birthday and Sunday were so close together there wasn't much use of working the two intervening days.

Even the few shares which had served as leaders in an attempt at an upswing earlier in the week dropped today under disinterest.

Declining shares included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Eastman, Sears Roebuck, Anaconda, American Smelting, Standard Oil of N. J., Texas Corp., Pennsylvania Railroad, New York Central and Johns-Manville.

Downward in the Curb were Nehi Corp., Phoenix Securities, Gulf Oil, Creole Petroleum and Niagara Hudson Power. Transactions were 154,000 shares compared with 166,000 Wednesday.

Wheat Prices Advance

Chicago, Feb. 23 (AP)—Forecast of a cold wave over the grain belt and the day's budget of war news stimulated enough buying to hoist wheat prices almost two cents a bushel today to the best level in seven weeks but most of this advance was wiped out before the close.

The close was only ⅛-½ higher than Wednesday, May $1.06-1.05⅞, July $1.04¼-⅛. Corn finished ¼ off to ⅛ up, May 57¼-⅛, July 57⅝; oats unchanged to ½ higher; rye ⅛-1 cent up and lard 2 higher to 2 lower.

Bond Market Unsettled

New York, Feb. 23. (AP)—Persistent declines in rails, based on a decline in carloadings, unsettled the bond market today.

While losses for most active issues were held to fractions, sizeable drops in various loans were sufficiently numerous to give the list a definitely spotty appearance at the close.

U. S. governments were as much as 7-32 of a point on the offside.

Total sales of $5,605,500, face value, compared with $5,812,800 on Wednesday.

"Northwest Passage" Showing at Maryland

It is inconceivable that Hollywood will ever be able to surpass in the realm of physical action "Northwest Passage," which opened yesterday at the Maryland theatre. But inasmuch as last week it was inconceivable that Hollywood could ever create such a story of an adventure as this film, predictions appear dangerous, so suffice it to say here and now that "Northwest Passage" is the best in its field to date.

In a lot of ways "Northwest Passage" is amazing. First, never has a picture been more perfectly cast. Major Rogers is by far Spencer Tracy's most virile role and should add another Academy award to the ones has has achieved in the past two years. The same prediction can be made for Walter Brennan, two time winner of supporting honors, for his Hunk Marriner role. And Robert Young should be a star as a result of playing Langdon Towne. From these top three, right down the line to the tiniest bit, not a role could have been better done.

In a second manner, "Northwest Passage" amazes. This is the manner in which action is achieved. You'll be limp at the finish after watching those hardy Rangers carry huge boats over mountain tops, hurl themselves through swamps, across a river torrent by forming a human chain, wipe out an Indian village and then fight back, starving and battered, to safety.

Claude Hopkins At Strand Today

Though he plays the song at the beginning and the end of every radio program on which he appears, features it several times during an evening of dancing and often on his air shows, Claude Hopkins, who with his orchestra, plays at the Strand today only, appearing at 2, 4, 7 and 9:15 p. m., reports that the tune for which he receives most requests both by mail and at a dance, is his own composition, "I Would Do Anything For You". Hopkins has been using this theme song for the past several years and can't understand why people don't tire of it and let it go as just a theme song. "But they keep calling for it," he explains. "I've played dances where we've had to stick it up every other set, and still they were not satisfied. Well, you can believe this or not, we've always had more calls for it than we ever had for "The Music Goes 'Round and 'Round", and that's something".

Russell Hayden, Victor Jory, Jean Parker, J. Farrell MacDonald and Britt Wood head the imposing cast in Zane Grey's "Knights of the Range," which is the screen attraction. There is also an added program of shorts.

When Jane Withers and Gene Autry teamed up in "Shooting High," the Twentieth Century Fox offering which opens Sunday at the Strand, a double quota of fast-moving entertainment is the result.

Jane and Gene ride, shoot and sing their way through this picture in a manner that will delight all their old friends and win them many new ones.

"Shooting High" boasts five tuneful melodies two of which Gene sings alone. Jane and Gene get together in two numbers "Shanty of Dreams" and "Wanderers" while Jane has one melody all to herself.

Acting Technique Is Marked in Picture

Students of acting technique have an interesting set of examples of acting in the new film, "Castle on the Hudson," currently showing at the Liberty Theatre.

The picture features John Garfield and Burgess Meredith as two convicted criminals. In one part of the story, the two of them undergo a mental aptitude test at the hands of a psychiatrist, played by Grant Mitchell.

There is a deep vein of irony running through the scene between Meredith and Mitchell, for Mederith eventually confesses that, like his examiner, he is a Phi Beta Kappa man with a college education. Observers of human emotion detect all the bitterness of a man who has sunk from the heights to the depths in Meredith's speeches.

Interested spectators saw two actors applying stage training to movie performances, with results satisfactory to a critical director, and also to audiences who, have since viewed the film.

Western and Romance Are Offered at Garden

Included in the cast are Iris Meredith, Bob Nolan and the Singing Sons of the Pioneers, Dick Curtis, Eddie Cobb and Stanley Brown. Norman Deming directed.

Robert Kellard was very airminded during the filming of "Stop, Look and Love," the Twentieth Century-Fox romantic comedy, which is also on the Garden bill.

ROMANCE ON THE RANGE

"In Old Caliente" At the Embassy

Closing today at the Embassy theatre will be the double feature attraction with Roy Rogers in the singin' western drama "In Old Caliente" with Mary Hart and George "Gabby" Haines. The second feature being the Louis-Godoy fight films. On the same program there will be another chapter of the serial "Overland With Kit Carson."

Opening tomorrow at the Embassy theatre will be another double bill with the Samuel Goldwyn Hit "The Real Glory" starring Gary Cooper, David Niven, Andrea Leeds and Reginald Owen. The second feature will be the underseas drama "U-Boat 29", with Conrad Veidt and Valerie Hobson in the starring roles.

Stocks Decline as Traders Stay Out of the Market until Monday

Lack of Interest Keeps Many Leaders from Advancing

New York, Feb. 23 (AP) — Stocks stepped downward today in half-hearted dealings notable chiefly for the absence of many traders from Wall Street on the excuse that Washington's birthday and Sunday were so close together there wasn't much use of working the two intervening days.

Even the few shares which had served as leaders in an attempt at an upswing earlier in the week dropped today under disinterest.

Declining shares included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Eastman, Sears Roebuck, Anaconda, American Smelting, Standard Oil of N. J., Texas Corp., Pennsylvania Railroad, New York Central and Johns-Manville.

Downward in the Curb were Nehi Corp., Phoenix Securities, Gulf Oil, Creole Petroleum and Niagara Hudson Power. Transactions were 154,000 shares compared with 166,000 Wednesday.

Wheat Prices Advance

Chicago, Feb. 23 (AP)—Forecast of a cold wave over the grain belt and the day's budget of war news stimulated enough buying to hoist wheat prices almost two cents a bushel today to the best level in seven weeks but most of this advance was wiped out before the close.

The close was only ⅛-½ higher than Wednesday, May $1.06-1.05⅞, July $1.04¼-⅛. Corn finished ¼ off to ⅛ up, May 57¼-⅛, July 57⅝; oats unchanged to ½ higher; rye ⅛-1 cent up and lard 2 higher to 2 lower.

Bond Market Unsettled

New York, Feb. 23. (AP)—Persistent declines in rails, based on a decline in carloadings, unsettled the bond market today.

While losses for most active issues were held to fractions, sizeable drops in various loans were sufficiently numerous to give the list a definitely spotty appearance at the close.

U. S. governments were as much as 7-32 of a point on the offside.

Total sales of $5,605,500, face value, compared with $5,812,800 on Wednesday.

"Northwest Passage" Showing at Maryland

It is inconceivable that Hollywood will ever be able to surpass in the realm of physical action "Northwest Passage," which opened yesterday at the Maryland theatre. But inasmuch as last week it was inconceivable that Hollywood could ever create such a story of an adventure as this film, predictions appear dangerous, so suffice it to say here and now that "Northwest Passage" is the best in its field to date.

In a lot of ways "Northwest Passage" is amazing. First, never has a picture been more perfectly cast. Major Rogers is by far Spencer Tracy's most virile role and should add another Academy award to the ones has has achieved in the past two years. The same prediction can be made for Walter Brennan, two time winner of supporting honors, for his Hunk Marriner role. And Robert Young should be a star as a result of playing Langdon Towne. From these top three, right down the line to the tiniest bit, not a role could have been better done.

In a second manner, "Northwest Passage" amazes. This is the manner in which action is achieved. You'll be limp at the finish after watching those hardy Rangers carry huge boats over mountain tops, hurl themselves through swamps, across a river torrent by forming a human chain, wipe out an Indian village and then fight back, starving and battered, to safety.

Claude Hopkins At Strand Today

Though he plays the song at the beginning and the end of every radio program on which he appears, features it several times during an evening of dancing and often on his air shows, Claude Hopkins, who with his orchestra, plays at the Strand today only, appearing at 2, 4, 7 and 9:15 p. m., reports that the tune for which he receives most requests both by mail and at a dance, is his own composition, "I Would Do Anything For You". Hopkins has been using this theme song for the past several years and can't understand why people don't tire of it and let it go as just a theme song. "But they keep calling for it," he explains, "I've played dances where we've had to stick it up every other set, and still they were not satisfied. Well, you can believe this or not, we've always had more calls for it than we ever had for "The Music Goes 'Round and 'Round", and that's something".

Russell Hayden, Victor Jory, Jean Parker, J. Farrell MacDonald and Britt Wood head the imposing cast in Zane Grey's "Knights of the Range," which is the screen attraction. There is also an added program of shorts.

When Jane Withers and Gene Autry teamed up in "Shooting High," the Twentieth Century Fox offering which opens Sunday at the Strand, a double quota of fast-moving entertainment is the result.

Jane and Gene ride, shoot and sing their way through this picture in a manner that will delight all their old friends and win them many new ones.

"Shooting High" boasts five tuneful melodies two of which Gene sings alone. Jane and Gene get together in two numbers "Shanty of Dreams" and "Wanderers" while Jane has one melody all to herself.

Acting Technique Is Marked in Picture

Students of acting technique have an interesting set of examples of acting in the new film, "Castle on the Hudson," currently showing at the Liberty Theatre.

The picture features John Garfield and Burgess Meredith as two convicted criminals. In one part of the story, the two of them undergo a mental aptitude test at the hands of a psychiatrist, played by Grant Mitchell.

There is a deep vein of irony running through the scene between Meredith and Mitchell, for Mederith eventually confesses that, like his examiner, he is a Phi Beta Kappa man with a college education. Observers of human emotion detect all the bitterness of a man who has sunk from the heights to the depths in Meredith's speeches.

Interested spectators saw two actors applying stage training to movie performances, with results satisfactory to a critical director, and also to audiences who, have since viewed the film.

Western and Romance Are Offered at Garden

Included in the cast are Iris Meredith, Bob Nolan and the Singing Sons of the Pioneers, Dick Curtis, Eddie Cobb and Stanley Brown. Norman Deming directed.

Robert Kellard was very airminded during the filming of "Stop, Look and Love," the Twentieth Century-Fox romantic comedy, which is also on the Garden bill.

ROMANCE ON THE RANGE

"In Old Caliente" At the Embassy

Closing today at the Embassy theatre will be the double feature attraction with Roy Rogers in the singin' western drama "In Old Caliente" with Mary Hart and George "Gabby" Haines. The second feature being the Louis-Godoy fight films. On the same program there will be another chapter of the serial "Overland With Kit Carson."

Opening tomorrow at the Embassy theatre will be another double bill with the Samuel Goldwyn Hit "The Real Glory" starring Gary Cooper, David Niven, Andrea Leeds and Reginald Owen. The second feature will be the underseas drama "U-Boat 29", with Conrad Veidt and Valerie Hobson in the starring roles.

Late News from the George's Creek and Tri-State Region

Hafer Building To Be Completed In Near Future

Frostburg Concern Will Be Ready for Business Early in April

Frostburg, Feb. 23—Despite the early delays due to the severe weather of January and the late arrival of certain building material, the Hafer building, East Main street, is rapidly nearing completion and according to present plans, will be opened for business early in April.

All wall plastering and steel ceiling installation on the two upper floors was completed this week and painters are now engaged in decorating those sections of the building.

A portion of the show windows on the main floor has been completed and expert workers will be on hand next week to complete the stone and marble front of the street floor which will be the ornamental feature of the exterior.

The furnishings for the building, including a Hammond pipe organ and stained glass windows for the chapel and carpets for the rooms comprising the funeral home, will be installed as soon as decorators have completed their work.

Following completion of work by decorators and builders, the Hafer concern will spend several weeks in moving merchandise and arranging displays in the new building.

The new Hafer building, designed by a New York architect, will be one of the largest and costliest in the community and its appointments will be modern in every particular. The structure, located in the business center of the town, replaces the "Iron Front" building, destroyed by fire last fall and once occupied by the McMullen Brothers department store and later by the M. Tuvin store.

Will Present Play

Presentation of "Candle-Light," a humorous play, at Frostburg State Teachers College Thursday evening, Feb. 29, by the Little Theater is being awaited with keen interest by all familiar with the splendid plays sponsored by this group.

"Candle-Light" is said by those taking part as performers and spectators in the rehearsals to be one of the most entertaining plays available.

Patrick Messman, Cumberland, will portray the role of "Josef," a valet, around whom the plot is centered. However the part of the "Prince" to be played by John Blackwell, is also much in the spotlight. Miss Theo Carnell, Cumberland, will play the leading feminine role of the "nice" girl.

Others in the cast are William Houck, Grantsville; Hopwood Woodsell Charles Wilt, Oakland, and Miss Muriel Davis, Miss Betty Schneider and Crales Eberly, this city.

Assembly Program

The regular assembly program was presented by the Latin students, under the direction of Miss Kitty O'Brien, in the Beall auditorium Thursday afternoon. The program opened by members of the Latin Club singing "Te Cano Patria." A myth, "Narcissus and Echo," was written into the form of a play by Jean Hartig. The characters were: Echo—Nancy Thomas, Narcussus—John Simons, Mother of Narcussus—Virginia Boyer, Wise Man—James Arnone. June Morton recited the poem, "Roofs."

A satirical play, "Georgius Africanus Washingtonius," written by Harry Keller, was presented by the following characters: Father of Georgius—George Hamrick, Mother of Georgius—Angela Garritano, Georgius A. Washingtonius—Earl Ward, First Soldier—Billy Kroll, Second Soldier—Leslie Kreider.

Another myth, "Prymas and Thisbe," written into the form of a play by Betty Virginia Wilson, was presented with the following characters: Thisbe—Betty Virginia Wilson, Pyramus—Harry Keller, Danae, Thisbe's servant—Jean Hartig, Lion—Billy Kroll.

Jacquelyn Engle, accompanied by her mother, sang "Careless" and "God Bless America."

Frostburg Briefs

Mrs. James Jones Of Luke Succumbs

Dies in Potomac Valley Hospital after a Long Illness

Westernport, Feb. 23.—Mrs. James Jones, 53, of Luke died at 1:30 p. m., today in the Potomac Valley hospital Keyser. She had been in ill health for the past year and had been in the hospital about nine days.

Mrs. Jones was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Coffman, Bloomington, Md.

Surviving are her husband, James Jones and six children; James, Piedmont, William of Beryl, W. Va.; Paul at home; Eileen of Rocky Mount, N. C., Mrs. Agnes Anderson, Piedmont and Anna Mae at home; one, sister, Mrs. Aubrey Ross, Westernport and one brother William Coffman, Westernport and eight grandchildren.

Mrs. Jones was a member of the Pencostal Holiness church.

Interesting Study

Miss Hallie Davis, a former resident of Piedmont, whose mother lives at 11 E. Hampshire street, Piedmont, displayed a plaster study of her fourth cousin, Jefferson Davis, the leader of the confederate cause, at a St. Paul (Minn.) theater at the recent showing of the motion picture "Gone with the Wind".

Although inspired by Margaret Mitchell's book of the Civil war, Miss Davis's portrayal of her famous cousin was as the hero of Buena Vista, a victory in war of 1849, rather than the worried confederate president.

Miss Davis, who was born and reared in Piedmont, studied at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine arts in Philadelphia, and was awarded a scholarship for study in Paris.

Miss Davis now lives in St. Paul. Her brothers, George and Dent, live in Piedmont, and Mrs. Grace Hawkins, her sister from Los Angeles, is spending the winter here.

Declamation Contest

St. Peter's high school held a Declamation contest Thursday. Those who participated in the contest were.

Ida Niland, Mary V. Gleeson, Peters, Eileen Healy, Mary Morgan, Margaret M. James, Regina Rollins, Mary Coury, Joan Kenny, Marie Determan, Jean Faherty, Jean Angle, Teresa Lavorata, Grace Di Goia, Sally O'Brien Isabel Devine, Sue Gleeson, Rosemary Morgan, Teresa McGoye.

Elizabeth Shugart, Ella Ryan, Louise A. O'Brien, Helen Pendergast, Evelyn Patrick, Patricia Wolfkill, Helen Gillespie, Margaret Blackburn, Dorothy Welsh, Mary Rollins, Irene McGuire, George Cleaver, William Angle, William Faherty, Eugene Brown, Charles Pendergast.

Beside the selections the boys of the Sophomore and freshman class recited a poem in honor of Washington's birthday. The vocal club furnished two charming selections, "Hero Mine" from The Chocolate Soldier, and "Mother Nature Sings Her Lullaby."

Brief Items

The W.C.T.U. held a Tea Thursday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Fischer.

The Hi-Y clubs of Bruce high school are going on a skating party Saturday at Crystal Park.

Paul Livengood Will Be Married This Afternoon

Former Grantsville Citizen Will Take Virginia Girl as Bride

Grantsville, Feb. 23—A marriage of interest to residents of this community is that of Paul Irving Livengood and Miss Edith Virginia Hall, Alexandria, Va., which will take place at 4:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The ceremony will be performed at the First Baptist church, at Alexandria, by the Rev. O. P. Lloyd, pastor, who will use the ring service.

Miss Hall has chosen here sister-in-law, Mrs. Betty Hall, as her matron of honor and only attendant. Paxton Funkhouser, Washington, D. C., will serve as best man. The service will be simple and quiet with only the immediate families and a few friends present.

The bride-to-be is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Hall, of Franconia, Va. She graduated from the Lee Jackson high school there with the class of 1936, and for some time has been employed as a supervisor by the C. and P. Telephone Company, at Alexandria. She has visited at Mr. Livengood's home here on several occasions. She is an attractive brunette and for her wedding costume has chosen a frock of blue haze crepe, with navy accessories. Her corsage will be of Valley lillies and Talisman roses. Her attendant will wear a frock of harmonizing shade and a corsage of sweet peas and valley lillies.

Mr. Livengood is well known in this and adjoining communities. He is the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Livengood, of Grantsville, and was born and reared here. He attended the local schools, graduating from the high school with the class of 1929. He also attended the Bliss Electrical School, Washington, D. C. For the past seven years he has been connected with the Chestnut Farm Dairy, at Washington, D. C.

Immediately following the ceremony the couple will leave for a honeymoon visit to southern points and will be at home after March 4 at the Mt. Vernon Gardens apartments, 715 So. Washington street, Washington, D. C.

Brief Mention

Mrs. Noah C. Frickey, who has been a patient at the Hazel McGilvery hospital, Meyersdale, for several weeks, has been removed to her home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Stahl are the parents of a daughter, born at their home near here Wednesday.

Mrs. Fred Livengood has gone to Alexandria, Va., to attend the wedding of her son, Paul Livengood, and Miss Edith Virginia Hall, which will take place Saturday.

CCC Camp Will Be Abandoned

Tucker County Camp Has Been in Operation for Five Years

Parsons, W. Va., Feb. 23.—It was learned here today from George E. Harris, camp superintendent of the CCC Camp Bowers, located near Pickens, is to be abandoned by March 31. There are 185 members enrolled in this camp, which was established May 1, 1935. The army duties at the camp are in charge of Capt. George R. Kyle.

During the five years the camp has been established, the members have constructed five log cabins at the falls of Mill Creek and much stream improvement work has been done. They also maintained a fish rearing station, constructed food shelters for birds and animals and maintained picnic camping grounds. No indication has been made as to what disposition will be made of the buildings and the personnel.

Mott Is Speaker

L. H. Mott, of Davis, was the principal speaker here last night at the Parent-Teacher Association meeting in the graded school auditorium. A P. T. A. meeting was also held at Douglas last night, which was mainly in the form of a social affair. Plans were made for a school carnival to be held soon at Douglas.

Brief Mention

The River City Club defeated the Parsons Kiwanis club last night in the annual basketball clash of these two local civic clubs by a score of 30-24 in an extra period game. The score was tied at 22-22 when the regular game ended.

Twins were born on Washington's birthday to Mr. and Mrs. Paul Flanagan, Hendricks. The new arrivals were a boy and a girl. The mother is the former Leecy Rennix, of this city.

Mrs. H. U. Freeman, East Parsons, is ill at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Harry E. Whetsell, Elkins.

Ethel Marie Poling, age two, St. George, is a pneumonia patient in the Tucker County hospital.

C. C. Heishman Candidate To Succeed Himself

Wardensville Man Will Run Again for House of Delegates

Moorefield, W. Va., Feb. 23.—C. C. Heishman, Wardensville, who has served Hardy county for the past two years as delegate to the State Legislature, has announced his candidacy to succeed himself.

While a member of the legislature, Mr. Heishman was active in securing the state convict camp which is helping to improve the roads in Hardy County. He also did what he could toward having the large barn rebuilt at the Rayman Memorial Farm.

Mr. Heishman says: "I was certainly glad to receive telegrams from the different clubs and individuals in the county concerning bills they were interested in, for it gave me an idea where their interests lay. I appreciate the interest they took in my work and, if reelected, I hope to continue to vote for the things Hardy county wants."

Masonic Club

The Moorefield Masonic club is active in furnishing and equipping its new club room quarters in the McWhorter building. A billiard table has been installed and is being refinished and recovered this week. Tables for bridge, set-back, and checkers are already in use.

K. G. Vance is chairman of the committee in charge of the club quarters and membership is limited to members of the lodge.

Luther Smith

Luther Smith, Bass, a former graduate of Moorefield High school, and student at Potomac State College, Keyser, was one of a debating team which went to Shippensburg, Pa., over the week-end and participated in a meet with nine other schools. The Potomac State team finished in a tie for third place with West Virginia and Shippensburg State Teachers College. The subject for debate was, "Isolation," and Mr. Smith was on the negative side.

Bill Fisher Stars

Cadet Bill Fisher, playing for Fishburne against Staunton Military Academy, made ten points in a 33-31 victory. Fishburne won in a basketball game. Fisher, high scorer for his team, is the son of Mrs. Laurane and the late Jessie Fisher.

Personal Mention

Dewey Barr, Bean Settlement, has been employed at Thomas Chevrolet, where he is being trained for the position of parts manager by William Kuykendall, who expects to resign later. Mr. Barr was formerly employed by John Burch.

Nine sportsmen of Moorefield contributed a dollar each to the purchase of grain to feed the game birds in Hardy county during the recent freezing period. John Fisher, John Shanholtz, A. E. Friddle, W. C. Calhoun, R. E. Fisher, H. E. Hutter, M. A. Bean, Ted Sager and Robert Powers were all contributors.

Mrs. Raymond Musser leaves Friday to attend a meeting of the District Directors of Children's Work in the West Virginia Conference of the Methodist church which is being held in Clarksburg Friday and Saturday.

Miss Sarah Siever daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. K. Siever, and Donald Evans, Martin, were quietly married in Monteray, Va., Monday.

Vause Bierbamp, who has been taking treatment at Walter Reed Hospital in Washington for the past four months, returned to his home here Saturday much improved.

F. C. Schmeichal returned Tuesday night from a visit to Columbus, Ohio, and Wheeling, having left last Thursday.

Merit System Council Plan Is Approved

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 23. (AP)—Apparent approval in Washington of West Virginia's plan of a three-member system council for employes of three state departments was announced today by one department direetor.

A. W. Garnett of the Public Assistance division said the plan called for retention of the department advisory board, but that its personnel authority would be "farmed out" to the merit council.

Notification from the Social Security Board and Children's Bureau in Washington of acceptance of the plan was "vague," Garnett asserted, and he has written for a "yes or no" answer.

Unemployment Compensation Director John S. Stump, Jr., who with Health Commissioner A. E. McClue submitted a separate but similar plan, said he had not been notified of acceptance.

All three departments, receiving federal funds, were directed to set up merit systems under general regulations formulated at Washington.

Garnett reported that under the proposals, the DPA Advisory Board would have final approval of all actions relating to DPA personnel, as required by law.

The three-member council would be appointed by the governor.

Penn-Reed Chain Buys Dairy from Meyersdale Firm

Extensive Improvements and Additions Will Be Made at Once

Meyersdale Pa., Feb. 23—J. Hostetler, an official of the Penn-Reed Milk company, of Belleville, Pa., who has been here for the past ten days negotiating with the owners of the New Meyersdale Dairy company, has taken over the property and business of the local concern and added it to the Penn-Reed chain of dairies, the other two being located at Reedsville and Belleville.

Mr. Hostetler is spending several days here assisting the manager, O. B. Lauver in making arrangements for extensive improvements and additions to the plant. Industrial experts have been here during the past week making a survey of the requirements of the plant, and the new equipment has been ordered. Six weeks, or perhaps a longer time, will be required for the installation of the new machinery and making the changes contemplated in the building.

The Penn-Reed company will market their products in Philadelphia, Baltimore and points in New Jersey.

Work Delayed

Construction of the rural electrification lines in nearby Greenville and Larimer townships has been temporarily delayed on account of the deep snowfall the past several weeks, but work will be resumed within a few days.

Some difficulty has been experienced in the territory on account of the securing of the rights of way, but the superintendent, Harvey S. Jennings, states that most of these difficulties have been overcome, and that construction will go forward on all lines projected except the line from Wittenberg east along the Plank road, and the one from Pocahontas west to the Greenville church.

Marriage Announced

Announcement has been made of the marriage last Saturday of Mrs. Margaret Ann Truxal MacGeorge to George Hall Moffett, son of Mrs. William A. Moffett, and the late Rear Admiral Moffett, U. S. N., Wayne, Pa.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Cyrus W. Truxal, and a granddaughter of the late Dr. Albert E. Truxal, who served for nearly thirty years as pastor of Amity Reformed church in Meyersdale.

The ceremony was performed at the Truxal home in Wayne by Chaplain W. N. Thomas, U.S.N., in the presence of a small group of relatives and friends.

Brief Mention

Seniors of the local high school, selected from the upper third of the class from a scholastic standpoint by the high school faculty, and who were adjudged eligible for membership in the National Honor Society, are Georgia Kelm, Gloe Gnagey, Donald Clark and Lawrence. The juniors were Junior Leslie, Florence Belcher, Jack Commons, Betty Floto, Elizabeth Ann Grof and Pauline Cook.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Vought, have as their guest their daughter, Miss Arline Vought, a student of Juniata College, who is spending the weekend here.

William S. Livengood, Sr., Harrisburg, arrived here today and will spend the weekend visiting his daughter Mrs. Frances Imler and children, Jimmy and Louise.

Mrs. Joseph Pasquale, returned today from a week's visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard D'Angelis, Washington, D. C.

The Rev. and Mrs. Clark S. Smith, York, are guests of the Rev. and Mrs. Nelson C. Brown at the Reformed parsonage.

Mrs. Joe F. Reich, daughter, Mrs. Adelaide Bard, and Miss Margaret Lief, returned yesterday from Pittsburg, where they spent several days visiting the latter's cousin, Margaret and Onnie Lief.

Heavy Coal Output

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 23. (AP)—The State's January-February coal production was estimated today by the Department of Mines at 21,800,000 tons, highest figure for a comparable period in a decade.

Engineer H. G. Houtz said the heavy output probably was due to the cold weather and to better business conditions. Production during January-February last year totaled 17,347,000 tons and in 1937 it was 20,000,000 tons.

Midland Has Not Decided about Bi-State League

Sponsor of Champion Red Sox To See Byrnes and Stakem

Midland, Feb. 23—John Robertson, sponsor of the Midland Baseball team for the past two years announced last night that definite plans have not been made as to whether the team will continue in the Bi-State loop this season. Midland was not represented at the meeting held in Cumberland Wednesday night to renew the franchise this year.

Although the meeting held this week was to be the final date on which a franchise could be filed an extension was granted to the Red Sox until the next meeting to be held March 7.

Robertson will meet with William Byrnes and Thomas E. Stakem within the next few days and try to make a suitable agreement in order for the town to be represented in the league.

All of the members of last year's championship team are available again this season with the exception of Bob Ramazetti who has signed a contract to play with Johnstown.

Sports Club Meets

The Allegany County Social and Sports Club has been in touch with the State Game and Fish Commission to see whether or not a portion of the game sent to Allegany County for distribution could be sent to this vicinity to be distributed by the club. The Game Commission has assured the club that a portion of game will be turned over to it.

The next regular meeting which will be held February 25 at Michael Cunninghams at 2:30.

Brief Items

Mrs. Rawley M. Shelton entertained a group of her friends with a bridge party Wednesday night. Prize winners were Mrs. Lottie Jones and Mrs. Alma McCormick. Refreshments were served late in the evening. Others present were Mrs. Charlotte McAlpine, Mrs. Catherine Stevens, Mrs. Sylvia Little and Mrs. Millicert Berry.

Madison Grindle has returned to his home from Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, where he has been a patient since June 23, after his motorcycle collided with a car at Knapps Meadow. Although he has to use crutches his condition is splendid.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Rainey Gilmore, announce the birth of a son at their home, Wednesday.

Club Has Party At Mt. Savage

Mt. Savage, Feb. 23—Miss Catherine O'Rourke entertained the "Q" Club at her home Thursday evening. A business meeting was held during the early part of the evening and it was decided that the club will hold an April Fool's Bargain Dance Monday, April 1, at Melody Manor. A social followed the business session and refreshments were served.

Members present were: Misses Dorothy Blake, Kathleen McKenzie, Emaline Crump, Rita Meanyhan, Anna Louise Pollock and Catherine O'Rourke, William Aldridge and Michael and James O'Rourke.

Youth Club Meets

The weekly meeting of the Catholic Youth Club was held Wednesday evening in the Knights of Columbus' hall. The Rev. Francis J. Egan conducted an Oral Quizz and prizes were awarded to the winners. After the quizz games were played and refreshments served.

New Apartments

The Stern Apartments on Main Street are nearing completion and Mr. Stern states they will be ready for occupancy within a few weeks. The apartment house was formerly the old Mattingly hotel and since purchased by Mr. Stern, it has been completely renovated. New floors have been laid and all modern conveniences have been installed. The building will be divided into six apartments that will vary in size from two to four rooms.

Brief Items

Mrs. Catherine Copleston, Asheville, N. C., who is visiting her sisters, Miss Veronica McDermitt and Mrs. P. E. O'Rourke, is recuperating from a serious illness.

JOURNEY'S END

Cynthia Ann Bremer, 6, who traveled all the way from Sydney, Australia, to Chicago to meet her father, only to learn that he had left for Africa, is met by her grandmother, Mrs. Joseph Bremer, of Johnstown, Pa., with whom she will stay. The father, Robert Bremer, is an automobile manufacturing executive.

Carp Swims after Being on Ice For Ten Days

Oak Hill, W. Va., Feb. 23. (AP)—Curious Oak Hill residents crowded into a market (A. and P.) today for a look at a five-pound German carp, swimming animatedly around in a tub of water after ten days on ice.

Store manager Johnny Crawford said the carp arrived in a shipment of fish.

Two Escaped Prisoners Are Recaptured

Summersville, W. Va., Feb. 23 (AP)—A posse led by state troopers recaptured in Clay county two "leaders of the gang" of seven prisoners who escaped Wednesday from the Nicholas county jail by removing a stone from the walls.

Sheriff F. C. Perkins said Ira Daniels of Clay county, sentenced to from one to ten years for grand larceny, and Halley Hensley, who was awaiting trial on a felony charge, were recaptured.

Officers said other fugitives have been reported seen in Webster county and in the vicinity of Richwood.

Late News from the George's Creek and Tri-State Region

Hafer Building To Be Completed In Near Future

Frostburg Concern Will Be Ready for Business Early in April

Frostburg, Feb. 23—Despite the early delays due to the severe weather of January and the late arrival of certain building material, the Hafer building, East Main street, is rapidly nearing completion and according to present plans, will be opened for business early in April.

All wall plastering and steel ceiling installation on the two upper floors was completed this week and painters are now engaged in decorating those sections of the building.

A portion of the show windows on the main floor has been completed and expert workers will be on hand next week to complete the stone and marble front of the street floor which will be the ornamental feature of the exterior.

The furnishings for the building, including a Hammond pipe organ and stained glass windows for the chapel and carpets for the rooms comprising the funeral home, will be installed as soon as decorators have completed their work.

Following completion of work by decorators and builders, the Hafer concern will spend several weeks in moving merchandise and arranging displays in the new building.

The new Hafer building, designed by a New York architect, will be one of the largest and costliest in the community and its appointments will be modern in every particular. The structure, located in the business center of the town, replaces the "Iron Front" building, destroyed by fire last fall and once occupied by the McMullen Brothers department store and later by the M. Tuvin store.

Will Present Play

Presentation of "Candle-Light," a humorous play, at Frostburg State Teachers College Thursday evening, Feb. 29, by the Little Theater is being awaited with keen interest by all familiar with the splendid plays sponsored by this group.

"Candle-Light" is said by those taking part as performers and spectators in the rehearsals to be one of the most entertaining plays available.

Patrick Messman, Cumberland, will portray the role of "Josef," a valet, around whom the plot is centered. However the part of the "Prince" to be played by John Blackwell, is also much in the spotlight. Miss Theo Carnell, Cumberland, will play the leading feminine role of the "nice" girl.

Others in the cast are William Houck, Grantsville; Hopwood Woodsell Charles Wilt, Oakland, and Miss Muriel Davis, Miss Betty Schneider and Crales Eberly, this city.

Assembly Program

The regular assembly program was presented by the Latin students, under the direction of Miss Kitty O'Brien, in the Beall auditorium Thursday afternoon. The program opened by members of the Latin Club singing "Te Cano Patria." A myth, "Narcissus and Echo," was written into the form of a play by Jean Hartig. The characters were: Echo—Nancy Thomas, Narcussus—John Simons, Mother of Narcussus—Virginia Boyer, Wise Man—James Arnone. June Morton recited the poem, "Roofs."

A satirical play, "Georgius Africanus Washingtonius," written by Harry Keller, was presented by the following characters: Father of Georgius—George Hamrick, Mother of Georgius—Angela Garritano, Georgius A. Washingtonius—Earl Ward, First Soldier—Billy Kroll, Second Soldier—Leslie Kreider.

Another myth, "Prymas and Thisbe," written into the form of a play by Betty Virginia Wilson, was presented with the following characters: Thisbe—Betty Virginia Wilson, Pyramus—Harry Keller, Danae, Thisbe's servant—Jean Hartig, Lion—Billy Kroll.

Jacquelyn Engle, accompanied by her mother, sang "Careless" and "God Bless America."

Mrs. James Jones Of Luke Succumbs

Dies in Potomac Valley Hospital after a Long Illness

Westernport, Feb. 23.—Mrs. James Jones, 53, of Luke died at 4:30 p. m. today in the Potomac Valley hospital Keyser. She had been in ill health for the past year and had been in the hospital about nine days.

Mrs. Jones was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Coffman, Bloomington, Md.

Surviving are her husband, James Jones and six children; James, Piedmont, William of Beryl, W. Va.; Paul at home; Eileen of Rocky Mount, N. C., Mrs. Agnes Anderson, Piedmont and Anna Mae at home; one sister, Mrs. Aubrey Ross, Westernport and one brother William Coffman, Westernport and eight grandchildren.

Mrs. Jones was a member of the Pencostal Holiness church.

Interesting Study

Miss Hallie Davis, a former resident of Piedmont, whose mother lives at 11 E. Hampshire street, Piedmont, displayed a plaster study of her fourth cousin, Jefferson Davis, the leader of the confederate cause, at a St. Paul (Minn.) theater at the recent showing of the motion picture "Gone with the Wind".

Although inspired by Margaret Mitchell's book of the Civil war, Miss Davis's portrayal of her famous cousin was as the hero of Buena Vista, a victory in war of 1849, rather than the worried confederate president.

Miss Davis, who was born and reared in Piedmont, studied at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine arts in Philadelphia, and was awarded a scholarship for study in Paris.

Miss Davis now lives in St. Paul. Her brothers, George and Dent, live in Piedmont, and Mrs. Grace Hawkins, her sister from Los Angeles, is spending the winter here.

Paul Livengood Will Be Married This Afternoon

Former Grantsville Citizen Will Take Virginia Girl as Bride

Grantsville, Feb. 23—A marriage of interest to residents of this community is that of Paul Irving Livengood and Miss Edith Virginia Hall, Alexandria, Va., which will take place at 4:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The ceremony will be performed at the First Baptist church, at Alexandria, by the Rev. O. P. Lloyd, pastor, who will use the ring service.

Miss Hall has chosen here sister-in-law, Mrs. Betty Hall, as her matron of honor and only attendant. Paxton Funkhouser, Washington, D. C., will serve as best man. The service will be simple and quiet with only the immediate families and a few friends present.

The bride-to-be is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Hall, of Franconia, Va. She graduated from the Lee Jackson high school there with the class of 1936, and for some time has been employed as a supervisor by the C. and P. Telephone Company, at Alexandria. She has visited at Mr. Livengood's home here on several occasions. She is an attractive brunette and for her wedding costume has chosen a frock of blue haze crepe, with navy accessories. Her corsage will be of Valley lillies and Talisman roses. Her attendant will wear a frock of harmonizing shade and a corsage of sweet peas and valley lillies.

Mr. Livengood is well known in this and adjoining communities. He is the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Livengood, of Grantsville, and was born and reared here. He attended the local schools, graduating from the high school with the class of 1929. He also attended the Bliss Electrical School, Washington, D. C. For the past seven years he has been connected with the Chestnut Farm Dairy, at Washington, D. C.

Immediately following the ceremony the couple will leave for a honeymoon visit to southern points and will be at home after March 4 at the Mt. Vernon Gardens apartments, 715 So. Washington street, Washington, D. C.

C. C. Heishman Candidate To Succeed Himself

Wardensville Man Will Run Again for House of Delegates

Moorefield, W. Va., Feb. 23.—C. C. Heishman, Wardensville, who has served Hardy county for the past two years as delegate to the State Legislature, has announced his candidacy to succeed himself.

While a member of the legislature, Mr. Heishman was active in securing the state convict camp which is helping to improve the roads in Hardy County. He also did what he could toward having the large barn rebuilt at the Rayman Memorial Farm.

Mr. Heishman says: "I was certainly glad to receive telegrams from the different clubs and individuals in the county concerning bills they were interested in, for it gave me an idea where their interests lay. I appreciate the interest they took in my work and, if reelected, I hope to continue to vote for the things Hardy county wants."

Masonic Club

The Moorefield Masonic club is active in furnishing and equipping its new club room quarters in the McWhorter building. A billiard table has been installed and is being refinished and recovered this week. Tables for bridge, set-back, and checkers are already in use.

K. G. Vance is chairman of the committee in charge of the club quarters and membership is limited to members of the lodge.

Luther Smith

Luther Smith, Bass, a former graduate of Moorefield High school, and student at Potomac State College, Keyser, was one of a debating team which went to Shippensburg, Pa., over the week-end and participated in a meet with nine other schools. The Potomac State team finished in a tie for third place with West Virginia and Shippensburg State Teachers College. The subject for debate was, "Isolation," and Mr. Smith was on the negative side.

Bill Fisher Stars

Personal Mention

Dewey Barr, Bean Settlement, has been employed at Thomas Chevrolet, where he is being trained for the position of parts manager by William Kuykendall, who expects to resign later. Mr. Barr was formerly employed by John Burch.

Nine sportsmen of Moorefield contributed a dollar each to the purchase of grain to feed the game birds in Hardy county during the recent freezing period. John Fisher, John Shanholtz, A. E. Friddle, W. C. Calhoun, R. E. Fisher, H. E. Hutter, M. A. Bean, Ted Sager and Robert Powers were all contributors.

Merit System Council Plan Is Approved

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 23. (AP)—Apparent approval in Washington of West Virginia's plan of a three-member system council for employes of three state departments was announced today by one department director.

A. W. Garnett of the Public Assistance division said the plan called for retention of the department advisory board, but that its personnel authority would be "farmed out" to the merit council.

Notification from the Social Security Board and Children's Bureau in Washington of acceptance of the plan was "vague," Garnett asserted, and he has written for a "yes or no" answer.

Unemployment Compensation Director John S. Stump, Jr., who with Health Commissioner A. E. McClue submitted a separate but similar plan, said he had not been notified of acceptance.

All three departments, receiving federal funds, were directed to set up merit systems under general regulations formulated at Washington.

Garnett reported that under the proposals, the DPA Advisory Board would have final approval of all actions relating to DPA personnel, as required by law.

The three-member council would be appointed by the governor.

Extensive Improvements and Additions Will Be Made at Once

Meyersdale Pa., Feb. 23—J. Hostetler, an official of the Penn-Reed Milk company, of Belleville, Pa., who has been here for the past ten days negotiating with the owners of the New Meyersdale Dairy company, has taken over the property and business of the local concern and added it to the Penn-Reed chain of dairies, the other two being located at Reedsville and Belleville.

Mr. Hostetler is spending several days here assisting the manager, O. B. Lauver in making arrangements for extensive improvements and additions to the plant. Industrial experts have been here during the past week making a survey of the requirements of the plant, and the new equipment has been ordered. Six weeks, or perhaps a longer time, will be required for the installation of the new machinery and making the changes contemplated in the building.

The Penn-Reed company will market their products in Philadelphia, Baltimore and points in New Jersey.

Work Delayed

Construction of the rural electrification lines in nearby Greenville and Larimer townships has been temporarily delayed on account of the deep snowfall the past several weeks, but work will be resumed within a few days.

Some difficulty has been experienced in the territory on account of the securing of the rights of way, but the superintendent, Harvey S. Jennings, states that most of these difficulties have been overcome, and that construction will go forward on all lines projected except the line from Wittenberg east along the Plank road, and the one from Pocahontas west to the Greenville church.

Marriage Announced

Announcement has been made of the marriage last Saturday of Mrs. Margaret Ann Truxal MacGeorge to George Hall Moffett, son of Mrs. William A. Moffett, and the late Rear Admiral Moffett, U.S. N., Wayne, Pa.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Cyrus W. Truxal, and a granddaughter of the late Dr. Albert E. Truxal, who served for nearly thirty years as pastor of Amity Reformed church in Meyersdale.

The ceremony was performed at the Truxal home in Wayne by Chaplain W. N. Thomas, U.S.N., in the presence of a small group of relatives and friends.

Heavy Coal Output

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 23. (AP)—The State's January-February coal production was estimated today by the Department of Mines at 21,800,000 tons, highest figure for a comparable period in a decade.

Engineer H. G. Houtz said the heavy output probably was due to the cold weather and to better business conditions. Production during January-February last year totaled 17,347,000 tons and in 1937 it was 20,000,000 tons.

Midland Has Not Decided about Bi-State League

Sponsor of Champion Red Sox To See Byrnes and Stakem

Midland, Feb. 23—John Robertson, sponsor of the Midland Baseball team for the past two years announced last night that definite plans have not been made as to whether the team will continue in the Bi-State loop this season. Midland was not represented at the meeting held in Cumberland Wednesday night to renew the franchise this year.

Although the meeting held this week was to be the final date on which a franchise could be filed an extension was granted to the Red Sox until the next meeting to be held March 7.

Robertson will meet with William Byrnes and Thomas E. Stakem within the next few days and try to make a suitable agreement in order for the town to be represented in the league.

All of the members of last year's championship team are available again this season with the exception of Bob Ramazetti who has signed a contract to play with Johnstown.

Sports Club Meets

The Allegany County Social and Sports Club has been in touch with the State Game and Fish Commission to see whether or not a portion of the game sent to Allegany County for distribution could be sent to this vicinity to be distributed by the club. The Game Commission has assured the club that a portion of game will be turned over to it.

The next regular meeting which will be held February 25 at Michael Cunninghams at 2:30.

Garrett Farmers To Receive Checks For $4,117.29

Money Is Being Paid in Connection with Conservation Program

Oakland, Feb. 23—The second lot of checks for farmers in connection with the 1939 agricultural conservation program, have been received at the office of John H. Carter, county agent, and will be distributed to those designated. The second lot is composed of 105 checks and the total amount is $4,117.29.

Mr. Carter announced that he would schedule meetings as the checks continue to come in and distribute them to those to whom they belong. Most of those received are for the Accident community, with a few for Grantsville and Friendsville communities.

The county agent has also received a number of sample copies of the schedule for farm people which may be had by calling at his office in the court house. These sample forms will give farm people an idea of what will be asked them when the census enumerator calls. Mr. Carter said there are 232 questions to be answered on the forms in his possession.

Stolen Car Recovered

Earl Harvey, of near Oakland, returned from Parkersburg, W. Va., today having gone there yesterday to claim his automobile which was stolen from in front of the Oakland high school building last Friday night. The car was stolen by three fugitives from the National Training school in Washington, D. C., who were arrested early Saturday morning in Parkersburg, W. Va., after a wild ride over icy roads.

Mr. Harvey said his car had been more seriously damaged than was first suspected. The three youths had attempted to rob a gas station between Clarksburg and Parkersburg, and the proprietor had awakened and when they had failed to heed his command to halt, he fired three shots which penetrated the car and narrowly missed the occupants.

They also collided with a taxicab in Parkersburg, and when police stepped up to the car the occupants suddenly darted away and were captured only after a wild chase over several miles of twisting road.

The youths were identified as John M. Wade, 16; Curtis B. Licke, 16, both of Tulsa, Okla., and Stanley Dryden, 18, of Baltimore. A description of the automobile had been broadcast from the sheriff's office in Oakland when it was reported stolen, and Maryland police in turn broadcast the theft to West Virginia and Pennsylvania authorities.

The three youths were from among thirteen who escaped from the training school a few days ago. Most of them have been recaptured, it has been stated.

Bill Wilson Held

Bill Wilson, of Mt. Lake Park, is being held in the county jail on a charge of larceny of a large automobile tire from the Hutchinson Garage in Loch Lynn last Saturday night. He was given a hearing before Magistrate C. F. White and held for action of the March term grand jury, after failure to give bond. He told officers where to recover the tire.

Roads are Damaged

Officials of the State Roads Commission are somewhat concerned about the condition of the state highways as a result of the heavy freeze this winter and the result of quick thawing. Damage from this cause is said to be slight as yet, but a number of upheavals have occurred which makes travel dangerous. A gradual thaw would relieve the situation and not cause damage as was experienced four years ago when damage to roads ran into thousands of dollars.

Cars Are Damaged

A school bus driven by Arthur Fitzwater and an automobile driven by Dr. E. I. Baumgartner collided Wednesday morning near Glendale Bridge, about nine miles north of Oakland, but no one was hurt. The vehicles, however, were badly damaged, especially Dr. Baumgartner's automobile.

There were only a few students in the bus at the time which was enroute to Oakland. Dr. Baumgartner was enroute to his duties at the Meadow Mountain CCC camp. The accident occurred on a curve. Deep ruts in the roadway made it impossible to avoid the collision, it was stated.

McNutt To Speak

Charles Town, W. Va., Feb. 23.—Paul V. McNutt, social security administrator, will address a dinner meeting March 8, the Jefferson County Young Democratic Club announced today

Brief Items

Mrs. Harry Feld, who became suddenly ill while in Cumberland last week and who has since been a patient in Memorial hospital, shows no improvement and her condition is regarded as critical. Several blood transfusions have been administered since last Thursday.

Prince Hubertus Speaks at Keyser

Talks at Potomac State on Youth Movement in Germany

Keyser, W. Va., Feb. 23.—Austrian-born Prince Hubertus Loewenstein spoke at Potomac State school assembly today on the youth movement in Germany.

Much interest was shown by students, who fired questions for forty minutes at the speaker after his forty-five-minute talk was concluded.

Prince Hubertus is the author of a number of books, among them "The Tragedy of a Nation, Germany 1919-1934," and "After Hitler's Fall." The latter volume, published in 1935, so aroused the German dictator that the author was expatriated. He was given Czechoslovakian citizenship by President Benes.

The prince is here as one of a number of lecturers on a program of the Institute of Foreign Affairs of Rotary International, sponsored here by the Keyser Rotary Club.

Garrett Farmers To Receive Checks For $4,117.29

Money Is Being Paid in Connection with Conservation Program

Oakland, Feb. 23—The second lot of checks for farmers in connection with the 1939 agricultural conservation program, have been received at the office of John H. Carter, county agent, and will be distributed to those designated. The second lot is composed of 105 checks and the total amount is $4,117.29.

Mr. Carter announced that he would schedule meetings as the checks continue to come in and distribute them to those to whom they belong. Most of those received are for the Accident community, with a few for Grantsville and Friendsville communities.

The county agent has also received a number of sample copies of the schedule for farm people which may be had by calling at his office in the court house. These sample forms will give farm people an idea of what will be asked them when the census enumerator calls. Mr. Carter said there are 232 questions to be answered on the forms in his possession.

Stolen Car Recovered

Earl Harvey, of near Oakland, returned from Parkersburg, W. Va., today having gone there yesterday to claim his automobile which was stolen from in front of the Oakland high school building last Friday night. The car was stolen by three fugitives from the National Training school in Washington, D. C., who were arrested early Saturday morning in Parkersburg, W. Va., after a wild ride over icy roads.

Mr. Harvey said his car had been more seriously damaged than was first suspected. The three youths had attempted to rob a gas station between Clarksburg and Parkersburg, and the proprietor had awakened and when they had failed to heed his command to halt, he fired three shots which penetrated the car and narrowly missed the occupants.

They also collided with a taxicab in Parkersburg, and when police stepped up to the car the occupants suddenly darted away and were captured only after a wild chase over several miles of twisting road.

The youths were identified as John M. Wade, 16; Curtis B. Licke, 16, both of Tulsa, Okla., and Stanley Dryden, 18, of Baltimore. A description of the automobile had been broadcast from the sheriff's office in Oakland when it was reported stolen, and Maryland police in turn broadcast the theft to West Virginia and Pennsylvania authorities.

The three youths were from among thirteen who escaped from the training school a few days ago. Most of them have been recaptured, it has been stated.

Bill Wilson Held

Bill Wilson, of Mt. Lake Park, is being held in the county jail on a charge of larceny of a large automobile tire from the Hutchinson garage in Loch Lynn last Saturday night. He was given a hearing before Magistrate C. F. White and held for action of the March term grand jury, after failure to give bond. He told officers where to recover the tire.

Roads are Damaged

Officials of the State Roads Commission are somewhat concerned about the condition of the state highways as a result of the heavy freeze this winter and the result of quick thawing. Damage from this cause is said to be slight as yet, but a number of upheavals have occurred which makes travel dangerous. A gradual thaw would relieve the situation and not cause damage as was experienced four years ago when damage to roads ran into thousands of dollars.

Cars Are Damaged

A school bus driven by Arthur Fitzwater and an automobile driven by Dr. E. I. Baumgartner collided Wednesday morning near Glendale Bridge, about nine miles north of Oakland, but no one was hurt. The vehicles, however, were badly damaged, especially Dr. Baumgartner's automobile.

There were only a few students in the bus at the time which was enroute to Oakland. Dr. Baumgartner was enroute to his duties at the Meadow Mountain CCC camp. The accident occurred on a curve. Deep ruts in the roadway made it impossible to avoid the collision, it was stated.

Janitor Files for Mayor, Opening Primary Fight

Harper Baffled For Eight Hours By Red Tape

Breaks Through, However, after Exciting Day

After a seven-hour tussle with election red tape, Janitor John Harper last night qualified as a candidate for mayor and thereby plunged himself and twelve other candidates for city offices into a primary campaign.

White-haired Mr. Harper, who looks something like a textbook picture of Fightin' Andy Jackson, bumped into trouble with technicalities when he strode into City Hall yesterday afternoon, but his petition stood the acid test of City Hall scruting. And at 9 p. m. he solemnly took the candidates oath administered by City Clerk S. E. Griminger.

Informed that attempts to sidetrack the Harper candidacy had been unsuccessful, Potential Candidates John H. Fike and Robert L. Meyers immediately became actual candidates. Prior to the time that it became certain that Harper didn't care if his filing cost the city $2,500 for a primary or not, Meyers and Fike had stated they would not be responsible for causing a primary. They left it up to Harper.

Actually, it developed last night that there would have been a primary regardless of what Harper decided to do. James Blackwell, editor of the Voice of Labor, appeared in City Hall with a council petition for Harry Castle, CIO official.

Fearful that Harper would be scratched at the last minute, Blackwell said that Castle's petition had been prepared to force a primary, if necessary. Blackwell explained that he thought it would be "healthier" if the primary was held. Satisfied that Harper and two additional council candidates were in the race, Blackwell kept his petition in his pocket.

The Candidates

For Mayor

Harry Irvine, 300 Pulaski street, present mayor.

Thomas S. Post, 512 Louisiana avenue, service station operator.

John W. Harper, 408 Prince George street, janitor.

For City Council

James Orr, 544 Fairview avenue.

Thomas F. Conlon, 208 Schley street.

William J. Edwards, 225 Columbia avenue.

Edgar Reynolds, 815 Louisiana avenue.

John H. Fike, 13 East Mary street.

Joseph M. Fradiska, 416 Cumberland street.

Robert L. Meyers, 21 Blackiston avenue.

Benjamin W. O'Rourke, 623 Bedford street.

Kenneth D. Racey, 729 Hill Top Drive.

Randolph T. Wishmyer Sr., 129 Race street.

Until yesterday, a primary did not appear a certainty due to the fact that only two candidates, Irvine and Post, had filed for mayor and eight candidates for the City Council. One more candidate for either mayor or council made a primary a certainty.

Harper Arrives

Any hopes to avoid a $2,500 primary went glimmering yesterday afternoon when Harper walked into City Hall with his petition papers under his arm. With him came Charles P. Eversole, Celanese pipe fitter, who had assisted in circulating Harper's petitions.

Harper got a chilly reception. And it was immediately shown that the candidates was not familiar with the technicalities of filing for the office of mayor.

Informed that he needed someone to swear that the names on his petition were bona fide, Harper went forth to find someone. He returned presently with Irvin McElfish, 10 Mary street, an election official.

Much Red Tape

Mr. McElfish, however, scanned the paper he was supposed to sign and decided that he couldn't swear that all the names were bona fide because he hadn't seen anyone sign them.

Clerk Griminger suggested that Harper chase out and find someone else. Mr. Harper hurried out and came back with Clifton E. Fuller, 624 Elm street, a veteran member of the registration board.

Mr. Fuller looked at the paper laid before him by Clerk Griminger and decided that he couldn't swear to the validity of Harper's petition, either.

By this time, the clerk's office was filled with interested spectators and confusion reigned.

Mayor, Heskett Grin

Informed of the problem, both the mayor and city attorney grinned broadly. The mayor then goodnaturedly told his rival that in the absence of any proof to the contrary, anyone could swear that the petition was valid. Else, explained Mr. Heskett and the mayor, it would be difficult to hold elections at all. Eversole, the man who had helped Harper circulate his petitions, was the man to sign, said the mayor.

Harper was next informed by the city clerk that the names on the petitions would have to be examined. A corps of City Hall workers went to work on the petition.

A few minutes later a tall young strode into City Hall to announce that he was desirous of signing Harper's petition forthwith. He was John Edwin Miller, of 17 Plymouth Drive, who declared he didn't know Harper from Adam and had never seen him in his life but wanted to be certain that he had a chance to run if he wanted to. Miller signed and departed.

Daughter on Hand

Another spectator who appeared on the scene was Miss June Harper, 21, daughter of the candidate, who told her father she came down to see what was going on. Miss Harper, a employe of Celanese in the warp knitting department, declared she belonged to the Celanese union "100 per cen."

It being after 5 o'clock the City Hall force then went home for supper, stating they would return at 8 p. m.

At approximately 8:30 p. m. Harper's petitions were found to be satisfactory and Clerk Griminger invited him by phone to come down and be sworn. Harper arrived a few minutes later and was sworn before a large group of interested spectators.

Starts Campaign

Once sworn, Candidate Harper lost little time launching his campaign. He made a speech.

He declared he was going to do his best to be elected but wanted to thank the City Hall people for assisting him in getting filed and wanted them to know that he hoped the ensuing campaign could be conducted on a friendly basis.

MAKES THE GRADE—John W. Harper, janitor, who plunged the city into a primary campaign by filing as a candidate for mayor at 9 p. m. last night. Mr. Harper posed full of determination on the steps of City Hall while the names on his petition were being carefully checked by Irvine administration workers.—News Staff Photo.

Midland Bank Receiver Sues Caleb J. White To Collect Judgment

A suit to attach certain shares of Queen City Dairy stock owned by Mr. and Mrs. Caleb J. White, of Ellerslie, to collect a judgment was docketed yesterday in Circuit court by George S. Arnold, receiver of the First National Bank of Midland.

Stating that the bank has already received a judgment against the Whites for $254.70, plus interest and costs of $13.85, the complainant asks that a writ of aitachment be levied on the shares and also against the lands, goods, and chattels of the Whites.

The suit was docketed by Harry I. Stegmaier, counsel for the Midland bank.

Tim Troxell Dies Of Heart Attack

Veteran Tinner Was Amateur Astrologist

John Welty "Tim" Troxell, a lifelong resident of Cumberland and a character known as an amateur astrologist and etymologist, dropped dead about 6 o'clock last night on the third floor of 18 South Mechanic street, where he had a room.

Troxell, who would have been sixty-seven in May, was a tinner and roofer by trade, but old-time residents recalled last night that he had not been active in the business for many years.

Troxell had moved into the third floor room on Monday, from the former Cavanaugh's hotel at 174 Baltimore street, where all the rooms are to be remodeled. He had stayed at the Walton hotel at Baltimore avenue and Front street for a time.

His only relative living is a sister, Miss Minnie Troxell, who lives at 115 Independence street, and works at Rosenbaum's Department store. Miss Troxell found her brother's body when she called to visit him at 6:30 p. m. He was dressed in bedroom slippers and trousers.

Miss Troxell found her brother's body on the floor of the bathroom at the rear of the third floor when she called to visit him. Mrs. George Lee Welsh, Troxell's landlady, arrived at the building at about the same time and called a doctor, who said the man had died about a half hour before.

He had been attacked of recent years by a combination of diseases of the heart and kidneys, but had been in and out of his room according to his usual habits until yesterday morning. He had suffered several fainting spells at that time but his sister said he seemed better when she left at noon. He was alone on the floor at the time he died.

Troxell was never married. His sister said a fiancee had died when he was a young man and he had vowed to stay single at that time.

Persons who knew 'Tim', as he was always called, said he spent much time and took great pride in explaining astrology to his friends over a drink. He also was enthusiastic in his search for new words to use in his colorful conversation.

County Ignores State On Children's Home

Allegany county officials last night expressed only mild interest when informed that Milton Patterson, director of the State Department of Public Welfare, has called upon the Allegany County Welfare Board to assist in removing the twenty-three children now living at the "emergency home" operated by Captain Harry C. Balch on Valley road.

There was no doubt last night that feelings are being aroused over the state department's orders to close the institution, but county authorities have taken the stand that Mrs. Elizabeth Menefee, juvenile court magistrate, now holds the key to the situation.

Informed of Mr. Patterson's request for the county welfare board's aid in removing the children, Mrs. Menefee said suavely last night that no child can be removed from the Balch home without permission of her court.

No Plans To Move Children

Since Mrs. Menefee disclosed no plans or intentions of moving the children from the Balch home, she and the county commissioners are, at the present moment in a state of rebellion against Mr. Patterson's attempts to tell them how homeless children in Allegany county should be cared for.

The county has been paying seventy-five cents a day to Captain Balch for each child. The number of children in the Balch home was reduced recently from forty to twenty-three.

Mr. Patterson, however, has obtained from the Attorney General Walsh a ruling that the welfare department has authority to prosecute Captain Balch for operating a child-shelter home without a license from the welfare department, as required by state law.

State Won't License Home

Patterson has refused to license the Balch home because certain standards set up by the welfare department have not been met.

State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris, expressing more or less the sentiments of other county officials, recently branded these un-met standards as "pretentious, impracticable, theoretical, and unnecessary."

In reply to the county officials who have risen to the defense of Captain Balch, Mr. Patterson declared yesterday in Baltimore:

"We have tried for four years to make arrangements whereby the home could be brought up to standard and be licensed by the state. Since the requirements could not be met, Mr. Balch agreed to close the home."

Patterson Defends His Standards

Mr. Patterson also said that he had written Captain Balch saying:

"At no time have we ques-

School Girl Dies After Operation

Peggy Loraine Clayton, an eighth grade student at Allegany high school, died yesterday morning at Allegany hospital where she had been admitted Feb. 6. She was fourteen years old.

Peggy was the oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Clayton, 110 South Johnson street. Her death followed a mastoid operation, performed the day she was admitted to the hospital.

She had been regular in attendance at the school, where her teachers said she had always been a good student. Illness forced her to stay home on January 29, and she never returned after that time.

Surviving, besides her parents, are a sister, Elaine, in the seventh grade at Allegany high school; and two brothers, Eugene, who finished high school two years ago, and Royce, who attended the high school until a few weeks ago.

SKI CONDITIONS

Barring a sudden thaw, skiing will be good at New Germany today and tomorrow, with a large Sunday crowd expected.

And the U. S. weather bureau in Baltimore, instead of predicting a thaw, promises more snow for New Germany this afternoon or tonight, which will make conditions perfect.

A light snow of less than an inch fell yesterday morning at New Germany, adding to the several inches of light snow covering the old crust.

Attorney General Gives Facts about Balch Ruling

Letter Shows How And Why Opinion Was Given

In a letter to The Cumberland News, William C. Walsh, attorney general of the state, sets forth the facts concerning his recent opinion concerning the Allegany County Emergency Home.

"I am writing this letter," Mr. Walsh states, "in reference to an article which appeared in The News of Wednesday, February 21, 1940, about an opinion I recently rendered as attorney general concerning the Allegany County Emergency Home conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Balch.

"Under date of January 19, 1940, Mr. J. Milton Patterson, director of the State Department of Public Welfare, advised me that the department wanted an official opinion as to what steps the department could take regarding the Balch home, if Mr. Balch continued to operate it without a license from the department, and with his letter Mr. Patterson enclosed copies of correspondence he had had with Mr. Balch about the matter and a summary of the action taken by the department regarding this home between August 1936 and January 1940.

"These enclosures showed that under date of January 6, 1940, Mr. Patterson had written Mr. Balch stating that he would like to know what plans Mr. Balch had for the future conduct of the home, suggesting that he apply for a license, and advising him that he was operating without a license in violation of the state law, and that up until January 19, 1940, Mr. Patterson had received no reply to his letter.

"On receipt of Mr. Patterson's letter, I called him on the telephone in Baltimore and suggested the advisability of my delaying the giving of a formal opinion until a further effort had been made to have Mr. Balch again take up with the department the question of securing a license, and Mr. Patterson agreed to this suggestion. Shortly afterwards I discussed the matter in Cumberland with Mr. Morgan C. Harris, the state's attorney for Allegany county, and requested him to ask Mr. Balch to communicate with Mr. Patterson, and I understand that Mr. Harris did so.

"Under date of February 12, 1940, I received a second letter from Mr. Patterson, stating that the State Department of Public Welfare had requested an immediate ruling on the Balch home, and Mr. Patterson advised me on the telephone that up until February 12, 1940, he had received no word of any sort from Mr. Balch in reply to his letter of January 6, 1940.

"In view of the foregoing situation, I did not feel that I could

on High Roads Low Roads and By-Ways

We've received fan mail (very rarely to be honest about it), but never before a fan package such as the postman brought yesterday. Wrapped up like a Christmas present for your best girl, it was, too. Inside was a doll on skis, made of fluffy material something like pipe cleaners, only much more elaborate. Our office associates, who, according to the movies, are supposed to be hard-boiled hombres, all admired it.

We overcame our usual modesty to mention this gift because of the spirited little poem that accompanied the doll as an introduction. Says the poem:

My name is Pete
I know my biz
When I'm on skiis
I am a whiz
I ski at will
I ski at ease
I ski until
I darn near freeze.
When winter goes
I'll feel quite blue
And that is why
I've come to you
Oh, keep me please
And think with cheer
We'll both have lots
Of fun next year.

We welcome the doll more than the sender knows. It's good to have somebody else around, if only a doll, who is sorry to see the winter drawing to a close. We've been getting terribly unpopular, going around shouting gleefully every time another blizzard strikes, or even a lone black cloud peeks over Haystack mountain.

Supreme Chaplain To Visit K. of C.

Father Leo M. Finn, Supreme Chaplain of Knights of Columbus, will pay a visit to Cumberland Council tomorrow to address the Knights of Cumberland and vicinity relative to the work and program of the Order.

All Catholic men of the community have been invited to attend the meeting, which will be at 3:00 p. m. in the K. of C. Home on North Mechanic street. Immediately following the meeting, there will be a smoker and open house for those attending.

Preceding the address the Grand Knight and officers of Cumberland Council will be host to Father Finn and State Deputy John A. Flanigan at a dinner. The Grand Knights of Mt. Savage, Frostburg, and Oakland will also be present.

This is Father Finn's first visit to Cumberland and Western Maryland. Father Finn has expressed a desire to meet as many members personally as he can.

There are 3,070 counties in the United States.

Downtown Fire Alarm Proves a Dud

City firemen and Cumberland citizens early last night had visions of a second big fire on Baltimore street within a month when an alarm was sounded from the G. C. Murphy Company store at 7:22 p. m.

Watchman Joe Byrne noticed a peculiar odor in the basement of the store and called the firemen, who investigated and found a sewer gas leak, but no fire. Hundreds of early evening theater goers were attracted by the excitement.

Court To Rule On Clerkship Next Tuesday

O'Conor's Right To Name Buchholtz Debated Yesterday

William H. Buchholtz will learn Tuesday whether he is destined to become clerk to the Allegany county commissioners, it was revealed yesterday.

Following a hearing in Circuit Court on the case, Chife Judge D. Lindley Sloan and Associate Judge William A. Huster indicated they will hand down an opinion next Tuesday.

Buchholtz, appointed to the post by Governor O'Conor, filed a petition for a writ of mandamus to establish recognition of his commission when the county commissioners began to fight the appointment.

Walter C. Capper, counsel for the county commissioners, yesterday attacked the governor's authority to make such an appointment to fill the vacancy now being filled by R. Mason Hill.

Capper stated that the governor was denied the right to make such an appointment according to an act of the Legislature in 1900.

Buchholtz was represented by W. Earle Cobey and Edward J. Ryan, who cited a similar case in Colorado where the court approved a governor's appointment. The clerkship, they contended, became vacant with no provision under local statute for being filled.

Attorney General William C. Walsh, appearing as a "friend of the court" for Gov. O'Conor, stated that the governor had the power under the Constitution to fill vacancies in public office when no other specific provision existed for filling the vacancy.

Police Solve Robbery At Goldfine Studio; Two Boys Arrested

Police today and holved the robbery of $3.20 in pennies from the Goldfine Studio, at 117 Baltimore street, the night of Feb. 16, with the arrest early yesterday morning of two eighteen year old boys who admitted their guilt.

Police traced down the trail of two boys who were said to be spending an unusual number of pennies and picked up James Donald Kenney, 50 Bedford street, and Carl Scharf, 106 Park street, for questioning in the case.

Both admitted that they used a pinch bar to force the door of the studio and removed the money after giving the studio a good "going over." The pair's confessions will be presented in Trial Magistrates court at a preliminary hearing either today or Monday, Lieut. James E. Van said. Lieut. Van and Detective R. Emmett Flynn made the arrests.

City To Extend Frederick St., Mayor Announces

To Open New Route Into Cumberland From the North

Mayor Harry Irvine anounced yesterday that arrangements have been completed to put through the Frederick street extension to intersect with Nave's Crossroad.

The intersection, running eastward from Fectig avenue, will afford a better grade nad an additional entrance to the city parallel to Bedford road.

Property owners who have agreed to grant the necessary rights of way ar the Schlundt and Bopp brothers and Dr. J. G. Sowers.

The State Roads Commission has already promised to develop and widen that portion of the intersection outside the city limits, a stretch of approximately 600 feet. The city's part of the extension will be 3,700 feet.

According to Mayor Irvine, the extension will be a WPA project and will be set up as soon as City Attorney Charles Z. Heskett can make arrangements to have a fifty-foot right-of-way deeded to the city.

Deaths

Michael T. Morrissey

Michael T. Morrissey, 12 Harrison street, a life-long resident of Cumberland, died yesterday morning at his home. He was 78.

He was a son of the late John and Amanda Clark Morrissey. He was associated for a time with his father in the butchering business and worked for a while at the local tin mill. Later he was also employed by the McKaig Foundry and once sustained severe burns in fighting a fire which threatened to destroy the plant. He had been inactive since he lost his leg in a railroad crossing accident twelve years ago. He was a member of St. Patrick's Catholic church.

Surviving are his wife, Annie Furlong Morrissey; two sons, John N. and Carl A. Morrissey, both of Cumberland; a daughter, Mrs. Kathleen Munson, of Fort Madison, Iowa; two brothers, Charles A. Morrissey, of Cumberland, and James Morrissey, of Baltimore; and three sisters, Mrs. Martha Dugan and Mrs. Sims Shuck, of Frederick, and Mrs. Alice Hobbs, of McKeesport, Pa.

Miller F. Barnes

Miller F. Barnes died suddenly yesterday morning at his home in Tyler, Texas. He was 48.

Mr. Barnes was a brother of Morris Barnes, 19 Washington street, a Western Maryland Railway auditor, and father of Betty Barnes, who lived with her uncle and aunt here. He was with the Sinclair Gas and Oil Company.

Surviving, besides his daughter and brother here, is another brother, William Barnes, in Tulsa, Okla.

Mrs. Myrtle Woods

Mrs. Myrtle Anna Appold Woods died yesterday at her home in Magnolia, W. Va. She was 69.

Mrs. Woods was the widow of William Woods who died thirty-two years ago. Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Peter Knepp, of Clarksville, Pa.; a son, William H., at home; a sister, Mrs. Mary Shock, of Magnolia; and twelve grandchildren; and two great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Percy A. Helman

Mrs. Helen Helman, 22 North Lee street, wife of Percy A. Helman, died yesterday at Allegany hospital where she was admitted Feb. 17. She was 67.

She was a daughter of the late Louis and Caroline Schank Soyster, and was born in Cumberland. Surviving, besides her husband, are two sons, Louis T., Cumberland, and Robert J. Helman, Millburn, N. J., and a sister, Mrs. Edward E. Trieber of Cumberland.

Mrs. T. J. Marsh

Janitor Files for Mayor, Opening Primary Fight

Breaks Through, However, after Exciting Day

After a seven-hour tussle with election red tape, Janitor John Harper last night qualified as a candidate for mayor and thereby plunged himself and twelve other candidates for city offices into a primary campaign.

White-haired Mr. Harper, who looks something like a textbook picture of Fightin' Andy Jackson, bumped into trouble with technicalities when he strode into City Hall yesterday afternoon, but his petition stood the acid test of City Hall scruting. And at 9 p. m. he solemnly took the candidates oath administered by City Clerk S. E. Griminger.

Informed that attempts to sidetrack the Harper candidacy had been unsuccessful, Potential Candidates John H. Fike and Robert L. Meyers immediately became actual candidates. Prior to the time that it became certain that Harper didn't care if his filing cost the city $2,500 for a primary or not, Meyers and Fike had stated they would not be responsible for causing a primary. They left it up to Harper.

Actually, it developed last night that there would have been a primary regardless of what Harper decided to do. James Blackwell, editor of the Voice of Labor, appeared in City Hall with a council petition for Harry Castle, CIO official.

Fearful that Harper would be scratched at the last minute, Blackwell said that Castle's petition had been prepared to force a primary, if necessary. Blackwell explained that he thought it would be "healthier" if the primary was held. Satisfied that Harper and two additional council candidates were in the race, Blackwell kept his petition in his pocket.

The Candidates

For Mayor

Harry Irvine, 300 Pulaski street, present mayor.

Thomas S. Post, 512 Louisiana avenue, service station operator.

John W. Harper, 408 Prince George street, janitor.

For City Council

James Orr, 544 Fairview avenue.

Thomas F. Conlon, 208 Schley street.

William J. Edwards, 225 Columbia avenue.

Edgar Reynolds, 615 Louisiana avenue.

John H. Fike, 13 East Mary street.

Joseph M. Fradiska, 416 Cumberland street.

Robert L. Meyers, 21 Blackiston avenue.

Benjamin W. O'Rourke, 623 Bedford street.

Kenneth D. Racey, 729 Hill Top Drive.

Randolph T. Wishmyer Sr., 129 Race street.

Until yesterday, a primary did not appear a certainty due to the fact that only two candidates, Irvine and Post, had filed for mayor and eight candidates for the City Council. One more candidate for either mayor or council made a primary a certainty.

Harper Arrives

Any hopes to avoid a $2,500 primary went glimmering yesterday afternoon when Harper walked into City Hall with his petition papers under his arm. With him came Charles P. Eversole, Celanese pipe fitter, who had assisted in circulating Harper's petitions.

Harper got a chilly reception. And it was immediately shown that the candidates was not familiar with the technicalities of filing for the office of mayor.

Informed that he needed someone to swear that the names on his petition were bona fide, Harper went forth to find someone. He returned presently with Irvin McElfish, 10 Mary street, an election official.

Much Red Tape

Mr. McElfish, however, scanned the paper he was supposed to sign and decided that he couldn't swear that all the names were bona fide because he hadn't seen anyone sign them.

Clerk Griminger suggested that Harper chase out and find someone else. Mr. Harper hurried out and came back with Clifton E. Fuller, 624 Elm street, a veteran member of the registration board.

Mr. Fuller looked at the paper laid before him by Clerk Griminger and decided that he couldn't swear to the validity of Harper's petition, either.

By this time, the clerk's office was filled with interested spectators and confusion reigned.

Then all hands decided to go to the mayor's office and get straightened out.

Mayor, Heskett Grin

Informed of the problem, both the mayor and city attorney grinned broadly. The mayor then goodnaturedly told his rival that in the absence of any proof to the contrary, anyone could swear that the petition was valid. Else, explained Mr. Heskett and the mayor, it would be difficult to hold elections at all. Eversole, the man who had helped Harper circulate his petitions, was the man to sign, said the mayor.

Harper was next informed by the city clerk that the names on the petitions would have to be examined. A corps of City Hall workers went to work on the petition.

A few minutes later a tall young strode into City Hall to announce that he was desirous of signing Harper's petition forthwith. He was John Edwin Miller, of 17 Plymouth Drive, who declared he didn't know Harper from Adam and had never seen him in his life but wanted to be certain that he had a chance to run if he wanted to. Miller signed and departed.

Daughter on Hand

Another spectator who appeared on the scene was Miss June Harper, 21, daughter of the candidate, who told her father she came down to see what was going on. Miss Harper, a employe of Celanese in the warp knitting department, declared she belonged to the Celanese union "100 per cen."

It being after 5 o'clock the City Hall force then went home for supper, stating they would return at 8 p. m.

At approximately 8:30 p. m. Harper's petitions were found to be satisfactory and Clerk Griminger invited him by phone to come down and be sworn. Harper arrived a few minutes later and was sworn before a large group of interested spectators.

Starts Campaign

Once sworn, Candidate Harper lost little time launching his campaign. He made a speech.

He declared he was going to do his best to be elected but wanted to thank the City Hall people for assisting him in getting filed and wanted them to know that he hoped the ensuing campaign could be conducted on a friendly basis.

Tim Troxell Dies Of Heart Attack

Veteran Tinner Was Amateur Astrologist

John Welty "Tim" Troxell, a life-long resident of Cumberland and a character known as an amateur astrologist and etymologist, dropped dead about 6 o'clock last night on the third floor of 18 South Mechanic street, where he had a room.

Troxell, who would have been sixty-seven in May, was a tinner and roofer by trade, but old-time residents recalled last night that he had not been active in the business for many years.

Troxell had moved into the third floor room on Monday, from the former Cavanaugh's hotel at 174 Baltimore street, where all the rooms are to be remodeled. He had stayed at the Walton hotel at Baltimore avenue and Front street for a time.

His only relative living is a sister, Miss Minnie Troxell, who lives at 115 Independence street, and works at Rosenbaum's Department store. Miss Troxell found her brother's body when she called to visit him at 6:30 p. m. He was dressed in bedroom slippers and trousers.

Miss Troxell found her brother's body on the floor of the bathroom at the rear of the third floor when she called to visit him. Mrs. George Lee Welsh, Troxell's landlady, arrived at the building at about the same time and called a doctor, who said the man had died about a half hour before.

He had been attacked of recent years by a combination of diseases of the heart and kidneys, but had been in and out of his room according to his usual habits until yesterday morning. He had suffered several fainting spells at that time but his sister said he seemed better when she left at noon. He was alone on the floor at the time he died.

Troxell was never married. His sister said a fiancee had died when he was a young man and he had vowed to stay single at that time.

Persons who knew 'Tim', as he was always called, said he spent much time and took great pride in explaining astrology to his friends over a drink. He also was enthusiastic in his search for new words to use in his colorful conversation.

Midland Bank Receiver Sues Caleb J. White To Collect Judgment

A suit to attach certain shares of Queen City Dairy stock owned by Mr. and Mrs. Caleb J. White, of Ellerslie, to collect a judgment was docketed yesterday in Circuit court by George S. Arnold, receiver of the First National Bank of Midland.

Stating that the bank has already received a judgment against the Whites for $254.70, plus interest and costs of $13.85, the complainant asks that a writ of attachment be levied on the shares and also against the lands, goods, and chattels of the Whites.

The suit was docketed by Harry I. Stegmaier, counsel for the Midland bank.

SKI CONDITIONS

Barring a sudden thaw, skiing will be good at New Germany today and tomorrow, with a large Sunday crowd expected.

A light snow of less than an inch fell yesterday morning at New Germany, adding to the several inches of light snow covering the old crust.

Attorney General Gives Facts about Balch Ruling

Letter Shows How And Why Opinion Was Given

In a letter to The Cumberland News, William C. Walsh, attorney general of the state, sets forth the facts concerning his recent opinion concerning the Allegany County Emergency Home.

"I am writing this letter," Mr. Walsh states, "in reference to an article which appeared in The News of Wednesday, February 21, 1940, about an opinion I recently rendered as attorney general concerning the Allegany County Emergency Home conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Balch.

"Under date of January 19, 1940, Mr. J. Milton Patterson, director of the State Department of Public Welfare, advised me that the department wanted an official opinion as to what steps the department could take regarding the Balch home, if Mr. Balch continued to operate it without a license from the department, and with his letter Mr. Patterson enclosed copies of correspondence he had had with Mr. Balch about the matter and a summary of the action taken by the department regarding this home between August 1936 and January 1940.

"These enclosures showed that under date of January 6, 1940, Mr. Patterson had written Mr. Balch stating that he would like to know what plans Mr. Balch had for the future conduct of the home, suggesting that he apply for a license, and advising him that he was operating without a license in violation of the state law, and that up until January 19, 1940, Mr. Patterson had received no reply to his letter.

"On receipt of Mr. Patterson's letter, I called him on the telephone in Baltimore and suggested the advisability of my delaying the giving of a formal opinion until a further effort had been made to have Mr. Balch again take up with the department the question of securing a license, and Mr. Patterson agreed to this suggestion. Shortly afterwards I discussed the matter in Cumberland with Mr. Morgan C. Harris, the state's attorney for Allegany county, and requested him to ask Mr. Balch to communicate with Mr. Patterson, and I understand that Mr. Harris did so.

"Under date of February 12, 1940, I received a second letter from Mr. Patterson, stating that the State Department of Public Welfare had requested an immediate ruling on the Balch home, and Mr. Patterson advised me on the telephone that up until February 12, 1940, he had received no word of any sort from Mr. Balch in reply to his letter of January 6, 1940.

"In view of the foregoing situation, I did not feel that I could

School Girl Dies After Operation

Peggy Loraine Clayton, an eighth grade student at Allegany high school, died yesterday morning at Allegany hospital where she had been admitted Feb. 6. She was fourteen years old.

Peggy was the oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Clayton, 110 South Johnson street. Her death followed a mastoid operation, performed the day she was admitted to the hospital.

She had been regular in attendance at the school, where her teachers said she had always been a good student. Illness forced her to stay home on January 29, and she never returned after that time.

Surviving, besides her parents, are a sister, Elaine, in the seventh grade at Allegany high school; and two brothers, Eugene, who finished high school two years ago, and Royce, who attended the high school until a few weeks ago.

on High Roads Low Roads and By-Ways

We've received fan mail (very rarely to be honest about it), but never before a fan package such as the postman brought yesterday. Wrapped up like a Christmas present for your best girl, it was, too. Inside was a doll on skis, made of fluffy material something like pipe cleaners, only much more elaborate. Our office associates, who, according to the movies, are supposed to be hard-boiled hombres, all admired it.

We overcame our usual modesty to mention this gift because of the spirited little poem that accompanied the doll as an introduction. Says the poem:

My name is Pete
I know my biz
When I'm on skis
I am a whiz
I ski at will
I ski at ease
I ski until
I darn near freeze.
When winter goes
I'll feel quite blue
And that is why
I've come to you
Oh, keep me please
And think with cheer
We'll both have lots
Of fun next year.

We welcome the doll more than the sender knows. It's good to have somebody else around, if only a doll, who is sorry to see the winter drawing to a close. We've been getting terribly unpopular, going around shouting gleefully every time another blizzard strikes, or even a lone black cloud peeks over Haystack mountain.

Supreme Chaplain To Visit K. of C.

Father Leo M. Finn, Supreme Chaplain of Knights of Columbus, will pay a visit to Cumberland Council tomorrow to address the Knights of Cumberland and vicinity relative to the work and program of the Order.

All Catholic men of the community have been invited to attend the meeting, which will be at 3:00 p. m. in the K. of C. Home on North Mechanic street. Immediately following the meeting, there will be a smoker and open house for those attending.

Preceding the address the Grand Knight and officers of Cumberland Council will be host to Father Finn and State Deputy John A. Flanigan at a dinner. The Grand Knights of Mt. Savage, Frostburg, and Oakland will also be present.

This is Father Finn's first visit to Cumberland and Western Maryland. Father Finn has expressed a desire to meet as many members personally as he can.

There are 3,070 counties in the United States.

Downtown Fire Alarm Proves a Dud

City firemen and Cumberland citizens early last night had visions of a second big fire on Baltimore street within a month when an alarm was sounded from the G. C. Murphy Company store at 7:22 p. m.

Watchman Joe Byrne noticed a peculiar odor in the basement of the store and called the firemen, who investigated and found a sewer gas leak, but no fire. Hundreds of early evening theater goers were attracted by the excitement.

Court To Rule On Clerkship Next Tuesday

O'Conor's Right To Name Buchholtz Debated Yesterday

William H. Buchholtz will learn Tuesday whether he is destined to become clerk to the Allegany county commissioners, it was revealed yesterday.

Following a hearing in Circuit Court on the case, Chife Judge D. Lindley Sloan and Associate Judge William A. Huster indicated they will hand down an opinion next Tuesday.

Buchholtz, appointed to the post by Governor O'Conor, filed a petition for a writ of mandamus to establish recognition of his commission when the county commissioners began to fight the appointment.

Walter C. Capper, counsel for the county commissioners, yesterday attacked the governor's authority to make such an appointment to fill the vacancy now being filled by R. Mason Hill.

Capper stated that the governor was denied the right to make such an appointment according to an act of the Legislature in 1900.

Buchholtz was represented by W. Earle Cobey and Edward J. Ryan, who cited a similar case in Colorado where the court approved a governor's appointment. The clerkship, they contended, became vacant with no provision under local statute for being filled.

Attorney General William C. Walsh, appearing as a "friend of the court" for Gov. O'Conor, stated that the governor had the power under the Constitution to fill vacancies in public office when no other specific provision existed for filling the vacancy.

Police Solve Robbery At Goldfine Studio; Two Boys Arrested

Police today and holved the robbery of $3.20 in pennies from the Goldfine Studio, at 117 Baltimore street, the night of Feb. 16, with the arrest early yesterday morning of two eighteen year old boys who admitted their guilt.

Police traced down the trail of two boys who were said to be spending an unusual number of pennies and picked up James Donald Kenney, 50 Bedford street, and Carl Scharf, 106 Park street, for questioning in the case.

Both admitted that they used a pinch bar to force the door of the studio and removed the money after giving the studio a good "going over." The pair's confessions will be presented in Trial Magistrates court at a preliminary hearing either today or Monday, Lieut. James E. Van said. Lieut. Van and Detective R. Emmett Flynn made the arrests.
